THOMAS WISEMAN OF WIMBISH, ESSEX.

HIS INQUISITIO POST MORTEM, 28 ELIZ. (1586) WITH SOME NOTES OF HIS FAMILY. CONTRIBUTED BY MAJOR FRANCIS J. A. SKEET.

THE Inquisition Post Mortem which follows is written on the face of eleven sheets of paper $16 \times 14\frac{1}{4}$ inches, the statement of values (now torn) being concluded on the back of the eleventh.

It is that of Thomas Wiseman of Broadoaks, in the parish of Wimbish, Essex, who, notwithstanding he had temporarily yielded to the storm, by attending the parish church in 1570, was an active and ardent Catholic.* His father, John Wiseman of Felsted, was a considerable landowner. According to the visitation of 1552 he married "Johan' dot' of Lege of London"; but subsequent additions to the visitation of 1612,† perhaps more correctly states his wife was "Joane d. of Lucas of London," a name, formerly FitzLucas, appearing in Essex and Suffolk genealogies. Besides Thomas his heir, he had several younger sons, one of whom, Richard,‡ had a fifth son, Edward, the only one of whom the pedigree gives no further information. He may have been the Edward Wiseman of Wexford, who died intestate in 1668, from whom the late Cardinal Wiseman probably descended. His widow's (Mary Venables) will, dated 18th May, 1682, was proved in Dublin, 5th January, 1683.§ John Wiseman had the Manor of Bradokes, Broadoaks or Braddox, as it has been differently written, passed to him by fine (1551) from Edmund Mordaunt.

i. Thomas Wiseman married || Jane, daughter of Cuthbert Vaughan, by whom he had—

1. William, his son and heir.
2. John, born 1571, a novice S.J. St. Andrew's, Rome, 1592.
3. Thomas, born 1572, entered the novitiate as above. Died at St. Omers, 1596.
4. Robert, slain in battle with the heretics in Belgium.
 1. Anne, Bridgettine nun, died at Lisbon, 1650.
 2. Barbara, Bridgettine nun, died at Lisbon, 1649.
 3. Jane, professed at St. Ursula's Convent of English Augustinian Canonesses at Louvain, 1595, died 1633 æt. 63. First Prioress of St. Monica's, Louvain.
 4. Bridget, professed at St. Ursula's, 1595, died at St. Monica's, 1627.

* The Life of Father John Gerard, by Rev. John Morris, S.J.

† The visitation of 1634 says "L'res pattents exemplified to Thomas Wiseman of Felsted Co Essex Gent. & heire of John Wiseman . . . wch armes was heretofore borne by his auncestors & to them descended from Wiseman of the north." The crest was only given to Thomas and the other descendants of his father.

‡ "In the year 1614, Laurence Blundeston, a student of the English College in Rome, whose mother was Margaret, daughter of Richard Wiseman, Esq., of Flingrige in Essex, tells a sad story. His parents had indeed returned to the faith, and five of his brothers were Catholics, but, he adds, 'All my maternal uncles and aunts are Protestants, except one, Sir William Wiseman of Braddocks, Essex'" (Chronicle of the English Augustinian Canonesses at Louvain, vol. i. p. 55).

§ See Correspondence in the Tablet, March to May, 1908.

|| He may have married secondly, Jane Cerle. The following is the only early Wiseman entry in the Wimbish register except that of Dorythe: "Thom Wiseman to Jane Cerle 25 April 1583."

ii. Sir William Wiseman, Kt, (of whom there is a long account in the Life of Father Gerard), married Jane, daughter of Sir Edmond Huddleston of Sawston, Cambs., by whom he had—

1. John, his son and heir.

1. Dorothy, "Dorythe Wisemans chrisninge confirmed by Mr. Harrison Parson of Radwinter 27 Oct. 1582" (Wimbish Register). Married William Brookesby of Shoby, Co. Leicester, Esq., by whom she had two daughters, coheiresses. (1) Winifred, married Sir Francis Englefield, Bart., of Wotton-Basset (see Wotton's Baronetage). (2) Mary, second wife of Thomas Bedingfield.

2. "Wynifred 2d daugh. [a nunne in France]" in the visitation of 1612.

iii. John Wiseman, according to the visitation of 1612, married a lady whose name is not given. As late as 1769 there was a brass in Wimbish church which probably related to her; it has now (1909) disappeared.

"Johanna Wiseman, by her second name Strangeman, a name which the laws of a second marriage conferred on her, was the wife of two husbands whom she buried, she a third time performed the offices of the bed and died, being more than sixty years old."

He married secondly, about 18th November, 1649, as appears below, Mary, daughter of Sir Rowland Rugeley of Dunton, Co. Warwick, Kt.

The following has been transcribed from a monumental inscription of his second wife on a wooden tablet on the north wall of the chancel in Wimbish Church:—

Mary Wüseman { Mi Jesu rais me anu } her Anagram now with God { Marie Wüsseman }

Here pious eyes may justly weepe	All that to vertue will bee just
For her that's under neath asleepe	With mee must reverence her dust.
Could wee belewe one surely blest	Beauteous before it was cal-cind'
Might in her tombe remaine a guest	But oh! the beauty of her mind
But to her very ashes I Must pay a devoute obsequie	Though I her absence cheifly find
Justice and passion both incline	The losse is unto all Man-kind
Me to adore her very shrine That by this venting of my greife	Who fitly may with mee be-moane
My troubled soule may find releife	The death of such perfection She to her sexe a patterne stood
	Of all thats imitably good.

- i. Elizabeth, bapt. 6 Oct., 1650, married Richard Clagett of London. Citizen and drysalter. In the Wimbish Register is the following notice of her burial: "2 Jany 1736. Mrs Elizabeth Clagett of St Martin within Ludgate London. 87."

2. Lucy, bapt. 14 May, 1653. Morant says she married (as second wife) Sir John Marshall of Sculpins, in the parish of Finchinfield, Essex; her descendants are given by him under that parish.
- (1) In Wimbish Registers: "1680. Dorothe Clagett da of Mr Richd & Elizth (born) Apl 18." According to Wotton, Dorothea, granddaughter of Colonel Clagett, and daughter of one of the Coheirs of Piercy Wiseman, married Sir Robert Adams, Bart.
- (2) There was also a son Wiseman Clagett of Barnard's Inn, London, Gent, who died 1st November, 1741. His widow was a Moravian.

The ancient manor house of Broadoaks was built by John Wiseman, who bought the estate, or his son Thomas. Sir William made a large deer park. The house stands on an eminence about half a mile from the road, between Thaxted and Wimbish; it is built of red brick, with mullioned windows; this is no doubt only a part of the original remains. It contains a large apartment on the first floor, which has been partitioned, with remains of a fine mantelpiece. At the top of the stairs is a large trap door, which when fastened down with a bar cuts off approach from below. In one bedroom there is a projection, which looks as if it had been a huge chimney, but there are no signs of a fireplace, and the centre is hollow, with solid sides. It may have been Father Gerard's hiding-place. Part of the moat remains.

This old Catholic mansion became a Moravian School, known as "Lambs Hall." The widow of Wiseman Clagett allowed Bishop Spangenberg (of that sect) to take the children there, who had been temporarily accommodated in England. The lease was signed Saturday, May $\frac{17}{8}$, 1742, for 7 years, with 6 months' notice to leave at any time. The School was established 26th November, 1742. In March, 1744, a large armed mob from Thaxted, and the neighbourhood, assembled round the house, thinking the inhabitants were "Papists," and that the "Pretender" was concealed there. So strong was the old Catholic tradition in their minds, that the superiors had great difficulty in convincing them of their mistake.

The estate of Broadoaks and its appurtenances was purchased in Chancery between 1743 and 1749 by Charles Lord Maynard. It is now (1909) a farm house, the property of his descendant, the Countess of Warwick.

We are indebted to Mr. John Hautenville Cope, F.R.Hist.S., for the example of a writ "de diem clausit extremum," the expanded Latin transcript of the Inquisition, the translations, and for the following note.

FRANCIS J. A. SKEET.

"Whilst the feudal system was in force, most of the lands in England were held mediately or immediately of the Crown. Those who held immediately were styled 'tenants in capite.' When such tenants died, a tax, called a relief, became due from the next heir, who had to perform homage. When these two duties had been accomplished, he was acknowledged as owner of his lands, having 'livery' or delivery of them.

"To enable the Crown to enforce these duties an officer called an 'escheator' was appointed for each county, who, on the death of any 'tenant in capite,' received a writ 'de diem clausit extremum,' from the King, directing him to seize, on behalf of the Crown, all the lands which the deceased held; also to summon a jury of twelve men, who on oath were to find out—

- (1) Of what lands the deceased died seized?
- (2) By what rents or services the same were held?
- (3) Who was the next heir; and of what age he then was?

“After the enquiry the document containing the above information was forwarded to the royal Chancery, from whence a copy was sent to the Exchequer to enable the officials to collect the payments, etc., due to the Crown.

“These Inquisitions fell into disuse during the latter part of the reign of Charles I. At the Restoration of Charles II., the feudal system was abolished by Statute (12 Car. II. c. 24), and these enquiries, as part of that system, perished with it.

“During the reign of Henry VII., his ministers, Empson and Dudley, compelled ‘many persons to sue out livery from the Crown, who were by no means tenants thereunto.’ This was felt to be such a grievance that an Act was passed (32 Hen. VIII. c. 46), establishing a Court, called the ‘Court of Wards and Liveries.’ This Court lasted till the Commonwealth, and was abolished by the Act of 12 Car. II. cap. 24. During its existence transcripts of the Chancery Inquisitions were forwarded to this Court, whose duty it was to supervise the enquiries upon the death of a ‘tenant in capite.’”

——— By the Grace of God of England, France and Ireland King (defender of the Faith) to his escheator in the County of —— Greeting.

Whereas A. B. of ——, who held of us in chief has died, and in order that we may receive those duties which are thereby owing to us, we command that without delay you take into our hands, all those lands and tenements, that the said A. B. was seized of in his domain—as of fee, in your bailiwick on the day on which he died, and that you cause them to be safely kept, until we shall have learnt what is the value of those lands etc. from the oath of men of good and lawful reputation, by whom the truth of the matter will be better able to be known, You are therefore to enquire with diligence, how many lands and tenements the aforesaid A. B. held of us in chief, both in demesne and in service, in your said bailiwick on the day on which he died, and how much he held from others and by what service, and how much those lands and tenements were worth a year in all goings, and when he died, and who his next heir is, and how old he may be. And that you send, without delay, this inquisition, properly and clearly drawn up to our Chancery, under your seal and under the seals of those, by whom it was made.

Witness ourselves at Westminster —— the day —— in the —— year of our reign.

and Ireland, Queen, Defender of the Faith, before Philip Glascok, gentleman eschaetor of the said Lady the Queen, in the County aforesaid, by virtue of a writ "de diem extremis clausum" of the said Lady the Queen, to the same eschaetor directed, and attached to this inquisition to hold an inquisition "post mortem," on Thomas Wiseman, of Wimbish in the said county of Essex Esquire, now deceased, by oath of Valentine Tendring, Edward Some, Ralph Some, John Madison, Edward Stane, Robert Sams, Thomas Tendring, John Tendring, Henry Dore, Robert Brooke, William Brooke, John Chapman, William Nevil, George Neal, Francis Bowsey, William Eve, and of William Bowsey; Who say upon their oath, that the aforesaid Thomas Wiseman, named in this writ, was seized in his demesne, as of fee, of and in the Manor of Welbernes [Wieldbarns], with its appurtenances in Debden in the County aforesaid and of and in the Manor of Tendring with its appurtenances in Debden aforesaid, and of and in certain lands and tenements with their appurtenances in Thaxstead [Thaxted] in the aforesaid County, called Woodames [Woodhams] lately bought of John Goulding, and in and of one small parcel of land, with a college built thereon in Thaxstead aforesaid, now or lately in the tenure of William Coleman, and lately bought of one Jeremy [?] Keye. And of and in one croft of land in Wimbish in the aforesaid County called Taylors, with its appurtenances, in the tenure of one John Sarrell, And of and in certain messuages, lands and tenements, with their appurtenances in Wimbish aforesaid, lately bought of one John Poole, in the said County of Essex, called or known by the name of Reding, or by what so ever other name, known, And of and in all other those lands and tenements with their appurtenances in Finchfield, with a dwelling house built thereon called Okins and le Feu, or Pursevants, And of and in certain lands called Turnars or Turners Obit, lately bought of Thomas Baker and of Peter Wennington gentlemen, now or lately in the tenure of Thomas Trew. And of and in one capital messuage with its appurtenances, lands, tenements, meadows, pastures and hereditaments with appurtenances in Felstead and Little Dunmow, late the property of John Wiseman Esquire, father of the aforesaid Thomas Wiseman, named in this writ. And of and in the manor or messuage of Broddaks with divers lands, meadows and pastures with the appurtenances unto the same manor belonging in Wimbush aforesaid, lately in the tenure of the aforesaid Thomas Wiseman, mentioned in the said writ, And of and in the Manor of Asshewell Hall with its appurtenances in Finchfield Wotherfeild, Shalford and Bardfield, in the County aforesaid, And of and in the seventh part of the Manor of St Maries also called St Marie Hall, in the County of Kent, And also of the seventh part of the Manor of Ditton or Dutton in Dytton in the said County of Kent. And the Jury aforesaid furthermore say upon their oath that for a long time before the death of the aforesaid Thomas Wiseman, named in this writ, that one Ralph Wiseman Esquire, brother of the said Thomas Wiseman, was seized in his demesne as of fee, of and in the Manor of Yardley Hall with its appurtenances in Thaxsted aforesaid, And being so seized did, about the first day of June in the fifth year of the reign of the Queen that now is, enfeof from that time forth the aforesaid Thomas Wiseman, named in this writ, And one Jane Wiseman, at that time, the wife of the aforesaid Thomas, to have and to hold the aforesaid Manor of Yardly Hall with its appurtenances unto the aforesaid Thomas Wiseman and unto Jane his wife, and unto the heirs of Thomas, by virtue of which enfeoffment the aforesaid Thomas Wiseman and Jane his wife were seised of the Manor aforesaid, with its appurtenances, viz. the aforesaid Thomas Wiseman in his demesne as of fee and the said Jane in her demesne as of free tenure. And the Jury aforesaid further say upon the oath that the aforesaid Thomas Wiseman, long before his death, was also seised of and in the Manor of Brockholles [Brockells] with its appurtenances and of divers lands and tenements thereunto belonging in Radwinter, Great Sam[p]ford, Little Sam[p]ford, Wimbish and Hempsted or anywhere else in the said County of Essex And of in certain messuages with divers land, tenements, fields, meadows and pastures and hereditaments with their appurtenances in Thaxstead now or lately in the separate tenures and occupations of William Thompson, John Barker and Robert Richardson and others; And that the aforesaid Thomas Wiseman so being seized of the aforesaid Manor of Brockholles with its appurtenances is and the aforesaid lands and tenements, last recited, in Thaxstead with their appurtenances did on the second day of December in the twenty-fifth year of the reign of the Queen by copy of his indenture bearing date the same day and year, in consideration of a jointure made on behalf of Jane Wiseman then the wife of William Wiseman son and heir apparent of the aforesaid Thomas Wiseman named in the said writ, enfeoff Sir Edmund Hudelston, knight and William Tyffin gentleman of the aforesaid Manor of Brockholles with all the aforesaid lands and tenements there unto belonging. And of the aforesaid lands and tenements last recited in Thaxstead, now or lately in the tenure or occupation of William Tompson, John Barker and Robert Richardson or either of them, or their assigns or either of them. To have and to hold the aforesaid Manor and the said lands and tenements thereunto belonging with their appurtenances to the aforesaid Edmund and William, their heirs and assigns in perpetuity, for the use and behoof of the aforesaid William Wiseman and Jane his wife, for and during the term of the natural lives of the aforesaid William and Jane, and of either of them as long as they shall live, and after their deaths then to the use and behoof of the aforesaid Thomas and his heirs in perpetuity, To have and to hold the aforesaid lands and tenements with their appurtenances in Thaxstead aforesaid now or lately in the tenure or occupation of William Tompson, John Barker and Robert Richardson or any of them, or their assigns to the aforesaid Edmund and William their heirs and assigns in perpetuity for the use and behoof of the aforesaid Thomas Wiseman, named in the said writ, and his assigns for and during the term of the natural life of the aforesaid Thomas, without impeachment of or for any manner of waste, and after the death of the aforesaid Thomas, then to the use and behoof of the aforesaid William Wiseman and Jane his wife, for and during the term of the natural lives of the said William Wiseman and Jane, or either of their several lives as long as they shall live, and after their deaths then to the use and behoof of the aforesaid Thomas Wiseman, named in this brief and to his heirs in perpetuity, by virtue of which enfeoffment, and of the statute for transferring uses into possession, lately put forth and published, the aforesaid William Wiseman and Jane his wife did enter into the aforesaid Manor of Brockholles and into the aforesaid land and tenements unto that Manor belonging, with its appurtenances and were from that time seised in their demesne, as of a free tenement, for and during the remainder of their natural lives in manner and form aforesaid, And in the aforesaid messuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments in Thaxstead now or lately in the tenure or occupation of the said William Tompson, John Barker or Robert Richardson. The aforesaid Thomas Wiseman mentioned in the said writ took possession and was from that time seized in his demesne, as of a free tenement for and during the remainder of his natural life, by manner and form limited.

And the jurors aforesaid furthermore say upon their oath that the said Thomas Wiseman, named in this writ, afterwards so being seised of all manors, messuages, lands, tenements, hereditaments, and premises did die on the seventh day of December in the twenty-eighth year of the reign of the Queen that now is, being seized in manner aforesaid.

And that the aforesaid Jane Wiseman, wife of the aforesaid Thomas named in this brief, outlived him and is still living at Wimbish aforesaid and is in good health. And that the aforesaid William Wiseman and the aforesaid Jane his wife are also living and are in good health and do live at Wimbish aforesaid. And the Jurors aforesaid furthermore say that the aforesaid William Wiseman is son and next heir of the aforesaid Thomas Wiseman, named in the said writ, and was of the age of twenty-eight years and upwards at the time of the death of the aforesaid Thomas, named in this writ, and at the time of the taking of this inquisition.

In witness thereof, etc.

CARDINAL WISEMAN'S ANCESTRY.

The following items compiled from correspondence in the Tablet, Dictionary of National Biography, etc., etc., are included as a commencement for a pedigree of the Cardinal. He may have descended from Wiseman of Essex, who came originally from the North, where Catholic members of the family continued to reside until the seventeenth century. The Cardinal claimed descent from Capel Wiseman, Protestant Bishop of Dromore. This seems unlikely, as the Bishop's will, proved in 1695, mentions neither wife nor child. The inference is that he had no issue.

1548. Robert Wiseman, tenant of land in Dunshaughlin, Co. Waterford.

1550. Robert Wiseman and John Wiseman (an auditor of the Irish Treasury), tenants of land in Dunshaughlin parish; and Robert again in 1587.

1584. Thomas Wiseman, a commissioner for forfeited lands.

1612. Edward Wiseman (see page 1, then young).

Edward Wiseman, living 1662 and 1666 when he paid a cess of thirty shillings, lived in the parish of St. Iberius, Wexford. Died intestate 1668. Married Mary Venables, cousin of Luke Wadding, who was Coadjutor Bishop of Ferns, 1671. Her will, d. May 18, 1682, pro. Jan. 5, 1683-4. Had issue—

Edward Wiseman. In 1689 in defence of Catholic interests took the Church of St. Iberius from the Protestant Rector. 1690 left Wexford with the Bishop of Ferns. 1693 his property declared forfeited. Probably living at Wexford, 1707-8; left issue—(1) James, (5) Edward, (1) Mary, who were living 1684; and (2) Luke, (3) Patrick, (4) Joseph, who were possibly dead before that date.

James Wiseman, Cardinal Wiseman's grandfather, as his son was born about 1770, may have been born about 1740. Died at Seville, 1804. Had issue—

1. James Wiseman of Seville, who married first—Helene or Marianne Dunphy, daughter of a Spanish General, and sister of General O'Donohou, last viceroy of Mexico, by whom he had three daughters, Helen, Alicia, and Marianne, who married Thomas Tucker of Brook Lodge, Sussex, having an only daughter, Fanny Xaveria, who married 9 July, 1827, William Burke of Knocknagur, Co. Galway.

He married, secondly—at SS. Mary and Michael in the Commercial Road, London, 18 April, 1800, Xaveria, daughter of Peter Strange of Aylwardston Castle, Co. Kilkenny, by whom he had—

1. James, of 2 Grove Street, Liverpool; buried at St. Oswald's Churchyard, Old Swan, by the Rev. John Maddocks, 26 May, 1854, aged 53. Fortified by the Rites of Holy Church. (Communicated by the Rev. F. E. Clarkson, Rector.)

2. Nicholas Patrick Stephen, born at Seville, 2 August, 1802, Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster, died 15 Feb. 1865.

4. Frances Xaveria, married Count Andrea Gabrielli of Fano, Councillor of State under the Papal Government, left issue.

2. Patrick Wiseman, sponsor to his nephew Nicholas at his baptism.

NO. II.

CORRESPONDENCE OF CARDINAL ALLEN.

CONTRIBUTED BY THE REV. PATRICK RYAN, S.J.

I. CORRESPONDENCE FROM GRENE'S "COLLECTANEA M."

Among the Stonyhurst College manuscripts is one known as "Collectanea M." It consists of a number of extracts made by Father Christopher Grene, S.J., from originals, once in the Archives of the English College, Rome, but now unfortunately lost. The excerpts here printed from "Collectanea M," fols. 109 sqq., were transcribed by the late Father John Morris. He has omitted all that had already appeared in Father Knox's Letters and Memorials of Cardinal Allen. It has been judged best to treat Father Morris's transcript as a complete document; and thus one or two letters appear which do not logically come under Allen's correspondence.

The Letters of Cardinal Allen, which are here printed for the first time, comprise all that have been found since Father T. F. Knox published his excellent work, "The Letters and Memorials of William Cardinal Allen (1532-1594)," edited by Fathers of the Congregation of the London Oratory, with an Historical Introduction by Thomas Francis Knox, D.D., London (Nutt), 1882". This contains 280 pieces, and ten more (not letters) will be found in the Appendices to Mgr. Provost Bellesheim's "Wilhelm Cardinal Allen (1532-1594) und die Englischen Seminare auf dem Festlande," von Dr. Alphons Bellesheim, Mainz (Kirchheim), 1885".

The letters of the present series (and something very similar might have been said of Father Knox's collection) have come proximately or remotely from Rome; almost all being connected in one way or another with the English College there. The Jesuit superiors of that house co-operated with Allen with an intimacy that could hardly be believed, if the written records were not there to bear witness. His loving charity, his perfect straightforwardness and unselfishness, and his burning zeal stand forth in these letters with a vividness that at first seems almost unnatural in the vigour of their expression. But when we read the letters of the Jesuit Fathers to him (pp. 68-98) we can see that the spacious terms used on both sides are none too strong to convey the enthusiasm in the service of God, with which they were animated. Though certainly not unknown before, this warm friendship forms the most remarkable feature of the collection of letters before us. *

Of the new facts, perhaps the most important is the light which the letter to Dr. Owen Lewis (pp. 44-47) throws on Allen's political hopes and plans at a comparatively early period. Pages xxxi to xxxiii of Father Knox's Introduction will need some modification in view of what Allen here says. The Memorial on the English Hospice at Rome, pp. 46-62, even though very probably not written by Allen, tells us many things concerning men and institutions very familiar to him.

* For Father Knox's discussion of the differences with the Jesuits, alleged to have commenced at a later period of the Cardinal's life, see Knox's Introduction to the Douay Diaries (1878), pp. xcvi-cii.

Very noteworthy is the implicit trust which the celebrated General of the Jesuits, Father Claudius Aquaviva, places on Allen's judgment, even for the government of his own Jesuit subjects, accepts or refuses postulants in accordance with Allen's recommendations, and even empowers Allen to receive candidates into the Society for him (pp. 87, 89, 95, 97).

The first set of selections taken from original documents, once in the English College, Rome, but unhappily lost after the suppression of the Society, will be of special interest, because of the frequent mention of names of those who were subsequently martyred. Father Christopher Grene, who made the selection, was especially interested in the Martyrs; and we may hope that he gathered all, or almost all, that could be found about them.

The portrait of the Cardinal here reproduced is that now preserved at the Benedictine Abbey, Woolhampton—formerly St. Gregory's, Douai—and the thanks of the Society are gratefully rendered to the Right Rev. Abbot, Dom Austin Stanislaus Taylor and to Dom Edmund Kelly, Prior, for permission to copy it, as well as for the pains they have taken to facilitate this being done. This picture is believed to have been painted for the English College of the Secular Clergy at Douay. The arrangement of the buttons on the rochet in threes is probably an indication of French origin. Similar grouping occurs in the portraits of French Cardinals in the seventeenth century. On the other hand, pictures derived from the Ushaw portrait, which previously belonged to Mr. Charles Browne Mostyn, show the buttons set in regular order, according to the Roman custom; and this supports the theory that the Ushaw picture came from Rome.

The conclusion drawn from the dress is only put forward tentatively; for it is clear that absolute uniformity was not observed by the clerical tailors of those days. But we are on safer ground when we argue from the locality in which the picture was found, not many years ago, by the monks of St. Gregory's. It was purchased from a private possessor in Douay itself; and, considering the size and dignity of the portrait, the presumption that it was painted for Douay College clearly outweighs all other probabilities. For other information on the portraits of Cardinal Allen, see Gillow, Bibliographical Dictionary, i. p. 24. To this it may be added that there is an alleged portrait in the Archevêché of Rheims. This is a Cardinal's head, but of aspect altogether different from the Douay and Ushaw pictures. The ascription to Allen is quite modern, and appears to be incorrect. The picture of the Cardinal at the English College, Rome, is a modern copy. A three-quarter length painting of the Cardinal, differing in detail from any other, was acquired in Rome for Mr. Gillow about 1878, and is still in his possession.

The transcripts from which this Correspondence is printed were made partly by the late Fathers Joseph Stevenson and John Morris, of the Society of Jesus, and partly by Father John Coogan, S.J. For being enabled to use these copies and for much help in the work of editing, acknowledgment is due to Father J. H. Pollen, S.J.

*Alanus ad Patrem Agazzarium, 28 Junij 1579.

De pacificato post turbulentissimas illas tempestates Collegio illo, eodem et vestro et nostro jam pridem quantas cor nostrum mirifice hoc divino beneficio dilatatum capere et cogitare potuit maximas verbo et sacrificio Domino Deo nostro gratias egimus. Quod vero illius charissimæ mihi sobolis sortes super sanctam Societatem vestram et in manus inprimis tuas, colendissime Alphonse Pater, ceciderint, quantum læter, quantum sperem, quantum Christo, quantum Pontifici, quantum P. Generali, quantum Ordini vestro, quantum vobis debeam, verbis non conabor explicare; animo, qui est talium bonorum quam calamus capacior, omnia mihi, meis, reipublicæque nostræ polliceor.

Et hoc gaudium non modo mihi cum illis hic aut istic commilitonibus ac coexulibus meis sed cum omnibus Anglis Catholicis qui de hoc bono divino serio per insulam nostram ubique triumphant commune est: et spero quod nemo tollet hoc gaudium a nobis, quia solidum est, probatum et purgatum atque ex tristitia nostra eademque vestra ortum.

De te vero ipso R. Pater, vel quia in laborum nostrorum consortium felicissime mihi et meis venisti, quod nomen mihi est jucundius collega et compar in Christo suavissime, sic sentio hoc privilegium primi Rectoratus illius Collegii id est totius gentis nostræ spei, singularis charitatis tuæ prerogativa, quia scilicet amas plus omnibus divinitus tibi concessum vel impositum esse; nam et in illo Ordine vestro, qui totus est ex amore et zelo conflatus (quod in Apostolorum Collegio et in sanctorum etiam societate est) sunt dilectionis gradus: nec alius debuit præesse nostris ad summum charitatis opus præordinatis, nisi qui animarum pereuntium amore langueret; qualem te esse cum PP. Ferdinando, Paulo, ceterisque colendissimis viris qui tecum laborarunt in Domino, ita lætor ut tamen sæpe me mei suppudeat qui non sic amo (licet plane diligam) fratres meos secundum carnem, discipulosque longe charissimos, sicut vos amatis homines miseros exteros ignotos.

In quo genere tu me, mi Pater, jam pridem etiam litteris ejusdem pietatis et dilectionis plenissimis antevertisti; ut ita non solum beneficio sed etiam officio me superatum esse gaudeam mirifice. Scripsi etenim his præteritis mensibus propter certas causas, maximeque ne causam nostrorum (de cujus eventu dubitabam) læderem, rarius; tamen semel aut iterum ad Rñum P. Generalem ac alios nostrates de Societate post commissum vobis Collegium in eam sententiam, quæ mihi videbatur commodissima, litteras dedi, unde mihi ad Urbem veniendi fore commoditatem speravi et adhuc spero; nihil enim est in hoc mundo post patriæ reconciliationem quod ego nunc magis vellem quam coram illud Collegium, de quo tanta spero et tam magna concipio, conspicerere ac de rebus nostris vobiscum prolixè colloqui. Quid me detineat scripsi; quid me explicabit, liberumque faciet notavi etiam, et ex Urbe per RR. PP. Thomam Darbishirum et Personium responsum expecto jam diu.

* This letter is probably an answer to Father Agazzari's printed C. R. S., iii. 138-140.

Doctor Allen to Father Agazzari, Douay, 28 June 1579.

For the restoration of peace to that College—as much your College as ours, after such boisterous storms, we have long ere this by prayer and sacrifice given to the Lord our God thanks as great as our heart—wonderfully enlarged by this divine favour—could embrace and conceive. But in that the future fortunes of that child of my heart have fallen to your holy Society and more especially into your hands, most Reverend Father Alphonsus, how great is my joy, how great my hopes, how deep a debt of gratitude I owe to Christ, to the Pope, to your Father General, to your Order, and to your own person, I will not attempt to express in words; but in my soul, which is much more responsive to such good fortune than a mere reed-pen, I augur all happiness for myself, for my friends, and for our commonwealth.

And this joy I share not only with my comrades and fellow-exiles here [in the Low Countries] and there at Rome but also with all English Catholics, who everywhere throughout our island are with good reason exultant at this boon from heaven; a joy which I hope no one will filch from us, for it is of good weight, well-tried, refined and minted out of sorrow, both yours and mine.

But as to yourself, O Father Reverend, or—in that you have come to share our labours, to the great happiness of me and mine,—O most sweet Colleague and Comrade in Christ,—a title to me more pleasing by far—it is my conviction that the privilege of being the first Rector of that College, which is the hope of all our race, has been granted and invested in you by God Himself, on the score of your eminent charity; for in truth you love us more than all the rest. For in your illustrious Order, too, all aglow though it be with charity and zeal (just as in the Apostolic College and among the fellowship of the Saints), there are still degrees of love; and so no one was to rule over ours, set apart for the loftiest enterprise of charity, unless he were in a swoon with love of the souls that perish. And while I rejoice that you are of such a character, as well as Fathers Ferdinand [Capecci], Paul [Navarola] and the other most reverend men who are our fellow-labourers in the Lord; yet I cannot but oft-times feel a secret shame, that I do not so love—much though I may esteem them—my brothers according to the flesh and disciples by every title most dear, as you all love them, men to you unknown, in wretchedness and exile.

And in that kind you Father have also long since forestalled me by letters full-charged with expressions of the same loving-kindness; so that it is my singular joy to have been surpassed by you not only in the sphere of charity but also in that of duty. For, during the months that have just elapsed,—for definite reasons, and especially lest I should injure the cause of my countrymen, since I was in doubt as to the final issue of their affairs—I have written but seldom; yet, since the College has been entrusted to you, I have now and again dispatched, to the Very Reverend Father General and to others of my nation in the Society, letters couched in the tenor that seemed to me most suitable. Wherefore it has been and is still my hope that the way will be made smooth for my coming to Rome; for at the present moment there is nothing in this world, next to the recon-

Hoc tempore absum a meis: veni enim vocatus a Magistratu Civitatis Duacum, qui cupit ad se redire nostrum Collegium cujus ejectionis culpam deprecatur; et ego etiam vellem, cum propter ceteras commoditates, tum maxime propter Societatem vestram quæ hic habet Collegium, quo bono nos Rhemis caremus, de qua re scripsi etiam ad Ill. Comensem et alios: atque utinam ita essent istorum duorum Collegiorum res constitutæ et conjunctæ ut hujus etiam nostri negotia omnia non ab aliis quam a vobis id est ab administratoribus Collegii Romano-Anglici istic essent tractanda; sic essemus multis expediti molestiis, nec cogeremur aliorum uti operis, quibus hactenus, dum coalescant in unum utriusque Collegii rationes, niti cogimur.

Illos quinque studiosos quos ad supplementum quinquaginta requiritis, si domi fuisset, ex tempore misisset, habemus enim aliquot selectissimos vita et doctrina adolescentes: sed nunc vereor ne ante finem Julii aut Augusti iter capessere non queant. Quod ineptos ac malos non admittitis, aut etiam rejicitis ac expellitis, recte facitis; sic equidem vellem; minusque laborabitis si non nisi plane commendatos aut cognitos recipiatis; nam erronei illi ac vagi qui sese obtrudent, utcunque ingenio ac audacia valeant, moribus tamen fere sunt minus commodis.

Quos pro Anglia remittetis, instruendos in omnem partem curabimus, et de sodalibus providebimus, nec quicquam omitteremus quod ad operis Dominici progressum ullo modo videatur pertinere; te etenim, pie Pater, admirabili prudentia, zelo, charitate, de nobis nostrorumque salute ita satagente, me vitæ hujus tæderet, si non adniterer omnibus vitæ ac mortis officiis pro charissimis mihi filiis ac fratribus: ac ludum sane jocumque fuisse dixerim, quod hactenus moliti videmur, præ illo quod vobis * Christo juvante facturi sumus.

Exosculor ergo illam dexteram tuam, R. P., quam mihi in societatem divini operis tam amanter porrigis, tuamque R. Paternitatem Bristous noster (quo neminem unquam meliorem aut magis unanimem in Domino habebimus) summopere salutatur. Saluto omnes Patres imprimisque coadjutores vestros in nostrorum institutione etc. . . . Christus Jesus tuam R. Paternitatem nobis diutissime servet. Duaci 4 Cal. Julias 1579. Raptim.

ciling of my country, that I should more desire, than to see with my own eyes that College, which inspires me with such great hopes and visions of great achievements, and also to have long conferences with you about our affairs. What it is that keeps me back, I have written; what will loosen the knot and set me free, I have also put down: and now for a long time I have been awaiting, at the hands of the Reverend Fathers Darbyshire and Persons, an answer from Rome.

At present I am absent from my charge; for I have come to Douay at the invitation of the magistrates, who desire the return of our College among them, deploring its expulsion as a wrong. This is also my desire, both on account of other advantages, and especially because your Society has here a College, a boon we lack at Rheims. On this matter I have likewise written to the Cardinal of Como and to others. Would that the affairs of the two Colleges could be so arranged and co-ordinated that all the business of our one here could be handled by no one else than by you, who look after the English College there in Rome. So should we be freed from many troubles and not be forced to employ the services of others; on whom we must needs rely till such time as the working-systems of both Colleges become a completed whole.

Had I been at home, I should have sent straightway those five students, whom you want to complete your tale of fifty; for we have certain youths of most excellent morals and learning: but now I fear they will not be able to begin the journey before the end of July or August. In that you do not admit and even reject and expel the unfit and the indifferent, you act aright; for such would be my wish. Your troubles will be all the less, if you receive only those whom you know or who have very good introductions; for your wanderers and rolling-stones, who would force an entrance—even though their unflinching temper might exert some effect—are for the most part unsuitable in character.

Those whom you send back to us for England, we will take care to have equipped at every point, and will provide with companions; nor will we leave undone anything that will seem to tend to advance the work of the Lord. Of a truth, with you loving Father, so strenuous in your wonderful prudence, zeal and charity, about us and our salvation, I should loath this life of mine, did I not exert myself by every service during life and until death on behalf of my most dear sons and brothers. Verily, I should call that the merest child's play, which we seem to have achieved so far, in comparison with what by your [means] and with the help of Christ we are going to do in the future.

And so, Reverend Father, I fervently kiss your right hand which you so lovingly extend to me in our fellowship for the work of God. Friend Bristow—a better man than whom, or one more whole-hearted for God, we shall never find—most heartily greets your Reverence. I salute all the Fathers and especially your fellow-workers in the education of ours etc. . . . May Christ Jesus long preserve your Reverence to us. Douay, June 28th 1579. In haste.

Your Reverence's Fellow-servant in the Lord

Juvenes hi de quibus . . . antea . . . significavi, jam tandem quod faustum felixque sit, eo die ac pæne momento quo hæc scribo, hinc ad vos discedunt. . . . Si Dominus dederit vitam et vires mihi, non diu ut spero isti me antevertent apud vos. . . .

Alanus ad P. Agazzarium scribit Lugduno veniens Romam, anno 1579, 7 Septembris.

Rðe Pater,—Tandem Nonis Septembris venimus, laus Christo, Lugdunum incolumes, satis quidem lente sed tamen de via, equo et æstu valde defessi. Præter fratrem et famulum comites habeo ad solatium et omnem necessitatem commodissimos.

Patres Collegii Lugdunensis hic me singulariter recreant : Deus ipsis retribuat.

Ego illis nedum Domino Deo pro omnibus istis beneficiis quæ tribuit continuo mihi non habeo quod reddam, sed calicem salutaris accipiam et nomen Domini invocabo ; invocent quoque pro me istic apud vos omnes patres, fratres et filii mei, mihi mea vita chariores, ut prosperum iter nobis faciat Deus salutarium nostrorum, ut tandem aliquando vobis ac illis reddet etc.

Ad P. Agazzarium et ceteros Rðos Patres in Collegio Anglorum Romæ. Feb. 9, 1580.

Admodum Rðe Pater ac Venerabiles Domini, Hactenus expectata verni temporis commodiori profectio nunc mittimus et in vestram disciplinam tradimus (juxta numerum a R. P. Alano præscriptum) hos sex studiosos Jacobum Lomaxium, Joannem Cornelium, Christophorum Southworth, Joannem Tippetum, Simon Swinburnum, Robertum Charnocum, omnes nostro judicio idoneos et ad vestram expectationem ætate, ingenio, moribus ac eruditione convenienter (quantum in nobis erat) electos atque approbatos . . . Alanus ad Agazzarium, 29 Febr. 1580.

Mi Pater et frater in Christo carissime, Si cum tuis ad dulcissimum nobis collegium incolumis rediisti, bene est ; ego quidem cum comitibus omnibus meis Senas vestras sanus, equis rebusque omnibus integris pridie Cal. Martias veni, cœloque ac via hactenus tam commodis usus, ut cum meis per vestras istic orationes ac sacrificia a Deo multum videar benedici. Equus tamen D. Bavanti ita flacessit ut cogatur

Allen to Agazzari,

20 July 1579.

The youths, about whom . . . on a former occasion . . . I sent you word, now at length, may it prove auspicious and happy, on the day and almost at the very instant that I am writing this, are setting out from hence to you. . . . If the Lord gives me life and strength, they will not, I trust, much anticipate me in reaching you. . . .

Allen, on his way to Rome, writes to Father Agazzari, from Lyons on the 7th of September 1579.

Reverend Father—, At length, to Christ be praise, we arrived on the 5th of September at Lyons safe and sound; and though we came by easy enough stages, yet were we very weary with the road, saddle-sore, and parched with heat. Besides my brother and a servant I have companions who minister to every need and comfort. . . .

The Fathers of this College at Lyons cherish me most assiduously: may God reward them. I have not wherewith to make return to them, still less to the Lord God for all those favours which without ceasing He bestows on me, except to “take the chalice of salvation and call upon the name of the Lord.” Let all the Fathers with you—my brothers and my sons, to me more dear than my own life—likewise make supplication for me, that the God of our salvation may give us a happy journey; so that at length to you and to them He may restore me, etc.

[The Governing body at Rheims] to Father Agazzari and the other Reverend Fathers in the English College at Rome.

Rheims, 9 February 1580.

Very Reverend Father and Worshipful Masters—, Having delayed till this the spring-time for a more suitable time of departure we now send and hand over to your direction—according to the number settled by our Reverend Father Allen—the following six students:—James Lomax, John Cornelius, Christopher Southworth, John Tippet, Simon Swinburne and Robert Charnock: all in our judgment fit subjects; and, as you would expect, for their age, talents, character and accomplishments suitably—as far as lay in our power—chosen and approved. Rheims, February 9th 1580.

Your Reverend Masters' servants in the Lord,

RICHARD BERNARD,
THOMAS BAYLEY,
LAURENCE WEBB,
GREGORY MARTIN.

Allen to Agazzari,

Siena, 29 February 1580.

Father and Brother in Christ most dear—, If, with your brethren, you have returned safely to the College most dear to us, it is well. I indeed with all my companions, have arrived safe and sound at your native Siena, on this the 29th of February, with our horses and all our baggage uninjured; and have so far found the weather and the way so propitious, that I and my friends, through your prayers and Frater vester non est in urbe, quem alioquin germani fratris nostri loco complexus fuisset: ita enim justissimis de causis sum, mi Pater, tuus, ut nullus sit tuæ Reverentiæ vel naturæ vel charitatis legibus conjunctus, qui mihi non sit æque ac tibi charus et gratus; cujus amoris pignus illic tenes Collegium, viz. illud quo nihil est utrique nostrum in rebus mortalibus charius, nec ad æternam conjunctionem nostram aptius aut melius. Ejus omnes alumnos jubeo salvare, meique esse semper memores: ipsorum nomina hæc charta hocque brevissimum ad scribendum concessum mihi tempus non comprehendet, sed descripsi omnes singillatim a minimo usque ad maximum in corde meo, nec ipsorum Patres omnes qui sub vobis in domo illa tantopere pro ipsorum salute laborant et qui mihi indignissimo homuncioni tot charitatis officia jam pridem præstiterunt nominare est opus. In terra et ut spero in cælo ero ipsorum semper memor.

Liceat mihi solum istud vobis oneris imponere, ut Rmum Patrem Generalem et Patrem Oliverium specialiter et eo quo decet et quo scitis me cupere affectu meo nomine salutes: in quo genere ne quicquam in Patrem Personium charissimum mihi caput peccem, ipsi vobiscum has litteras itinerarias communes esse desidero, et si quid præterea peculiaris benedictionis aut benevolentiae impertire vultis meo Paschali, meo in ipsum studio, illiusque vicissim in me observantia dignum erit.

Extra Collegium ubi dabitur occasio, redde officia quæso similia omnibus dominis et amicis nostris, nunc enim plura scribere non possum, ita mihi parum temporis ad colloquium cum Patre Paulo suavissimum in cujus cubiculo hæc scribo, conceditur. Et hic mihi frater Gabriel obtundit aures, ut ipsius nomine vos omnes salutem, D. Elias ut Powellos, Ortonus ut Pricos vobis commendem: P. Thomas sive abundamus in via, sive deficimus, dat gloriam Deo. Omnes salutamus optimum Patrem Ferdinandum. Vale, mi Pater; fratres et filii charissimi, salvete omnes. Raptim Senis pridie Cal. Martias 1580.

Masses in Rome, seem to be under God's special benediction. However Dr. Bavand's horse is growing so feeble, that he will have to think of selling him and buying another either here or at Florence, before the beast is quite worn out. . . . This I add, that those who are to be sent by you on foot may know that they will not experience any great anxiety, toil, danger or loss; for Johnson and the other who set out with us from Rome to walk, have long since passed us on the road.

Your brother is not in the city, or I should have embraced him as one who is to me as my own brother in the flesh; for in such a way, for very good reasons, my Father, am I thine; that there is no one that is bound to your Reverence by the ties either of nature or of grace, who is not in the same measure my beloved friend: and of this love you have there a pledge, to wit that College, than which there is nothing on earth that is more dear to both of us, or more suited to bring us into eternal union in Heaven. I would have you salute all her children and bid them be ever mindful of me. Their names, in the brief space of time afforded me for writing, would not come within the compass of this sheet; but all of them one by one, from the youngest even to the eldest, I hold engraven in my heart. As for all the Fathers,—who under you in that house are labouring for my children's salvation and who have already rendered me most unworthy wretch so many charitable services,—there is no need for me to enumerate them: on earth, and as I hope in Heaven, I will bear them ever in mind.

May I burden you with this commission only, to give, in my name, a special salutation to Very Reverend Father General [Everard Mercurian] and to Father Oliver [Manare] with that affection which is suitable and you know that I desire. In which kind, lest I offend in any way against Father Persons, that most dear friend of my heart, I desire this letter about our journey to be as much his as yours; and if in addition you are good enough to show any special token of kindness and good-will to dear Paschal, my affection for him and his regard for me render him deserving.

Outside the College, when occasion offers, I beg you to render the like attentions to all the gentlemen who are our friends; for at present I can write no more, so short is the space of time afforded me for most delightful converse with Father Paul [Navarola], in whose chamber I am writing. And here they drum upon my ears, my brother Gabriel that I am to greet you all in his name, Dr. Ely to commend to you the Powells, and Orton the Prices: Father Thomas [Darbyshire] whether we suffer penury or meet with abundance on the way, keeps on giving glory to God. We all salute the most excellent Father Ferdinand [Capecci]. Farewell, dear Father; brothers and sons most dear, we greet you all. In haste, from Siena, February 29th 1580.

Reverence, you will easily see, dear Father, with what spiritual profit, by God's help, we have accomplished this journey and returned home to our own countrymen. For my own part, although I have not the slightest misgivings, I eagerly desire to know how you my most dear friends in Rome are in health, if all is quiet, and everything settled about endowment and foundation. Is there fervour in studies and zeal for the house of God, diligence in following the order of the day and whole-heartedness for God? Were those, who were sent lately, approved and admitted? Have those two leaders Robert [Persons] and Edmund [Campion] been sent with your collegians in our direction? Their arrival we are eagerly awaiting, because for some time there has been an excellent opportunity for crossing over to our island. Here is my reason for writing again: the young man M. Frision,* who will hand you this letter, was born here at Rheims of a most excellent family and is a Canon of the principal church.

Salute I beg you, with a holy embrace all ours—your sons and mine—and your fellow-labourers in their training and instruction: everyone, not only those in authority in the house but also the university professors, whom I cherish much in Christ. As to your Father General, whose most devoted son I would be for ever, and concerning Father Oliver [Manare] and Father Provincial [Claudius Aquaviva], by no words, can I do myself justice. If your own language better conveys the feelings of one replete with love and devotion towards them; then strive all you can, dear Father Alphonsus, to unfold all my love and affection in their regard.

Farewell, dearest comrade, and be ever mindful of me. Lastly I beg you to wish, in my name, my dear Ferdinand [Father Capecci] much and continued happiness; and I also desire to tender religious salutations to that pair of novices, sons engendered by our sorrow. . . . Once more farewell always in Christ Jesus our Lord. Rheims, April 9th 1580.

Another letter from Allen to Agazzari, Rheims,—April 1580.

Father reverend and to me most dear in Christ—, Inasmuch as I lately wrote to you at full length about all our affairs, and as there is nothing that it behoves you or me to know, on this occasion I merely make use of your name so that these enclosures may be delivered with greater speed and safety. Take care then, I beseech you, that they be handed immediately to Mr. Archdeacon [Owen Lewis] and the rest . . . and vouchsafe to impart to my most sweet children in Rome every good wish and blessing.

About the Bull of Foundation, as also of Father Campion's coming to Rome, of the journey of my sons in our direction along with Father Robert Persons, and about like matters, I daily long to hear something. I am ever thinking of them, and of you, and of all the Fathers, for "where my treasure is, there also is my heart."

This also, my Father, make known to me,—supposing I may send several scholars to you,—how many they are to be and when they ought to come; and if our most loving Father the Pope wishes

Another letter from Allen to Agazzari, Rheims, 30 April 1580.

My Father—, From your Reverence's letter, written on the 4th of April, I learn with sorrow that in money matters you are being rather hardly dealt with, both as regards the viatic of the students and on the score of domestic expenditure; but I read between the lines that this is due to the present tightness of money and to various extraordinary expenses that press upon His Holiness. I know for a fact that the Holy Father has very great love and solicitude for your College: but, with his usual wisdom, he orders all things in measure and weight; and so I hope that after your second address of supplication, containing your accounts and petitions, you have met with better treatment. About this matter I very much desire to hear; for by your fortunes, whether they incline to the joyful or the sad, I am as much affected as by my own. . . .

By Father Robert's [Persons] letter, received at the same time, I was gladdened and braced up in no small degree on account of Father Campion's coming. Now every day I look with eagerness for them and their companions; for things in England, "ripening for the harvest," are ready for such reapers as they are. This I desire your Reverence to tell from me to Very Reverend Father General and Father Oliver [Manare] with much respect.

As to them . . . I wish joy to the most excellent Father Minister on his promotion to the holy priesthood, and may it be not only an honour but a well-spring of happiness and grace. . . . I ask you also to salute Father Prefect [Father Ferdinand Capecci] and Father Mutius [? Vitelleschi], and would have all my most dear sons to study well, obey well, keep well, and pray for us. Rheims, April 30th 1580.

Allen to Agazzari, Rheims, 3 July 1580.

My Father—, Christ our Lord. . . . Only Father Sherwin now remains at Rouen, by reason of the very great charity he has shown to our friend Paschal, who has been sick . . . almost unto death. . . .

To-day there has come to me at Rheims from England a certain gentleman, who spoke with Father Robert Persons at London, . . . but at that time, to wit the 15th of June, Father Campion had not landed. . . .

In July 1580.

Best of Fathers—, Your Reverence's two letters. . . . Father Persons had departed . . . before your second letter, written on the 16th of June, came to hand. . . .

The Fathers tarried with us for only seven days. During that time, the day before they went away, Father Edmund gave us an address in our own language to try whether, after eight years' disuse, he still remembered his native tongue; but so rapid was the torrent of his words, that with impetuous violence it seemed to overflow its barriers. They went off full of ardour. . . .

The greatest care must be had at this your start, that the young men should not seem to be impelled or have the slightest inclination to your Order, on account of offence and scandal to those who are weak.

Another letter to the Same,

3 August 1580.

Reverend Father in Christ—, On this occasion I am sending several students. . . . They are all fit for Logic: Thomas Stillington however, a youth of gentle birth and of the greatest integrity of character, who is well versed in philosophy, is the only candidate for the course of scholastic theology. This I thought was for the best. . . . I understand that William Hart the elder is a very great invalid and that many think he will be in danger from the Roman climate. . . . Moreover I desire that this schedule of the status and studies of our seminary be copied in Italian, once, twice and even three times; and especially that a copy . . . be given to the Cardinal Protector. . . . The names of those who are being sent are Thomas Stillington, Daniel Hulsworth, Thomas Storey, and a nephew of mine, William Hawksworth. . . .

There also departed hence for Rome two days ago two most excellent men. One of these is of good birth and highly cultured, who a few years back was educated with us at Douay. Later on, having come of age and making some stay in England, he bent his thoughts towards religion in your Society, to enter which, along with his companion a most excellent fellow, he is now making preparation. . . . The better born of these two has the name William Brookesby, the other is called N. Hemerford.

Ego vero si toties te jam nostrorum ignibus probatum, Alphonse Pater, non amarem, colerem, complecterer magis ac magis, vitam mihi acerbam et infelicem putem. . . .

As to my kinsman George Haydock, because he has often ere this written to me on the subject, I should greatly desire that he be received into the Society at least to probation, if it should seem to Very Rev. Father General and to you that doing so would conduce to his own and others' salvation. But if in the future he does not seem likely to be useful I will not take it amiss that he should then be dismissed or rejected. If the Cardinal Protector knows my reasons, he will not I trust be annoyed.

Allen to Agazzari,

Reverend Father—, By the scholars, who six days ago started on their journey. . . . The Fathers in England make wonderful progress, and Father Edmund has often preached at London to a large number of gentlefolk, amid much enthusiasm. . . . The most Reverend Bishop of St. Asaph [Goldwell], as he did not get the Brief in time, and as he thinks that by his long stay here he has become a marked man to the heretics, does not wish to go forward, but left us two days since for Rome. . . . Dear Father—, All your affection for us and your filial love of our Lord are in every way conspicuous through your great patience and zeal in caring for, helping, and cherishing the men of our nation, even then when some of them most basely injured your influence and authority. How much grief I suffered on that account is known to God, and it would serve no purpose to commit it to writing. But if, Father Alphonsus, I did not love, cherish, and repeatedly embrace you, who already have been so often tried by our refining fires, I should deem my life but bitterness and woe. . . .

Allen to Agazzari,

29 October [1580].

At length about the 27th of October your four priests arrived, and with them goes that married man Alred [Solomon Aldred] on his way to England. . . .

The same as above,

10 November.

Do not, I beseech you, complain. . . . As to Gratley or the others his companions, who are now setting out for England, be not anxious; for I too have warned him at great length. . . . At last there have come into our hands the two declarations written some time ago by our Fathers in England embodying such a judgment as they think that they, with God's grace, can and ought to deliver before an heretical magistrate . . . if perchance, which may God avert, they should be arrested. These written fly-leaves pass from hand to hand everywhere among people in England and are a source of strength to many. . . .

The same as above,

30 November.

I have received your letter. . . . As to the Fathers in England I have no details except those which . . . I have sent. This only I know in addition, on the word of certain men who came here the day before yesterday and had heard Father Edmund preaching at London at the beginning of November in a certain great house, before ninety-seven persons of good birth. . . .

The same as above,

7 December 1580.

Pax Christi—, Not to let slip an occasion of sending a letter to Paris. . . . In that place [Rome] I love more than I can enumerate by name. To Reverend Father William, truly the "Good," I have already . . . written, and a little while before I sent him a letter in English about the violent death of that sacrilegious English good-for-nothing. May Jesus keep you all.

The same as above,

11 December.

Begins, Salve in Christo Jesu. . . .

Another letter,

14 February 1581.

Your Reverence's letter, written on the 9th of January, I received along with another from Father William Holt on the 8th of February current. They were, on account of the very glad tidings of the Foundation being settled and about our new Protector [? San Sisto], to me most grateful; and were some counterpoise to the very sad news of that Proclamation against the Seminaries printed and published at London on the 10th of January, notification of which reached me only on the same day that I received your more consoling missive. . . . Again I send herewith a printed copy, to the end that, if it has not been already done, you may see to its being rendered into Latin by some one, or better still, if one of ours in the College or among Patribus Holto et Barreto non vacat nunc respondere. . . .

De Cappellanis unus tantum D. Bavantus est hic in Collegio nobiscum, non denegans Collegio quæcumque potest officia. D. Henricus Heyhamus est Leodii . . . brevi trajecturus in Angliam . . . reliqui quatuor sunt in Anglia operantes cum ceteris sacerdotibus, et unus ex illis quatuor, nomine Rousus, est in carcere Eboracensi: omnes certe pensionibus suis indigent. . . .*

Jam nunc cogitamus de mittendis ad Urbem aliquot studiosis ut conceditis, et crede mihi, licet ex eorum missione multum exonabimur, tamen tanta est indigentia pecuniæ ut vel viaticum hoc tempore sit grave; tamen faciendum est. Aperiat Deus cor alicui magno viro in mundo ut det pecunias: tum possemus mirabilia facere in vita nostra. Patres in Anglia bene valebant in fine Januarii et crescit numerus discipulorum in dies, non obstante hoc edicto et reliqua persecutione gravissima. . . .

De Gilberto quid dicam aut faciam nescio: potiusquam periret aut alios perderet, si ullam habetis de ipso spem, committo vestro iudicio utrum velitis illi dare 15 aureos ad iter pedestre cum proxime mittendis. 14 (vel 24) † Febr. 1581.

the Society or in the city can do it accurately, into Italian; so that its import may reach a wider circle and men may sympathize with our misfortunes and not be ignorant of the efforts made by our countrymen on behalf of religion.

For my part I am just getting ready for the press my Apologie, a Defence of His Holiness, of the Colleges, of Jesuits and priests; a copy of which I will send when it is printed. . . . In the meanwhile I write this letter jointly to the most Reverend Bishop [Goldwell] and your Reverence, in order that his Lordship either alone or in concert with you may plead the cause of our College with His Holiness, and may learn his will as to those things which you will find rehearsed in detail in the said letter. You are at liberty to read it first. . . . I leave all to your wisdom and loyalty, which now is as much affected by our interests as we are ourselves, if ours they be and not rather those of the common weal. Fathers Holt and Barret I have not time at present to answer. . . .

As to the Chaplains only one, Doctor Bavand, is with us here in College, not grudging the College whatever services he can render. Mr. Henry Heyham is at Liège . . . soon to pass over to England . . . the other four are in England working with the other priests; and of the four one, by name Rouse, is in prison at York: all certainly are in need of their pensions.*

At the moment, with your sanction, we are thinking about sending some students to Rome; but, take my word for it, that although by sending them we shall be greatly relieved, still so great is our lack of money that even their viatic at this juncture is a burden: however it must be done. May God enlarge the heart of some great man in the world to give us alms; then could we do great things in our span of life. The Fathers in England were well at the end of January, and the number of disciples increases daily, in spite of this proclamation and all the rest of our galling persecution. . . .

About Gilbert [Gifford],† what I should say or do, I know not: rather than that he should perish or bring others to ruin, (if you have any hope of him), I leave to your judgment whether you decide to give him fifteen crowns to journey on foot with those who are next to be sent. . . . February 14th, 1581.

Allen to Agazzari,

1 June 1581.

Reverend Father, I am sending at this time. . . . In that Reverend Father Good, a man that is good indeed, is to be confessor of the College, I greatly rejoice; for he is especially qualified to form character and skilled in the whole art of direction. . . .

Another letter,

12 August 1581.

Non est mihi necesse, mi Pater, hoc tempore tuis sanctissimis officiis instantius commendare latorem præsentium nobilissimum virum D. Georgium Gilbertum. Illud tantum dico, si quis sit ex tota nobilitate Anglica qui bene meretur de Collegiis, de Patribus, de Religione, de patria, de Ecclesia denique ipsa, is est. Omnia pericula sustinuit, rapinam bonorum lubens passus est. Quæ supererant pæne omnia tam in bonis quam in possessionibus ad Patres sustentandos et Catholicos juvandos impertivit. Videns etiam nostros hic labores et necessitates, juvat non mediocriter hoc anno. Nihil pæne nunc habet reliqui ex amplissimis redditibus præter illam pecuniam quam ad vos præmitti superioribus mensibus curavit. Proinde omni ipsum honore obsecro prosequere, meoque et omnium Catholicorum nomine, quando opportunitas dabitur. Illi ac benignissimo Protectori nostro ipsum commenda, ac etiam quando et quatenus licebit ipsi Sanctissimo Domino Nostro, idque extraordinarie; nam est singularibus meritis et virtute vir. Ceteras gratias ipsius, si vobiscum diu conversabitur, ad magnam uti spero ædificationem experiemini. Christus Dominus det illum vobis incolumem. Vale R. [Allen to Agazzari],

30 August 1581.

There is no need for me, dear Father, on this occasion to commend very urgently to your most charitable services the bearer of these presents, that perfect gentleman George Gilbert. This only I say that if there is anyone of all the gentry of England who deserves well of the Colleges, of the Fathers, of religion, of his father-land, in a word of the Church herself, he is that man. He has faced every danger and endured with joy the spoliation of his goods. Almost all that was left, whether in goods or lands, he has made over to support the Fathers and to help Catholics. Seeing also how here we were in difficulty and want he has helped us handsomely this very year. He now has hardly anything left of a very great income, except the money which some months ago he had transferred to you. Wherefore I beg you to treat him with all honour, both in my name and that of all Catholics, when occasion shall serve. Commend him to our most illustrious and fatherly Protector [? San Sisto]; and even, when it is possible and fitting, to our most holy Lord the Pope himself, and that in no common measure: for he is a man of no ordinary merit and virtue. All his winning qualities, if he stays long with you, you will I trust yourselves get to know to your great consolation. May Christ our Lord send him to you safe and sound. Farewell Reverend Father in Christ and keep on loving us and helping us with your prayers as you do; for you will do as we are doing. Rheims, August 30th 1581.

Allen to Ralph Shirley at Paris, Rheims, 13 September 1581.

(Father Grene—"He congratulates Shirley on his conversion; he died in the English College at Rome on the day of August 1582.")

Do not think, sweetest Ralph, either that the intercourse which lately took place between us has been to me in any way displeasing, irksome or distasteful, or that I have been moved to any anger against you, even when your disease was most acute, as even then I clearly perceived the loveable character of your disposition. Certainly it was not with resentment against you, but with compassion, that my soul was deeply stirred; and, even when you vigorously combated my judgment and my warnings, still I eagerly desired your salvation, and I ceased not by prayer and sacrifice—that unique and most august rite of our religion—to commend most earnestly to Christ Jesus the cause of your soul, that was to me most dear. Yet to no mortal man so far, least of all to yourself, have I thought that this should be revealed. That you did not then agree with us, is assuredly no cause of surprise, for we attribute it to our sins; but in that shortly after you yielded to the Holy Spirit, that is to the Teacher of the Church, and to [grace] most powerfully persuading and most sweetly alluring, you are thrice happy, sweetest son, and De offensione hic nuper nostris hominibus ex vehementiori sententiæ tuæ defensione, ut vereris, data non te angat, Radulphe. Satisfecisti jam omnibus, donasti nobis omnia, cum ad Ecclesiam Catholicam, id est ad te ipsum, per Christum rediisti sospes. Me autem ad futuræ vitæ et studiorum adjumenta atque etiam ornamenta ita velim porro utaris, ut — fratre tuo non possis familiarius aut velis lubentius: qui enim antea familiæ indolis ac educationis causa, te cum adhuc de religione non recte sentiret dilexi, nunc propter communem in Christo et Ecclesia fidem, et cetera, quæ simul summa a Deo tibi obvenerunt dona, majori sane studio te amo et complector; et si me etiam amas ut certe facis, lege quamprimum libros D. Augustini Confessionum, eos maxime qui ejus mirabilis ex Manichæorum secta conversionis historiam complectuntur, ubi aliquid simile in animula tua a Domino actum esse agnosces illi divinissimæ misericordiæ et miraculo erga illum summum Ecclesiæ heroem adhuc errore et superbia occæcatum præstitis. Quid præterea tibi jam sequendum censeam, suggeram plenius amicis tuis duobus qui ad me nuper fusius de illis rebus scripserunt. Ab illis accipies si quid tua interesse existimem. I congratulate you from my heart on this the only highest and well grounded good, and I pray that it may last for ever. And it will be fixed and lasting if from henceforth, in all the ordering of your life and studies, you aim at humility, are fervent in prayer, flee from sloth and contention, and always at the earliest occasion cleanse your conscience from all stain of erroneous views and moral transgressions in the Church's sacrament of penance.

As to the offence which you fear you gave our people here by your over-warm upholding of your opinions, let not that, good Ralph, cause you any distress. You have now made amends to all, you have conceded us every point, in that through Christ you have returned safe and sound to the Catholic Church, to wit, you have "come to yourself." And from henceforth in all your life and studies I would have you so use me as a helper and even as a Mæcenas, that you could not deal more familiarly or more gladly even with your own brother; for whereas formerly, even when you held wrong opinions in religion, I loved you for the sake of your family, your character, and your upbringing; now, (by reason of our common faith in Christ and His Church, and the other highest gifts which at the same time have come to you from God), I cherish and embrace you with far greater affection. And if you love me also, as certainly you do, read as soon as may be, St. Augustine's Confessions, those especially which contain the history of his wonderful conversion from the Manichæan sect, where you will find that there has been wrought by God in your dear soul something similar to the marvels of His plenteous mercy bestowed on that hero of the Church when still enveloped in the blindness of pride and error. What course I think you ought further to pursue I will intimate at greater length to your two friends, who have lately written to me very fully on those matters. From them you will learn whatever I deem to be to your interest.

Farewell, in haste, from Rheims, September 13th 1581. Wholly yours,

WILLIAM ALLEN.

Allen to Agazzari,

Rheims, 29 September 1581.

I must recommend to your Reverence . . . (Grene—"besides three others whom here he nameth"), this fourth student John Lowe, a man more advanced in age, prudence and learning. To him, who many years since was educated with us and in the Society's College at Douay, I long ago promised a nomination for Rome; and this he has now earnestly begged for, on the plea that he can pay his way on his own account. For my part I think he ought to be sent for this reason alone, because it seems to me that he will be very serviceable to your company of young men through his steadiness, constancy, obedience, and the whole influence of his life; for such men as he, acting as a leaven among our youths here, are a great help to maintaining good order and concord. I am sending you Father Campion's little book . . . so that my Reverend Father and your Father General, may see what I may term the truly beautiful offspring of his son and subject. . . . Recepi lubentissime litteras R. P. V. Mediolani quo salvus et incolumis . . . appuli die 16 Junii et [ob] hujus sancti Cardinalis [Grene,—S. Carol. Boromæus.] erga me propensionem tantam humanitatem experior, ut a patre filius majorem non posset exspectare. Summam fere rerum suarum mihi committit. Brixien., ut sui gregis vultum cognoscat in tota Provincia 17 aut 18 Episcopatum. Aberit credo Mediolano usque ad mensem Septembris, nec enim aut æstus aut pluvia aut frigus aut ullum impedimentum eum ab officio faciendo remorari potest. D. Caimus quem salutavi ex R. V. P. [mandato] mihi dixit per Secretarii multas occupationes deinde morbum, febre enim laboravit, ac jam demum absentiam, nondum scriptas esse Cardinalis litteras quas R. P. V. brevi habebit.

down Leigh as being in holy orders when he had only minor orders. As a matter of fact it is not quite clear that in the said letter Richard Leigh is included among those who were in holy orders.) The rest are partly students of Logic and partly Grammarians, Edward Osbaldeston + John Jetter (See the Diary of the Tower; captured 14 August, grievously tortured 1 September 1582). Edward Oldcorne + Edmund Arrowsmith (is this the martyr?) Christopher Bayles + Christopher Buxton + John Pibush + John Hewett, martyr + Anthony Middleton + (I omit many others here mentioned). All the above-named are in our College at Rheims.

The following we have placed in the Society's College at Verdun, until they are a little more fitted for higher studies, Thomas Hesketh (nine more named, I omit). Altogether there are about 130 under our care. Among all these there are not more than sixteen who live at their own charges, or rather who were received on the terms that they should live at their own expense; but they cannot fulfil the conditions, for this class are in debt for 500 crowns. That we may be able to support and give spiritual succour to a greater number, we must needs enforce a more frugal diet on every one. Reckoning up all in the way of rations, those who keep up the best style do not spend more than two crowns per head each month. There are thirty most excellent young men whom we must support at a crown a head per month; for they live on bread and broth, with butter and suchlike. In spite of observing this frugality and moderation yet we have spent, during the year ending with Christmas Day, . . . 3804 crowns, so dear are lodgings, clothes and books and so heavy the burden of dispatching students. Besides the above total, books printed or now in the press during this same year stand in at least 1600 crowns Still all these things are as necessary for the advancement of religion as the elements are for life. From Rheims, January 15th 1582.

WILLIAM ALLEN.

Dr. Owen Lewis to Father Agazzari,

From Milan, 8 July 1580.

I received with very great pleasure your Reverence's letter at Milan, where I arrived safe and sound on the 16th of June, and by reason of the affection of this holy Cardinal [Grene—"St. Charles Borromeo"] for me, I experience such great kindness that a son could not expect greater from his father. Almost all his affairs he entrusts to me. Lately, when he got better of a slight fever, straightway he was off from here to finish his visitation even in every parish of the diocese of Brescia, so that he may know his flock by sight throughout his whole province of 17 or 18 bishoprics. He will be absent, I believe, from Milan until the month of September; for neither drought nor rain, frost nor any hindrance can check him from doing his duty. Dr Caimus, whom from your Reverence I have saluted, has told me that, by reason of his secretary's manifold occupations and subsequent sickness, (for he was ill of a fever), and finally through Here from the most excellent Fathers of your Society I receive every service of love and charity, and I love them reciprocally in the Lord. I eagerly await your letter about the long waited for Bull for establishing that College, and also for news of its happy progress, and also about its prosperous condition, mutual charity etc. of those young men to me most dear; from whom not without sorrow and considerable perturbation of mind I was recently torn away. II. FROM THE VATICAN ARCHIVES.

Dr. William Allen to Dr. Owen Lewis.

n.d. [Douay, before 8 November 1576.]

A copy of a letter of the Reverend Dr. William Allen, without date or place, to the Archdeacon of Cambray [Owen Lewis]; in which the words here underlined (italics) were written in cipher.

Reverend Sir and of mortals most dear—, In what straits and dangers we live, we signified in our last letter, sent not so long since by way of Paris; for in these times letters cannot safely be sent by Belgian posts, nor have we for a long time received anything from you, which we think is due to interception. At this time when the populace,—by reason of their suspecting a league between us and the Spaniards, whom they all pursue with mortal hatred and who by their laws may be harried to death,—had been stirred up against our people, we have given to our magistrates and to the civil assembly,—along with a catalogue of all Ours, in which we have put down each one's age, studies, status, and place of abode,—a certain document, wherein we have shown clearly and explicitly that there can be no danger from Ours to their city or state, that our numbers are much less than uninformed people would think, being, apart from Scots and Irish, only 170 individuals; that the majority of these, namely 100, are either priests or students in theology or candidates dwelling under my charge, following a most blameless and religious regime, who have never caused the slightest annoyance, and that if ever there threatened any danger from them, I would be their surety with my liberty and my life; therefore that we earnestly begged that we might use and enjoy the privileges of a University, and like other nations have the favour of their protection. And when the magistrates had accepted this paper and carefully inquired into our case, certain professors had a decree published that no citizen, under penalty of exile and confiscation of his goods, should by word or action make himself obnoxious to our schools or nation. And so now for a little while we are at rest, through the grace of God, and in consequence of this we have dispatched and soon will dispatch many priests to the harvest-field in England.

The gentlefolk, who lived outside the seminary, have for the most part gone away of their own accord, because they distrust the restless mob. We shall suffer severely if God favour not those holy designs on behalf of our nation. As much as we can we urge on our Master Dr. Stapleton, who is of himself quite eager to undertake the pilgrimage to Rome for the sake of devotion; but he knows nothing at all about the enterprise. He will be a very fit person to send among the leaders with the fleet. I hope that he will come [to Rome]. If he comes, there is no need for me to ask your Reverence kindly to introduce him to the illustrious Cardinal of Como; nor for that matter to proffer frequently to his Eminence my

III. CORRESPONDENCE FROM JESUIT ARCHIVES.

A. Memorial on the English Hospice, Rome.

MS. original, Anglia Foundationes Collegiorum, ff. 1-9. This important paper is unfortunately neither signed, directed nor dated. The date 1568 is clearly indicated by internal evidence. It must be before the end of that year, as the Douay Seminary is not mentioned; and it certainly would have been, if it had existed. Again it cannot be earlier than the beginning of 1568 as the writer (ad fin.) speaks of the exodus of Catholics from England "during these nine years," and that exodus began in 1559. That it was written in Rome is fairly clear, as the writing is on Roman "Palomba" paper, but that point is not material. That the addressee was St. Francis Borgia, then General of the Jesuits, is also probable, though again not very material. The person addressed is entitled both "Reverendissime Pater," and also "Celsitudo," an odd combination, but well fitting St. Francis Borgia, who was a Spanish Grandee. The paper is found in the Jesuits' Archives; though to be sure it might have got taken there after the college came under Jesuit government. The chief difficulty seems to be that Jesuits never had, and were never likely to have, jurisdiction over the persons concerned: on the other hand, if the Hospice was to be turned into a college, as the writer eventually says that he desires, Jesuit help might be very useful.

That Allen was the writer seems likely on several accounts. He visited Rome at this time, he is reported to have had a difference with the chaplains at the Hospice (C. R. S. ii. 62), he was likely to desire to change the Hospice into a college: the final words about the proposed college at Douay would suit him admirably.

most humble services. For to that man are we indebted for all, yea for our own lives and the salvation of our nation. As to the paper which I lately gave to Sir [Francis] Englefield, and which I think he has sent in cipher to the Cardinal of Como, I have written in another letter, and how opportunely the enterprise can now be carried out, since the present state of confusion in Belgium would remove all suspicion. All that is necessary within and without we are getting ready; but we are in great want of money, and yet I do not see how you can send even his Holiness's monthly allowance. Do all you can, I pray, with the Cardinal of Como, that with his usual kindness he sees that we are paid.

I do not write to his Eminence, because with you merely as an intermediary, all this that I write is for the Cardinal of Como himself. His lordship the Earl of Westmoreland is in the camp at Antwerp consulting his own safety. I shall easily persuade Dr. Hall to go with me where I will. I must stay here, rather than at Cambray, on account of the needs of our countrymen. Farewell in the Lord Jesus.

WILLIAM ALLEN.

Note by Dr. Owen Lewis.

Dr. Stapleton and Dr. Hall, above mentioned, are professors of theology at Douay, the most eminent—after Dr. Allen—of all our countrymen in Belgium; and are men most conspicuous for learning, piety, and prudence.

Endorsed, Archdeacon of Cambray.

III. CORRESPONDENCE FROM JESUIT ARCHIVES.

The difficulty is rather with the tone of the writer. As the reader has seen from the letters to Agazzari, Allen is usually amiable and loving in the highest degree. This writer is evidently rigorous, and suspicious, and of his amiability little proof is given. Compare for instance the severe judgment here passed upon Thomas Sackville in §§ 19, 20, with the very different tone of the letters from dignitaries of the highest rank, printed in C. R. S. ii. 1-11. On the other hand, Allen's character had many sides, and his sterner qualities can be seen in the Papal and Spanish State Papers, and especially in his Admonition. It must also be remembered that Pius V. was then reigning, "vigour and rigour" were everywhere in the ascendant. It would be no wonder if Allen had reflected the temper of the day.

If the tone of this writer should not be thought consistent with Allen, and especially if § 41 contains a display of anti-English spirit in the matter of Goldwell's Welsh see, we should have to consider the claims of some one else for the authorship, and our choice should then I think incline to Dr. Morris Clenog. He was in Rome at the time. His signature to the Sackville testimonial (C. R. S. ii. 3) is tinged with a curious reserve. He was somewhat anti-English. He desired the change of the Hospice into a college, and eventually contributed much to bring this about (C. R. S. ii. 97, etc.). One phrase seems to make for the Allen and against the Clenog authorship. The writer says he is "in ipso profectionis articulo" (fol. i.). But Dr. Morris did not leave Rome, while Allen did. The translation which follows is by Father Joseph Rickaby, S.J.

(fol. 1). Reverendissime Pater. Fateor me diu multumque dubitasse, silendane essent prorsus nostrorum hominum mala an his qui quacumque ratione medicinam facerent ad meliorem rerum statum revocarent aperienda. Silentium imperarunt nostrae gentis dedecus & quod peregrini non esse arbitrarer in aliena republica esse nimis curiosum, maxime autem quod speraverim domesticis piorum virorum consiliis omnia potuisse fieri meliora, simul timuerim ne duriora contra totam gentem ob paucorum errores semper posthac indicta fierent, eumque ipsum qui primo rem aperuisset & reprehensioni multorum & odio, si res aliter quam ex sententia caderet, obiiciendum. Sed cum videam malum hoc in dies magis magisque crescere, domesticis consiliis non posse comp[oni] intollerabili quorumdam insolentia pios aliquot sacerdotes & sepe antehac & proximis hisce diebus tantopere perturbari, ut qua par fuit animi tranquillitate Divinis nequiverint inservire officiis, in publico fratrum conventu de re quaque horrendis clamoribus disceptari, omnia ex affectibus non qua debent aequitate administrari, remque aliquomodo spectare ad pugnam, per summam ignominiam a factiosis quibusdam tacta concussaue sacerdotum corpora, ne in tantis odiis caedes aliquando contingat, posse optima ratione timeri, eosque ipsos sacerdotes quorum est & illustrior hoc ipso tempore pietas & in Anglia antehac maior fuit honor in ecclesia, magis cogitare in alio quocumque loco licet tenuissime, quam in tanta rerum perturbatione intra hospitale vivere; hoc etiam agi a perturbationum auctoribus ut exclusis piis soli regnent. Consilium fuit fontes aliquot istorum malorum tuae prudentiae aperire, quae facile possit tanta aequitate singula, apud eum cui in his ius dicendi potestas erit temperare, ut quod in paucissimis aliquot seditionum ducibus corrigendum reperietur, id non patiatum ad totius gentis ignominiam & incommoda in publicum ullo unquam tempore prodire, Deum testor me nullius odio adductum, ut quae maxime occultari conveniebat ea in ipso fere profectionis articulo patefacerem, sed oculos totos ad dignitatem nostrae gentis & bonum publicum nostrae Britanniae coniecisse, ut nostrates in hac celeberrima totius orbis Christiani Civitate aliquando absque turbulentis factionibus vivant, suorumque studiorum in sacris presertim literis, quae cum tantis tumultibus nulla esse possunt, insignem aliquem fructum in Anglia nostra, si unquam ad se redierit ad amplificandam Dei gloriam heresesque conculcandas una secum referant. Volunt ex his singuli videri se reliquisse omnia, patriam, parentes, cognatos, amicos, dignitatesque ecclesiasticas propter Christum. Sed ita relinquere ut quod reliquum est aetatis factionibus perturbent, hominum est certe

Very Reverend Father—, I confess I have hesitated long and much as to whether the ills of our people should be altogether buried in silence, or should be opened and made known to those who might be able in some sort to remedy them and bring about a better state of things. Considerations urging me to silence were the slur that would be thrown on our nation, and the reflection that it ill became a stranger to pry too much into the affairs of a commonwealth not his own, especially as I saw hope that all things might have been mended by the domestic counsels of pious men, and likewise I was afraid lest for all time to come unduly harsh judgments might be formed of our whole nation for the errors of a few, and that he who had first broached the matter might be exposed to general reprehension and hatred, should the issue belie his hopes. But whereas I see that this mischief is growing every day, and cannot be assuaged by measures devised at home,—that within the last few days, as often before, the intolerable insolence of certain parties has so much upset sundry pious priests that they have been unable to perform Divine Service with proper tranquillity of mind,—that whenever there is a public meeting of the Brethren on any business, the discussion is carried on with horrid shoutings,—that the whole administration is marked by party-spirit and a lack of equity, and that proceedings seem likely to terminate in a free fight,—that the persons of priests are most dishonourably handled and shaken by factious disputants, and that there is very good reason to fear that such hatreds may some day end in bloodshed—and that those same priests, whose piety is more distinguished at the present time, and whose position in the Church was more honourable in past time in England, are thinking of going to live in any other place, however poor, rather than in the midst of disorders such as are to be found in this Hospice, and that is precisely the object which the authors of these disturbances have in view, to shut out the pious and have things all their own way;—in this situation I have made up my mind to disclose to your prudence some chief sources of these evils, trusting that you will easily be able so to manage each point with him, who shall have the power of dealing juridically with the case, as not to allow the matter to become generally known, to the great disgrace and manifold inconvenience of the whole nation. I call God to witness that no hatred of any man has induced me, almost at the moment of setting out, to publish what called for secrecy, but that I have looked with all my eyes solely to the honour of our nation and the public good of our dear Britain, my wish being that our countrymen may come at last to live without turbulent factions in this most frequented city of the whole Christian world, and may carry back home with them, if ever our England returns to herself, some signal fruit of their studies, in Sacred Letters especially, for the increase of God's glory and the extirpation of heresy, fruit which it is impossible to gather where disorder runs so high. These men, all and each, want to make out that they have left all things for Christ: country, parents, relations, friends, and ecclesiastical dignities. But to leave these things, and then spend the rest of their days in the turmoil of factions, non satis considerantium in quanta ignominia rerumque suarum iactura versantur hi qui aedificare cœperunt quod absolvere non poterant. Itaque visum est non accusantis more sed denunciantis charitate articulos quosdam interrogatorios in scriptis tuae Celsitudini tradere, quibus si tempore visitationis, delato (f. 2) ab eo cui ea potestas delegata erit singulis confratribus tactis evangeliiis aut in verbo sacerdotali iuramento, vera in scriptis separatim responsa dentur, magnam partem mali, quae hactenus tot dissidia peperit, credo posse pateferi, aequumque videri, ut tanti hospitalis proventus non ad tam paucos pascendos, qui otio ac seditioibus indulgeant, proscribantur, sed ut exclusis qui perturbarunt, seminarium aliquod doctorum virorum studiosorumque iuvenum Anglorum constituatur, qui & scholas publicas frequentabunt, & privatim etiam domi exercentur in literis sacris, casibus conscientiae, questionibus theologicis & ceteris ad subvertendas hereses maxime idoneis, docto aliquo ex Anglis viro privatim ut haec fiant deputato, singulorum dierum pensum exigente.

1. Primum igitur querendum video, an libri accepti expensique habeantur in quibus scripta sint omnia quae postremis hisce annis sedecim in hospitali exposita sunt, quantusque fuerit vere peregrinantium toto eo tempore singulis annis numerus; id si aliquo anno aut annis non sit factum, cuius culpa cessavit id fieri?

2. An sit aliquis ex confratribus qui aliquot annis intra hospitale vixerit, cui nemo unquam de servanda fide hospitali statutisque servandis iuramentum detulerit?

3. An sint vel fuerint ex confratribus ulli, qui domos meretricium suspectarumque mulierum frequentarint, ibique bonas horas consumpserint & facultates, aut qui intra cameras suas concubinas aluerint?

4. An sint ex confratribus qui ante paucos annos parum aut nihil in bonis habuerint, vixque ipsi sibi ad vitae necessitates suffecerint, qui subito ditati, ut apparuit, ex summis praemiorum in montibus, nullam aliam putantur collectarum opum rationem posse adferre, nisi fraudis factae in rebus hospitalis?

5. An sit ex confratribus ullus, qui absque congregationis consensu ausus sit aedes ullas vel vineas hospitalis ad terminum annorum vel aetatum inquilinis locare?

6. An sit ex confratribus ullus, qui sacerdotis confratris famam per convitia, contumeliosaque verba ausus sit denigrare?

(f. 3.) 7. An in publico confratrum conventu, repertus sit ullus qui horrendis clamoribus, brachiorum, manuumque iactationibus pedumque supplosionibus non sedato quietoque sermonis genere usus sit, ut quod maxime cuperet fieri aliquando evinceret?

is surely the behaviour of men who fail to consider the disgrace and loss of labour which they incur who have begun to build what they were not able to finish. Therefore, I have thought it well, not as one accusing but as one in charity denouncing, to deliver to your Lordship certain written articles of interrogation. If at the time of visitation the person to whom such authority shall be delegated shall tender on oath on the gospels, or on the word of a priest, to each of the Brethren, and true answers are given in writing by each of them separately, I believe that great part of the evil, that hitherto has caused so many discords, may be brought to light. It seems reasonable that the revenues of so large an Hospice should not be assigned to the support of such a small knot of persons, indulging in idleness and dissensions, but that the authors of these troubles should be shut out, and a Seminary be founded of learned men and studious English youth, who shall frequent the public schools, and also be privately trained at home in Sacred Letters, in cases of conscience, in theological questions, and other exercises especially adapted to the overthrow of heresies; and to this end some learned Englishman should be privately appointed, whose business it should be to require an account of work every day.

1. The first point of enquiry I see is this, whether books are kept of receipt and expenditure, in which are written down all disbursements made in the Hospice these last sixteen years, and what was the number of genuine pilgrims all that time, year by year: item, if in any year or years this has not been done, by whose fault did it fail to be done?

2. Whether there be any of the Brethren who has lived for some years in the Hospice, without anybody tendering him the oath of keeping good faith to the Hospice and observing the statutes?

3. Whether there are or have been any of the Brethren who have frequented the houses of prostitutes and women of ill fame, and wasted there good hours and substance, or who have kept concubines within their chambers?

4. Whether there be any of the Brethren who, a few years ago having little or nothing in the way of goods, and being scarcely able to maintain themselves in the necessaries of life, have on a sudden become rich men, as it has appeared, out of the premiums given by the monti di pietà, and are thought to be able to produce no other account of the wealth they have gathered than that of fraud practised on the goods of the Hospice?

5. Whether there be any of the Brethren who, without the consent of the Body, has dared to let to natives of this country for a term of years or lives any houses or vineyards belonging to the Hospice?

6. Whether there be any of the Brethren who has dared to blacken the character of any priest of the Brotherhood by abusive and insulting words?

7. Whether there be any one who at a public meeting of the Brethren has made use of horrible cries, waving of arms and hands, and stamping of feet, instead of a sedate and quiet manner of discourse, to carry his point?

8. An sint ex confratribus ullis qui officiiis divinis intra suam cappellam minime interesse consueverint ?

9. An sint ex hospitali ulli qui Anglorum hereticorum patrocini-um, ut quacun-que ratione occultarentur, susceperint ?

10. An sint ex hospitali ulli qui aliquot Anglos hereticos intra civitatem vel singulis noctibus, vel secunda quaque nocte diversorium mutasse cognoverint ne ab inquisitoribus hereticae pravitatis caperentur ?

11. An sint intra hospitale ulli, quibus aliis rationibus provisum est, qui in magna piorum doctorumque Sacerdotum calamitate, quibus alias ab hospitali succurri poterat, una cum suis famulis in hospitali vivant, camerasque occupent, quas longe aequius erat ab aliis confratribus quibus desunt necessariae habitari ?

12. An confratres laici, quibus idem omnino, quod sacerdotibus singulis fere diebus celebrantibus, penditur stipendium, putent ad suam ignominiam pertinere quod in magno sepe ministrorum defectu qui celebraturis inserviant, nullo adhuc tempore reperti sint, licet alias otiosi, in eo genere officium praestitisse ?

13. An confratres laici ad eam insolentiam venerint, ut superiores partes in choro & in mensa publica sibi vindicaverint, sacerdotesque qui eo ipso tempore interfuerint, ad ima deiecerint ?

14. An fratres laici una cum sacerdotibus in loco ad id designato antiphonam singulis noctibus cantent, ac in loco quisque suo, ut par est, preces una cum sacerdotibus pro fundatoribus & benefactoribus fundat ?

15. An sint ex confratribus qui, quocumque venerint Angli in urbem tempore si se pro nobilibus venditaverint, nullo omnino habito discrimine hereticine sint an Catholici, eos vel privatim ad suam vel ad publicam mensam invitent ?

16. An fuerint qui in sacerdotem aut episcopum confratrem manum in conventu publico vel alibi irati iniecerint ?

(f. 4.) 17. An N. Gorgeus * quidam Anglus heresiarcha magnus, eius reginae quae nunc regnat stipendiarius, ab ullo ex confratribus ad lautum invitatus fuerit convivium in hospitali ?

18. An Ioannes Deus † sacerdos uxoratus, magicis curiosisque artibus deditus, ab ullo ex hospitali invitatus sit ad convivium ?

19. An Tomas Sackfeldus, ‡ nobilis, una cum Gulielmo Trevers, hereticus & schismaticus, qui contra supremam Summi Pontificis auctoritatem in conventu omnium ordinum in parlamento stetit, unquam ab ullo ex hospitali ad mensam invitatus sit ?

* From Foreign Calendar, 1563, n. 188, it appears that there was an English agent called George, who was secretly carrying letters from Florence to Pisa, and elsewhere in Italy.

8. Whether there be any of the Brethren, who is not at all in the habit of attending Divine Service in his own Chapel?

9. Whether any members of the Hospice have taken English heretics under their patronage, that in any way they might escape detection?

10. Whether any members of the Hospice have been aware of sundry English heretics within the City changing their lodging every night, or every second night, so as not to fall into the hands of the Inquisition?

11. Whether there be any within the Hospice, who have other means of support, and who nevertheless live in the Hospice along with their servants, and occupy rooms which it were much more equitable should be inhabited by other Brethren, who lack necessary shelter, there being great distress among pious and learned priests for whom the Hospice can find no means of succour?

12. Whether the lay Brethren, to whom the same allowance is made as to priests who celebrate almost every day, take it to be any disgrace to them that, while there is often great want of servers at Mass, they have never yet been found to have rendered any service of that sort, though they have had nothing else to do?

13. Whether the lay Brethren have reached such a pitch of insolence as to claim for themselves the high places in choir and refectory, and thrust down to the lowest places priests who happened to be present at the time?

14. Whether the lay Brethren along with the priests sing every night the Antiphon in the place thereto appointed, and each one in his place, as is fitting, pours forth his prayers along with the priests for founders and benefactors?

15. Whether there be any of the Brethren who, at any time that any English come to the City and give themselves out as gentlemen, invite them either to their private table or to dine in Hall, without question raised whether they be heretics or Catholics?

16. Whether there be any who in anger have laid a hand on priest or bishop of the Brotherhood in a general meeting?

17. Whether a certain — George, an Englishman, a great fomentor of heresy, in the pay of the Queen who now reigns, has been invited by any of the Brethren to a splendid dinner in the Hospice?

18. Whether John Dee, a married priest, given to magic and uncanny arts, has been invited to dinner by any member of the Hospice?

19. Whether Thomas Sackville, a nobleman, along with William Trevers a heretic and schismatic, who at the meeting of the estates of the realm in Parliament took his stand against the supreme authority of the Sovereign Pontiff, has ever been invited to table by any member of the Hospice?

20. Whether the same Thomas Sackville has ever been suspected of heresy at Rome, and by what Englishmen's interposition was he set free?

21. Whether — North, a nobleman, a heretic, who serves at table the Queen now reigning, has ever been invited to the Hospice?

22. Whether [Francis] Newton, Dean of Winchester, a fomentor of heresy, Vice-chancellor of Cambridge, who, acting as the Queen's delegate, a little before his coming to Rome, put in execution the schismatical laws which England now accepts to her own ruin, was ever in the prison of the Inquisition at Rome, and by aid of what Englishmen was he set free?

23. Whether the said Newton was ever invited by English friends to the Hospice? Whether N. Stanhope, a heretic, was ever at Rome in the power of the Inquisition, and by whose aid was he set free?

24. Whether a certain heretic, whom the Reverend Bishop of St. Asaph had subjected to ecclesiastical censures without his being in any way amended thereby, was afterwards at Rome invited to the table of the Hospice, and who invited him?

25. Whether there have been any in the Hospice who have played at dice and cards, and what grave discords have thence arisen between the servants among themselves and among the Brethren?

26. Whether an heretical goldsmith sent from Trent, along with two others of the same kidney, received hospitality at the Hospice during the whole time of their stay in the City, by whose favour this was done, and in whose room did they lodge?

27. Whether there be any one of the Brethren, named by will heir or executor, who after deceased's death either failed in due fidelity in the payment of legacies and other prescribed arrangements, or administered the goods of deceased in a way quite alien from the mind of the testator?

28. Whether there be any of the Brethren who have in charitable banks for the lending of corn or money or in any other banks, a good round number of gold pieces, from the interest of which they are able to provide for their own support? And upon this heading let each one give evidence against his own acquaintance and, so far as possible, also against strangers.

29. Whether there be any of the Brethren who at any hour have drawn to their own uses within the Hospice what used to be repositories of things necessary for the service of their church?

30. Whether, now that there is found such a very small body of genuine pilgrims coming in from England, the Brethren in their compassion for young men still laymen have extended in some cases to two or three months, in others to an entire year, in others to two or three years, the benefit of eight days' hospitality which by ancient ut tanto tempore ex sumptibus hospitalis vivere permiserint, sacerdotum vero quorumdam (quorum vita multis iam annis ita fuerit hereticorum odiis exposita, ut & facultates omnes in Anglia amiserint & in Anglia sine gravissimo vitae periculo vivere non potuerint), adeo nullam rationem habuerint, quamvis suam calamitatem aperierint, meliori etiam existente hospitalis conditione quam unquam antea, ut ne unius quidem mensis beneficium eisdem concesserint?

31. An lecti habeantur in hospitali idonei omniaque ad eam rationem necessaria ad excipiendos vere peregrinantes, ut non sit opus ad ea vere peregrinantibus suas pecunias exponere?

32. An confratres cubent in illis ipsis lectis, qui solebant esse peregrinantium, sordidis quibusdam lectis ad usum peregrinantium relictis?

33. An sex habeantur lecti in hospitali S. Edmundi, instructi ad usum pauperum peregrinantium; ut statuto antiquo cautum est?

34. An confratres sacerdotibus peregrinantibus, quorum ipsi conditionem viderent satis esse afflictam, pro mensa in singulos menses duriores pensiones imposuerint, laicis quibusdam eodem ipso tempore, in eadem mensa sedentibus longe faciliores pro mensa in singulos menses pensiones praescripserint?

(f. 6.) 35. An fuerit ex confratribus, qui ex officio tenebatur aedes vineasque hospitalis cognoscere, qui tamen studiose negaverit quasdam vineas hospitalis esse, quas aliorum fratrum diligentia ad hospitale postea pertinere compertum est?

36. An is confrater, cui ex officio incumbit, diligenter curaverit ad singulas aedes hospitalis intra urbem Trinitatis imaginem, ut statuto cautum est, depingi?

37. An quaecumque decreta sunt a confratribus in Congregatione sua, ut testimonium maneat quam iuste in quaque re decreverint ac ne per oblivionem aliqua inde oriatur discordia inter confratres, quod sepe fit, in tabulas opera custodis relata sint hospitalis publicas: quod si non sit factum, qui impediunt?

38. An sit ex confratribus, qui quoniam nullis certis legibus in officio contineri [vult], sed omnia ad suum arbitrium agere, unquam contenderit hospitale nulla habere statuta: articulorum etiam ab illustrissimo Cardinale approbatorum, quorum ille ipse pro sua parte fuerat auctor, non ita magnam habendam esse rationem; qui aliquando ut onera hospitalis declinaret, dixerit domum illam non hospitale, sed Collegium appellandum, ut Collegii iura subterfugeret hospitale appellandum, ut utriusque nec hospitale, nec Collegium, sed Confraternitatem voluerit appellari?

statute was due to pilgrims of the poorer sort, and so have allowed these young laymen to live all that time at the cost of the Hospice, while they have taken no account of certain priests, who have lived now many years exposed to the hatred of heretics, and during that time have lost all their possessions in England, and can no longer live in England without grave danger to life, so that though these priests make known their unhappy plight, and the funds of the Hospice are more flourishing than ever before, nevertheless they have not been vouchsafed the boon of so much as one month's entertainment?

31. Whether proper beds are kept in the Hospice, and all other things necessary for the reception of genuine pilgrims, so that it be not necessary for such genuine pilgrims to lay out their own moneys to that purpose.

32. Whether the Brethren sleep in those very beds which used to be set aside for the accommodation of pilgrims, and leave certain other foul beds for those pilgrims to make use of?

33. Whether six beds are kept in the Hospice of St. Edmund for the use of poor pilgrims, as was enacted by ancient statute?

34. Whether upon pilgrim priests, whose condition they saw to be one of great hardship, the Brethren have imposed heavy monthly payments for maintenance, while for certain laymen, sitting at the same time at the same table, they have arranged monthly payments at a far easier rate?

35. Whether there was one of the Brethren, whose official duty it was to take cognisance of the houses and vineyards of the Hospice, who nevertheless steadily denied certain vineyards to belong to the Hospice, which were afterwards discovered by the diligence of other Brethren really so to belong?

36. Whether the Brother, whose official duty it is, has taken diligent care to have the image of the Trinity painted on every house belonging to the Hospice within the City, as is by statute provided?

37. Whether all decrees of the Brethren in their Congregation assembled are entered in the public register of the Hospice by the care of the Custodian of the same, to the end that there may be a standing testimony to the justice of their decrees in each particular, and that hereafter there may not arise any discord among the Brethren, as often happens, through the decrees being forgotten? And if this has not been done, what persons stood in the way?

38. Whether there be one of the Brethren who, because he wishes to be kept to his duty by no fixed laws, but to do all things at his own discretion, has ever contended that the Hospice had no statutes,—that even of the articles approved by the Illustrious Cardinal, to which articles this person himself, so far as in him lay, had given his sanction and adherence, not so much account was to be made,—one who, to escape the burdens of a Hospice, has said that the house should not be called a Hospice, but a College,—who, to elude the laws of a College, would have it called a Hospice,—who, to get out of both, has wished it to be called neither Hospice nor College, but a Brotherhood?

39. An ut exequiae singulis mensibus celebrantur pro fundatoribus & benefactoribus, ita etiam non obscure dicatur sed cantetur missa sequenti die pro eisdem, confratresque omnes tam laici quam sacerdotes huic missae intersint ?

40. An fuerit ex confratribus ullus tam attentus ad rem, ut cum in principio Summi Pontificis Pii Quarti Romam venisset, magnopere contenderit ut solus omnibus hospitalis proventibus potiretur ; & cum eam infinitam habendi cupiditatem magni aliquot viri non approbassent, atque aliquot confratres obsisterent, factiones quasdam inter laicos & sacerdotes aluerit, quae ad hoc usque tempus manent non sine gravissima confratrum per totam fere Angliam ignominia.

(f. 7.) 41. An fuerit ex confratribus, qui satis avide captarit praelaturam ecclesiasticam apud populos cuius linguam non intellexerat, & post mortem Mariae Catholicae Reginae, & illustrissimi Cardinalis Reginaldi, statim ut ingresi sunt die proximo Reginae Elisabethae commissarii ad explorandum statum domusque & familiae Cardinalis mortui, instantissime sollicitarit coram multis testibus ut iidem ipsi commissarii apud Reginam agerent ut in manus Reginae liceret illi praelaturam suam resignare, nullas alias adferens sui resignationis causas quam quia animus esset redire ad religionem quam antea professus fuerat, & quod populi linguam cui praeficiebatur omnino non intelligeret ? & si haec facta sint, dicatur quantum inde ortum fuerit scandalum, quantamque inde ignominiam passi sunt prelati Catholici, quod prelati qui auctoritate Sedis Apostolicae creati essent, cuique erat in bello usque ad effusionem sanguinis fortissime stetisse, ut timidus lepus antequam ullae essent exortae tempestates, statim videretur usque adeo animo fracto, ut de nulla re magis quam de fuga cogitarit. *

42. An ille ipse confrater, quo tempore omnium ordinum in Anglia celebrabatur conventus, & decretum erat parlamentum ad subvertendam religionem Catholicam, Londoni fuerit, & primus omnium a ceteris prelati defecerit, qui a Catholica fide fortiter contra hereticorum rabiem steterunt, clanculum se subducens ut eo tempore per extraordinariam visitationem aliquid tueri ad fugae solatium quaeriret ? idque non sine gravissimo populi scandalo, si ita factum esse conperiat.

43. An ex confratribus ullus, paulo ante quam se in fugam daret in visitatione sua extraordinaria ad colligendum iniustum quæstum, spurium aliquem & nothum, meretricioque concubitu natum, absque

* It seems quite possible that the person on whom the above information reflects was Dr. Thomas Goldwell. He was with Pole at the time of his death. He belonged to the order of Theatines, having made his profession at Naples, 28th October, 1550. He was consecrated Bishop of St. Asaph in 1555, and fled from England in 1559. St. Asaph, again, lies in a district of Wales in which Welsh is still spoken. He was appointed to his see by the Pope, and he did not appear by the side of the Bishops during their noble struggle in 1559. On the other hand, the memorialist

39. Whether as a dirge is sung every month for founders and benefactors, so also on the day following there is Mass not said without solemnity, but sung; and whether all the Brethren, laymen as well as priests, are present at this Mass?

40. Whether there has been any one of the Brethren so attentive to his own interests that, on his coming to Rome at the beginning of the Pontificate of Pius IV., he made great efforts to get sole command of all the revenues of the Hospice, and, when certain men of high position disapproved his insatiate desire of gain, and when some Brethren opposed him, fomented factions between laymen and priests, factions which continue to this day, to the great disgrace of the Brethren nearly all England through?

41. Whether there has been of the Brethren one who greedily intrigued after Church prelacy among a people whose language he did not understand; and, after the death of Mary the Catholic Queen and the Illustrious Cardinal Reginald, the very day after that event, when Queen Elizabeth's Commissioners entered the house to take cognisance of the state of house and household, did he not in presence of many witnesses most earnestly entreat the said Commissioners to treat with the Queen for permission to be granted him to resign his prelacy into the Queen's hands, alleging no other reasons for his resignation than his purpose of returning to the Religious Order in which he had formerly made his profession, and the fact that he had no knowledge at all of the language of the people over whom he was placed? And if these be facts, let it be told what scandal has hence arisen, and what disgrace the Catholic Prelates have suffered, inasmuch as a Prelate, created by authority of the Apostolic See, a Prelate whose duty it was to have stood bravely in war even to the shedding of his blood, behaved like a timid hare, and before any storms had arisen showed himself so broken in spirit as to think of nothing rather than of flight.

42. Whether this same member of the Brotherhood, at the time that the meeting of all the estates of the realm was being held in England, and a Parliament had been summoned for the subversion of the Catholic religion, was at London, and was the first of all to fall away from the other Prelates, who made a brave stand for the Catholic faith against the rage of heretics, secretly withdrawing on pretence of making an extraordinary visitation at that time, his object being to secure some provision for his flight; and that not without grave scandal to the people, if the fact be proved so to be?

43. Whether there has been any of the Brethren, who, a little before he took to flight, in the extraordinary visitation which he made to gather unjust gains, appointed Dean of his Cathedral had not rightly understood the case. Goldwell had been nominated for the see of Oxford before the death of Mary, and probably, for this reason, did not receive any summons to Parliament, against this omission he made his protest in an extant letter, in which, however, he asks leave to depart the realm. But this was not granted, and he did not go abroad till he was practically forced to do so. 47. An charitatis esse existiment confratres, ita sibi ipsis favere ut preter statuta ex articulis, quorum ipsi tantum auctores sunt durante schismate in Anglia, ipsi ex sumptibus hospitalis soli vivant, & singulis annis quot possint aureos in thesaurum communem reponant, ac cum audiant Summi Pontificis Sanctitatem & Regem Catholicum eleemosinas suas liberaliter misisse ad succurrendum rebus afflictis Catholicorum sacerdotum piorumque iuvenum, qui relicta Anglia satis misere in Belgio, Hannoniaque vivunt, ipsi de ea quam possint eleemosina mittere nihil cogitant, qui alioquin sine hospitalis subsidio in eadem calamitate viverent, tantasque repositas in tam calamitoso tempore opes ad predam sua sponte incusarent ?

48. An sint confratres, qui quacumque in re possint hospitali prodesse, suam operam denegant ?

44. Whether there has been one of the Brethren who enriched with many ecclesiastical benefices, and finally set as Archdeacon over his Cathedral Church, a wicked and wanton young man named Roger, a dicer and cardplayer, yea and a married heretic ?

45. Whether the Brethren have any one to play the organ during time of Divine Service, as the statute provides ?

46. Whether the Brethren fill the vacancies on the roll of the Brotherhood with the names of persons who may some day be of signal service to England by learning and example of life, and not rather with those whom they think will not scruple to take any side to serve the cause of faction ?

47. Whether the Brethren consider it to be an office of charity so to help themselves as that, in neglect of the statutes, by virtue of certain Articles enacted of their own sole authority during the schism in England, they live, to the exclusion of others, at the expense of the Hospice, and every year set aside as many gold crowns as they can for the common fund ; and when they hear that His Holiness the Sovereign Pontiff and the Catholic King have sent liberal alms to succour the afflicted state of Catholic priests and pious youths, who have quitted England and are living in poverty and misery in Belgium and Hainault, they never think of any alms that they could send, albeit that, but for the aid of the Hospice, they would be living in the same calamitous condition, and in that case would be the first to find fault with the laying up of so much wealth for booty at such a calamitous time ?

48. Whether there be Brethren who refuse to help in any matter in which they could be of service to the Hospice ?

49. Whether there be any of the Brethren who are allowed to be absent from the Hospice longer than is proper ?

50. Whether there are any servants in the Hospice who have ever been suspected in point of religion ?

51. Whether among the Brethren in the Hospice there be any one who, in this our country's evil time, is in the habit of catechizing the ill-instructed English folk, a great number of whom are ignorant of many articles of faith ?

52. Whether by the carelessness of the Brethren any vineyard or house has been lost to the Hospice ?

Since in this wicked time of schism there is not the influx that formerly was of genuine English pilgrims coming to visit the holy places and the relics of the saints, and consequently the English Hospice is put to far less expense over the entertainment of pilgrims, while at the same time a great crowd of learned men old and young

B. [Dr. Allen to Fr. Everard Mercurian, on the Conversion of England.
Anon. s.d.l. ; probably Rome, 1575-6.]

Anglia Hist. i. 585. One of the first acts of Gregory XIII. with regard to England was to summon Sander, Allen, and Englefield to Rome for a consultation. Sander was allowed to stay at Madrid. Allen and Englefield were in Rome by February 20th, 1576, Allen perhaps earlier.

The following document was, if we may judge by the Roman watermark on the paper, written in Rome. Its author was one of the founders of Douay (cf. § 2), who bore a great love to that institution (§ 6), and was most probably Allen. It was addressed to the Jesuit General or to one of his chief officials. From the reference to Campion's reception as a novice we get the date of its composition as the end of 1575 or thereabouts.

In form the paper suggests memoranda on the English mission to be discussed with the Father General; with the object of obtaining Jesuit co-operation in the interests of the Douay-Rheims Seminary, and also of getting Jesuits sent into England.

1. Eboracum, Vintonia, Neocastrum, Dunelmium, Cestria, Derbia, Lancastria, Richmondia, Lincolnia, et in tota pene septentrionali Angliae parte, ac in omni veteri Britannia, quam Walliam vocant, civitates et celebriores urbes sunt minus corruptae.

for the sake of true religion have lost all their property, and have emigrated from England into Belgium and the neighbouring provinces, and for the last nine years have borne dire hardship, not having wherewithal to support life, I think that I am making a reasonable request, considering the falling away of the zeal of genuine pilgrims, in asking for one of two things,—either that such a number as the English Hospice can well support should be brought up there to the study of letters and true piety, and thus the Hospice be made a fruitful seed-plot, or seminary, of Englishmen studying Sacred Letters at Rome in these hard times,—or, if that petition cannot be granted, then that, by the authority and proper motion of the Sovereign Pontiff, an adequate number of gold pieces be transmitted from the Hospice to Belgium for the upkeep of the studies of such as, under the discretion of learned men, wish to unite in one society for the prosecution of Sacred Studies with all care and diligence possible. Their labours will some day bring about the deliverance of England from heresies, and these men will form a fine body of evangelical workers apt and diligent to keep the people true to their allegiance. So far, all these nine years, we have seen nothing done in the Hospice worth regarding in this direction. The inmates have had their livelihood, but they have taken no thought of the great issues at stake. Some, I doubt not, have lived in due piety and religion; others have bent their endeavours to the amassing of treasure, which they hope to make their own private booty in time to come, when the rest depart.

1. [Catholic districts in England.]—York, Winchester, Newcastle, Durham, Chester, Derby, Lancaster, Richmond, Lincoln, and in almost the whole northern part of England, as well as throughout ancient Britain,—Wales as they call it,—the cities and more populous towns are less corrupted.

But, on account of the greater number of merchants and intercourse with heretics, there is more infection, chiefly in those towns quentiores infectio; nullum tamen est in quo homo pius et prudens fructum fidei catholicae facere non possit plurimum.

Sed civitatum minor est ratio apud nos quam reliqui populi: cum principes, magnates, nobiles et honestioris conditionis fere omnes in castris, praediis, ac pagis et non in urbibus versentur; quorum propterea conversio est facilior.

2. Universitates sunt duae, Oxonium et Cantabrigia; prior est veteris fidei observantior, unde fere collegimus Seminarium Duacenum. Licet ex ipsa Cantabrigia nonnullos hoc anno evocaverimus, quo aliquos submisimus ex Duaceno Seminario. Neque enim bene gerendae rei occasiones desunt etiam in haeticissimis locis.

Praeter ista duo gymnasia, Londini existit celebre admodum iuris municipalis Britannici studium, ac varia collegia omnium pene totius gentis nobilium, qui ut recte instituantur plurimi interest. Apud quos per divinum auxilium mirum in modum his annis profecerunt nostri, tum praesenti colloquio, quia nusquam tutius delitescunt quam Londini, tum maxime libris de omni argumento controverso vulgari lingua in vicino Belgio scriptis et importatis, ut hodie non modo in illa celebri urbe sed in ipsa aula Catholici fautores habeant.

3. Stanleiorum, Talbuttorum, Wrisleorum, Suthwardorum, Sturtonorum, Tonstallorum, Fitzherberdorum, Arundeliorum, Brownorum, Gagiorum, Shelleorum, Gerardorum, Rusorum, Cottamorum, et maxime nobilium quarundam faeminarum de fide Catholica satis nota sunt nomina; nec desunt in ulla provincia quo divertant operarii, licet non semper sine periculo.

4 et 5. Duaci, Iovani et alibi in Germania inferiori sunt multi doctrina, zelo et prudentia sacerdotes; Thomas Stapletonus, Richardus Hallus, Ricardus Bristous, Gulielmus Smitheus; Licentiati Thomas Methamus, Gregorius Martinus. Item celebres viri, Thomas Hidus, Joannes Martialis, Gulielmus Taylerus, Edwardus Forsterus, Thomas Baylius, praeter alios juniores presbyteros in Duacensi Seminario optime ad hanc spem institutos.

Romae in Hospitali Anglorum et alibi per urbem plurimi sunt doctores, quorum notitiam et nomina hic facile capere potestis, et qui sint huic negotio magis idonei.

6. Seminarium Duacense tale est ut, sine eo nihil in hoc genere fructuose tentari posse videatur, et ex eo summa ac certa spes rei bene gerendae existat.

Primum; quia ex eo abunde suppeditabuntur operarii continuo solertissimi ad eam rem quam desideratis specialibus regulis et institutis informati, cum caeteri, licet docti et alias idonei sint, suo that lie nearest to France and Belgium : there is not one however in which a man, who is devoted and yet prudent, may not reap a very rich harvest for the Catholic faith.

But we reckon less on the cities than on the rest of the people : for the chief men and notables, the nobles and those of honest condition, for the most part are soldiering, farming or living in the country, and are not city-folk ; and thus their conversion is easier.

2. [The Universities and Inns of Court.]—There are two universities, Oxford and Cambridge ; the former is more responsive to the ancient faith, and from thence we mostly recruit our seminary at Douay. Still, even from Cambridge, we have this year had some who responded to the call ; and into that place we have slipped certain of Ours from Douay seminary. For even in the most heretical spots there are not wanting occasions for helping on the cause.

Besides those two training-places, there is at London a very famous curriculum for English civil law, with various Inns frequented by all the gentry of almost the whole nation ; and that these men be rightly instructed is of primary importance. Among these, through the divine assistance, Ours have in recent years made wonderful headway, both by personal intercourse,—for nowhere do men lie hid more safely than in London ;—and especially by books in the vulgar tongue, on every topic of controversy, written in the neighbouring country of Belgium and imported : so that at the present time, not only in that great city but even at court, Catholics have their champions.

3. [Catholic Families.]—Of the Stanleys, Talbots, Wriothesleys, Southworths, Stourtons, Tunstalls, Fitzherberts, Arundels, Browns, Gages, Shelleys, Gerards, Rouses, Cottams, and especially of certain noble women, the names are sufficiently well known for their adherence to Catholicity. There lack not in any county places whither the workers may betake themselves ; though not always without danger.

4 and 5. [Exiled Priests.]—At Douay, Louvain, and in other places in Lower Germany, there are many priests of learning, zeal and prudence : Thomas Stapleton, Richard Hall, Richard Bristow, William Smith, and Licentiates Thomas Metham and Gregory Martin. Also these notable men : Thomas Hyde, John Marshall, William Taylor, Edward Forster and Thomas Bayley ; besides other younger priests in the seminary at Douay, excellently suited for this our project.

At Rome, in the Hospice of the English and elsewhere through the city, there are very many doctors, knowledge about whom, and their names and who are most fit for this enterprise, you will there easily acquire.

6. [Douay, our mainstay.]—The Seminary at Douay is so great a factor, that without it it would seem we could not make any attempt to good purpose in this kind ; for on it depends our best and surest hope of doing our business well.

Firstly, because from it we shall get a plentiful and unfailing supply of workmen, who are very skilled and trained by special rules and regulations for that end which you desire ; whereas the others,— more propriisque studiis et impensis viventes, se libenter et ultro fere non dent, et compelli in hoc opus congrue non queant. Hoc autem nostrum seminarium huic operi specialiter comparatum tam institutione sua quam studiosorum voluntate, ex suae sanctitatis munificentia dependens, et unius Rectoris arbitrio vivens dabit semper obedientissimos homines. Neque enim hactenus quisquam,—cum multos in dies in hoc ministerium designaverimus,—a Rectore nominatus recusavit unquam. Deinde valde necessarium est tale collegium ad institutionem uniformem mittendorum et ut tollatur schisma inter operarios, quod facile et summa eius pernicie accidit inter eos qui clanculum, libere, et sine necessitate reddendae rationis suae vitae et doctrinae, ibi opus domini faciunt ubi nullum habent superiorem cui pareant.

Porro hoc seminarium non tantum iuvat ex eo quod operarios satis multos praeparet ac det, sed etiam imprimis ex eo quod eius fama et institutionis sustentationisque commoditas indies avocet ex omnibus Angliae partibus atque ex ipsis universitatibus optimae indolis ac spei iuvenes partim haereticos partim prorsus religionis ignaros, quibus omnibus hactenus ita faeliciter successit, ut nullus unquam nisi conversus ac confirmatus ab ea societate discesserit. Quibus modis non solum spoliantur haereticorum universitates optimis quibusque ingeniis, sed ad futuram religionis restaurationem viris aptissimis per dei gratiam abundabimus.

Dabit ut speramus ex hoc pene septuagenario numero, quo nunc illud collegium constat, decem singulis annis sacerdotes, longaque plures daret si certis et sufficientibus eleemosynis sustentaretur. Nam darent se universi ex Anglia in hoc seminarium, si ulla spes esset vel mediocris sustentationis, multosque nunc non sine magno dolore venientes recusare cogimur.

Tantumque valuit sex annorum in hac re praxis, ut passim advolent multorum nobilium filii partim invitis, partim conniventibus parentibus, ut jam prae institutione Duacena suas academias domesticas contemnere plaerique incipiant, decemque etiam haereseos ministri ibi catholicorum fidem didicerint et nunc constanter profiteantur.

Reliqua ex parvo scripto adiuncto peti possunt.

learned though they be and otherwise suitable,—as they live at their own charges, and pursue according to their bent their own lines of study, for the most part will not offer themselves freely and willingly, and cannot well be pressed into this service. But this our Seminary, specially designed for that enterprise both by her constitutions and the fixed resolve of her sons, depending as she does on the bounty of his Holiness, and living under the rule of a single Rector, will always furnish men who are very obedient. And as a matter of fact not one so far, when his name has been called by the Rector, has ever refused; although day by day we have assigned many to this apostolate.

Secondly, such a college is very necessary to train and fashion those who are to be sent, and to remove from among the workmen all cause of dissension, which—with all its baneful effects,—easily springs up among those, who—in a life of hiding, unchecked by obedience, and under no necessity of giving an account of their manner of living and doctrine—do the work of our Lord in England, where they have no superior whom they should obey.

Lastly, this seminary is a help, not only because she educates and furnishes quite a number of labourers, but also—and this is very important—because her renown and the facilities she affords for board and education daily allure from all parts of England, and especially from the universities, promising young men of most excellent character, some of them heretics and others altogether ignorant of religion; and with them all she so far has had such happy success that no one has ever left her fellowship except reformed and strengthened in character. And so by these means, not only are the heretical universities despoiled of all their most talented subjects, but—by God's grace—we shall suffer no dearth of most suitable men to restore religion in time to come.

Douay, from the present total of all but seventy at which that college stands, will supply—as we trust—ten priests every year; and she would furnish many more were she only sustained with assured and adequate alms. For all from England would enrol themselves in this seminary, if they had any even moderate hope of being supported: many that now come we are forced, not without much sorrow, to turn away.

So great an influence too has our six years' course of action exercised in this kind, that from all sides there flock to us the sons of many gentlefolk, some against the will and others with the connivance of their parents: so that, with Douay foundation as a standard of comparison, very many begin to despise their universities at home; moreover ten heretical ministers have there learned the Catholic faith and now profess it without flinching.

The rest may be found in the small memorandum annexed.

7. [English Jesuits.]—There are also in your most holy Society certain men very well qualified for this function: they are very skilful and most learned—and that too in the judgment of their own countrymen, which counts for much.

Two years since there was also received one Edmund Campion, in the estimate of his own countrymen a most brilliant orator and of most ready wit; I know not whether he abides in the province of Austria or in that of Bohemia. But what our countrymen of your Order are fit for, you yourselves are the best judges; of a truth after your training and moulding they ought, without a doubt, to be quite the best equipped men for this enterprise. But whether any Englishmen may be of service for the conversion of other nations, we cannot so easily judge; as, so far we have had no experience of that apostolate and have never laboured in it: if any there be, they are certainly in your Society.

Much further we can discuss by word of mouth.

[Father Everard Mercurian] to Dr. William Allen at Rheims, [Rome], 5 January 1579.

All your Reverence's tender love and boundless zeal for religion were in every way manifest in the letter which I lately received from your hand. For in that you displayed so much solicitude for the salvation of your own people, and so greatly extolled our labours on their behalf, we gladly recognize that all this springs from your charity and desire for God's glory. And we, although we see clearly that our strength is but small, nay is weakness itself, and is altogether unequal to what our position calls for, yet in desire and in will we proclaim ourselves to be so keen to help all men and especially your country of England, that we greatly yearn for some occasion to be given us of labouring for that sorely tried kingdom; nor are we without hopes that God will at sometime afford us this opportunity. Assuredly in the meantime we will not cease, by the only way we can,—namely by our own prayers and masses and those of our subjects—from commending that intention to our Lord God.

The English College, as I deem your Reverence is aware, to us a great source of joy, flourishes daily more and more, having a most excellent procurator, the Most Reverend Archdeacon Mr. Owen, and a most generous patron and father, in the person of our most holy Lord the Pope, who cherishes it with wonderful love and assiduity. We too, if in our weakness and amidst the multitude of obligations we have already undertaken, we can be of any service, will not be wanting to such an excellent enterprise, but will assist those excellent young men of such great virtue and talent, will aid the cause of common charity, and especially will respond to your Reverence's recommendations. May Christ our Lord, of His loving-kindness, be ever bountiful to your Reverence with His grace and heavenly gifts. January 5th 1579.

[Fr. Mercurian] to Dr. Allen at Rheims, Rome, 3 June 1579.

In that your Reverence thanks us so earnestly for undertaking the care of the College, you both make plain the piety and zeal that is in you, and spur us on to bear with greater energy the burden we have accepted. But we, when it shall seem good to God to make use of any small efforts of ours in that kind, will proffer them so gladly and so zealously, for the sake of those young men endowed with such graces, sterling qualities, piety and love of God, that all our labours for that end will be seen to be directed to the most excellent purpose. Certainly we are inspired with this hope, that even though we be somewhat lacking in skill and perseverance, yet their eminent abilities and their characters (seen by all to be excellent, will like a fertile field, although he who works it be not very expert), spontaneously produce an immense harvest, to the glory of Christ our Lord and England's salvation.

Nor will we, as far as lies in our power, fail in any way in labouring for the Foundation, in obedience to your Reverence's admonition. On this head we cordially approve of your Reverence's design of uniting the systems of the two Colleges, and this project we will, on a fitting occasion, lay before His Holiness, who, as he has taken up the whole affair with such ardent enthusiasm, gives us grounds for hope that he will not require any urging on our part, to perfect and complete a noble work set on foot for the glory of God. It only remains for your Reverence to beg of our Lord a long life, sufficient time and means for His Holiness to carry this out; and for ourselves, in what we too as far as in us lies are doing towards that end, a great abundance of heavenly gifts and graces. Rome, June 3rd 1579.

[Father Oliver Manare] to Dr. Allen at Rheims, Rome, 7 August 1580.

Although it be against my will that I inflict on your Reverence the grief, which I know you will feel at such sad tidings, still I had no choice but to make known to you the news whatever it was, both because on the score of friendship you had a right not to be left ignorant about anything that befel us, and also in order to answer the letter which you wrote lately to our Father General. You must know then, that it has pleased the divine goodness, when we did not expect it and almost suddenly, to snatch away from us our Father. For although he began to be ill on the 13th [of July], and his disease, at least in the beginning, did not seem to be serious, yet it soon reached such a crisis, (especially when it attacked his head, which Nunc quod ad eius litteras attinet, primum grata nobis fuere quae de nostrorum in Angliam discessu scribebat, atque etiam de spe quam habebat feliciter eos aut iam pervenisse aut cito perventuros. Quod utinam faxit Deus pro sui sancti nominis gloria et illius regionis spirituali utilitate. Etiam D. Quod attinet ad Anglos in Societatem recipiendos grata nobis fuit Dīs Vae admonitio. Non poterat D. Va quasi unus ex nobis eam plagam accepisse et sensisse videatur. Sed tamen, quoniam ita fuit Dei voluntas cui omnes vivimus et cui morimur, nos quoque eae cogitationes quas D. Va scribebat consolantur, et praecipue spes illa quod is e coelo et nos et nostra precibus adjuvare non cesset. Quod autem mihi D. with him was much weakened, by reason of his continual strain of mind) that at length on the first day of August, about half-past three in the morning, he passed from this life to our Lord, as we trust, leaving us with a great yearning for him, by reason of our great esteem for his piety and virtue, both at all other times and especially during this sickness. Later on when the regular Congregatio was held, to appoint a Vicar, it seemed good to those Fathers to assign that office to me unworthy. This event, I decided to make known to your Reverence, to the end that you might pray for me to our Lord the more assiduously the less fit I am for so great a burden, and also to offer to you myself and all the service I may be able to render, for your sake, to our Lord God.

To come now to your letter: in the first place, very pleasing to us was what you wrote concerning the departure of Ours for England, and also as to the hopes you entertained that they had already arrived or soon would arrive. May God so bring it about, both for the glory of His own holy name and the spiritual profit of that kingdom. Moreover, your Reverence will do us and all Ours a favour, if at your convenience you make known to us whatever you may hear about them in time to come.

As regards receiving Englishmen into the Society, we were pleased with your Reverence's advice. You must know, however, that here so far there has not been a word said or any mention made of them; so that I wonder from what source that rumour reached you where you are. If at any time there is question of them, we will be mindful of your counsel; and nothing shall be done which we do not deem will tend very greatly to the glory of God. And so, as nothing else occurs for me to write at present, I will make an end, praying our Lord to fill your Reverence and all your friends with His grace and the gifts of Heaven, and I commend myself to your prayers and holy sacrifices. Rome, August 7th 1580.

[Fr. Manare] to Dr. Allen at Rheims, Rome, 27 October 1580.

Your Reverence could not have manifested more clearly or more explicitly your affection and at the same time that wide-reaching charity of yours towards us all than by the expressions of grief with which you have learned of our most excellent Father's departure from this life; so that even we ourselves, to whom that blow came nearer home, could scarce have shown more heartfelt sorrow: assuredly your Reverence would seem to have heard of and grieved over that misfortune just like one of Ours. And yet,—since such has been the will of God, “to Whom we all live and to Whom we die,”—those thoughts which your Reverence tried to express in writing are a consolation to us also, and especially the hope you suggested that he from Heaven will not cease to help us and our interests with his prayers. Now as to your Reverence's commending to me the College and those young men, you must rest convinced that I will leave undone no service that I can render, both by reason of my own puto, nihil omissurum quod a me praestari possit; et nunc quidem per me quod possim deinde vero etiam apud Patrem Generalem, quem nobis divina bonitas dabit, strenuum et diligentem procuratorem fore.

Pro nostris qui in Anglia in tanto periculo, ut D. Va significat, versantur, preces facere quidem non cessabimus et speramus Christum Dominum pro sua misericordia famulis suis in suo opere versantibus et sua causa periclitantibus minime defuturum; sed tamen si quid eis continget, non tam dolebimus jacturam duorum talium operariorum, quam nos consolabitur quod pro justitia et pro Dei causa patiantur, quae vera est beatitudo. Neque certe contingere eis aliquid potuit, quod et nos qui misimus et illi qui missi sunt non antea praeviderent esse posse, et ad illud, si accideret, ferendum, animo se et cogitatione armarint.

Thomas Hybernus quem D. Va suis literis commendabat, etsi magna locorum et aliarum rerum angustia premeremur, tamen tum Dīs Vae commendatione, tum suis precibus et adeo etiam lacrymis, tandem pervicit ut admitteretur; nondum tamen statuimus quo eum loco admittamus, Romaene propter eas quas dixi angustias an alibi; sed omnino recipietur.

Ex duobus autem Anglis quibus item D. Va in iisdem literis testimonium dabat, alter quidem junior Gulielmus cum Romam venisset, nobis etiam non magnopere renitentibus, judicavit hoc ad rationes suas aptius fore, si studia sua inter convictores Collegii in praesenti prosequeretur. Alter, etsi nos diu multisque precibus fatigavit ut admitteretur, tamen quia maturior erat et in iis literis, quae nostris usibus opportunae sunt, non admodum profecerat et certe quia facultas non suppetebat ad plures novitios alendos, nobis auctoribus faciendum sibi putavit, ut in Collegio prius aliquid sibi earum praesidium pararet, quo deinde Angliae suae utilior esse posset. Illud mihi magnam quidem consolationem attulit, quod vidi his commendationibus, et praeterea cohortatione illa qua nos animabat, ne omnino Anglis ad Societatem adventum praeccluderemus, quanto D. Va desiderio non modo communis ecclesiae, sed etiam peculiare Societatis commodum et progressum exoptet. Qua in re confido per Domini gratiam ita nos eius consilio usuarios, ut neque cuiquam secus de nobis loquendi rationem praebeamus, et simul difficultatibus nostris, quae certe tantae sunt ut talibus desideriis satisfieri vix possit, consulemus. Dominus autem Jesus Christus Dī Vae pro ista ejus pietate digna reddat praemia, eamque semper conservet incolumem. Romae, 27 Oct., 1580.

promptings, and because by so acting I think I shall be doing a thing very much in accord with the wishes of our Father General of pious memory; that already I am doing what I can of my own power; and that later on I will be an active and unwearied suitor with the Father General, who shall be assigned us by God in His goodness.

On behalf of Ours, who, as your Reverence notifies, are encompassed by such great peril in England, we will not cease to make supplication, and we trust that Christ our Lord, of His mercy, will in nowise be wanting to His servants, who are about His business and incurring danger in His cause. And yet, even should anything happen to them, we shall not so much grieve for the loss of two such workmen, as be filled with consolation, in that they suffer for justice' sake and for the cause of God, which is happiness unalloyed. Certainly nothing can happen to them, which either we who sent them or they who have been sent did not already foresee as a contingency, and by courageous meditation have steeled themselves to bear it, should it come to pass.

Thomas the Irishman (whom your Reverence commended in your letter, though we were hard put to for lack of room and other necessities, still both by reason of your Reverence's commendation, and also by his own entreaties, and of a truth also by his tears), has at length prevailed so as to be admitted; however we have not yet settled where to receive him, whether it is to be at Rome, on account of the difficulties I mentioned, or somewhere else; but he will certainly be received.

Of the two Englishmen however, to whom your Reverence in the same letter also gave an introduction, he, that is younger, namely, William, when he had arrived in Rome, decided (with no great opposition on our part) that it would better suit his purposes, if he continued his studies for the present among the convicts of the College. The other, although he has wearied us with many a long entreaty to be admitted, still because he was somewhat advanced in years, and had not made much progress in those branches of letters which are suited to our pursuits, and because we certainly had not the means to support more novices, at our suggestion, decided so to arrange matters as first of all to acquire in the College some store of literary culture, through which he might hereafter prove of more service to his native England. It was certainly a great source of consolation to me, because I saw by these introductions and also by that exhortation in which you urged us not to cut off Englishmen altogether from entering the Society, with what great eagerness your Reverence desires not only the profit and advancement of the Church universal, but also that of the Society in particular. On that head I trust, through the grace of our Lord, that we shall so use your counsel, that neither shall we give any one a handle to speak of us in any other sense, and at the same time take measures to meet our difficulties, which assuredly are so great that it is almost impossible for us to satisfy such requisitions. Now may our Lord Jesus Christ bestow on your Reverence a reward befitting your tender love of Him and keep you ever unscathed. Rome, October 27th 1580.

Credo iamdudum istuc perlatum et a Dñe Va etiam intellectum quid divina de me providentia in hac nostra Congregatione statuerit; * neque dubito de illius caritate tum in me tum in Societatem nostram, quia utrimque debitum compassionis affectum nobis praestiterit; mea, quod onus tam grave tam imbecillis viribus ferre cogar, Societatis, quod cum ei multo melius consuli posset, itum sit ad eum qui minime omnium id facere valeret. Sed tamen quoniam Dei consilium mutari non potest, superest ut D. Va istam suam caritatem in id potissimum iam conferat, ut quam maximam mihi a Dño gratiam impetret, quae imperfectum meum impleat, ut quo ego minus pro me possum, eo plura possim in eo qui me confortat. De me vero et nostris omnibus nihil esse puto quod nos Dñi Vae offeramus; scit enim nos totos suos esse, et ita certe debemus pro eius praestanti religione et perpetua in hanc nostram Societatem humanitate. Itaque si quid erit quod pro illius obsequio possimus, erit nobis gratum admoneri, in eoque omnem operam et laborem nostrum libentissime consumemus. Inter quae molesta illud tamen gratum fuit audire quod nostri adhuc salvi erant; sed illud multo gratius, quod strenue et viriliter pro Dei causa laborabant, neque cum exiguo fructu. Qui quidem fructus magis nos animavit ad insistendum coeptis quam eorum assidua pericula deterrere potuerunt. Itaque toti eramus in hoc ut plenior missionem illuc destinarem; quod iam a nobis perfectum esset, nisi generalia Congregationis negotia nos adhuc occupatos tenuissent; brevi tamen, ut spero, conficiemus, eosque istuc ad Dñm Vam mittemus, ut eius consilio et prudentia dirigantur. Quare nihil iam est aliud in praesenti quod scribam, nisi ut me Dñs Vae precibus et sacrificiis magnopere commendem, cui vicissim et Dñs omnium coelestium donorum

* Aquaviva had been elected General of the Society, 19 February, 1581.

Postscript for Dr. Allen.

When I had written this there was given me another letter from your Reverence, bearing date 25th of September, and one from dear Father Robert, from which I derived great pleasure in learning what was his condition and that of his brethren. And so I thank your Reverence, whose energetic zeal has brought it about that they should reach my hands; I will communicate them as soon as possible to the Cardinal of Como, and he perhaps to his Holiness.

[Father Claudius Aquaviva] to Dr. William Allen at Rheims, Rome, 6 April 1581.

I believe that some time since the news has reached you and that your Reverence is aware of what divine Providence has decided in my regard in our present Congregation. I do not doubt of your charity both towards me and towards our Society, because on either score your due sympathy makes you well affected in our regard; for my sake, because with strength so feeble I am forced to bear a burden so heavy, and for the sake of the Society, because whereas her interests could have been so much better consulted, recourse has been had to one who least of all could supply her need. However, since God's design may not be altered, I have only to beg your Reverence to direct your charity chiefly to this object, to beg of our Lord for me as much grace as possible, to make up for my shortcomings, so that the weaker I am of my own powers, the more I may be able to effect in Him Who is my strength. But as regards myself and all Ours there is not I think any fresh offer we can make to your Reverence: for you know that we are wholly yours; such certainly we ought to be, by reason of your eminent loyalty and unceasing kindness towards this our Society. And so, if there be anything in which we can be of service to your Reverence, it will be a pleasure if you tell us; and to that end we will most gladly exert ourselves in every effort of toil and labour. A few days ago we heard here from dear England what was much against the grain, namely that there had been raised against the Catholics a persecution so great, that scarce ever for many years back has there been one more severe; with which bitter tidings it was a dash of sweetness to hear that Ours were safe so far, and still more was the news that they were toiling with every nerve and right manfully in the cause of God, and that too with no scanty harvest. It is this harvest that has encouraged us to go on in the way we have started, more than their ceaseless perils have been able to act as a deterrent. And so we were quite bent on this, to wit sending thither still more missionaries, and this would already have been carried into effect by us, had not the general business of the Congregation still kept us occupied. But in a short time, as I hope, we will effect our project, and will send them thither to your Reverence, to be disposed according to your prudent calculation. And so there is nothing else for me to write at present, except to commend me greatly to your Reverence's prayers and sacrifices; on whom in requital may God bestow an abundance copiam, et propriis sanctisque eius laboribus ad ecclesiae utilitatem toleratis amplam mercedem retribuat. Romae, 6 Aprilis 1581.

Quod D. Va Rda, quemadmodum scribit, et antea Patris nostri optimi Everardi obitum adeo moleste tulerit, et in praesenti adeo gratuletur de hac sorte quae super me cecidit, utrumque mihi magnum indicium est eius caritatis, et benevolentiae, et eius, quam suis literis praedicat, intimae cum Societate nostra coniunctionis. Atque utinam, sicut iure et merito de altero dolet, ob insignem iacturam quam in tali viro totque insignibus dotibus praedito omnes fecimus, ita in altero quod ad me spectat, aequae iustam haberet laetitiae et gratulationis causam, et non potius, ut ego quidem sentio, cum me ipsum respicio, non haec ipsa causa tum illam plagam magis ostendere, tum etiam dolorem magis augere possit. Sed tamen quoniam utrumque a Domino factum est, cuius est Societas, quamque (ut certo confidimus), suo nunquam patrocínio et protectione deseret, hoc mihi non modo solatium, sed et spem certam divini auxilii affert, accedentibus praesertim Dei famulorum precibus, et nominatim quas mihi offert D. of all heavenly gifts, and in return for your pious and holy labours undergone on behalf of the Church an ample reward. Rome, April 6th 1581.

[Fr. Aquaviva] to Dr. Allen at Rheims, Rome, 28 May 1581.

In that your Reverence, as your letter testifies, both before were so grieved at the death of our most excellent Father Everard, and now so felicitate me at this lot which has fallen on me, both these facts are a great pledge to me of your charity, your good-will, and that intimate fellowship with our Society, of which your letters are eloquent. And as by every right and title you grieve over the former, by reason of the very great loss we have all suffered in such a man, endowed with such conspicuous gifts, would that in the other as regards myself you had as well-grounded a reason for joy and congratulation, and that I be not rather—as I am convinced is the case, in the mirror of my conscience—the very reason which has power both to make that loss more obvious and also intensify the sorrow. Yet, since each event is the handiwork of the Lord, to Whom belongs that Society, which we steadfastly trust He will never deprive of His patronage and protection, all this furnishes me not only with consolation but also with assured confidence in the help of God, especially as there come to our assistance the prayers of God's servants, and namely those offered by your Reverence for me, on which I set such store, as to be confident that through them there is nothing which I may not obtain to God's glory and honour.

And as to your native England, with love and zeal for which you are deservedly so conspicuous, your Reverence is quite right in being convinced that, as heretofore, so in time to come I shall always be her champion. But just as by the call to a higher office divine providence drew aside Blessed Gregory, with whom your Reverence points a moral, from that apostolate, so with me; although perhaps in my case unworthiness has been some hindrance. But I will strive hard, by appointing other labourers who are better and more pleasing to God, to satisfy my duty and also my love towards that nation. And so but lately we dispatched thither Father William [Holt] and Father Heywood, two who in my judgment and that of all were men of tried virtue. For Heywood Father Robert's last letter, to my joy, again made request. Another Father also, a Spaniard, very learned and even before he was admitted to the Society ready heart and soul for this mission, we have sent to Pont-à-Mousson; so that, having spent this summer there chiefly in studying controversy, he may be the more ready for gathering fruit in that vineyard of the Lord. Him too, when the time comes, your Reverence will direct, both as to his journey and in other matters, with your advice and guidance. As to an Italian, I can scarcely give a verdict, much as I have laboured up till now; since in all, who offered themselves to me, I found something which made me hesitate. However, we are still busily seeking rem quod mihi dubitationem afferret. Sed tamen adhuc eum diligenter quaerimus, et D. Va, si quis ei occurreret idoneus, gratum mihi faceret, si nos in eo consilio suo iuvabit.

Hi sunt nostri apparatus, quos pro copiolis nostris, Deo duce freti, impiis hostium furoribus opponimus, de quibus cum multa a Dē Va ad Patrem Alphonsum nostrum scripta legissem, certe non modo non me terruerunt, sed etiam ex illis ipsis spem concepi, fore brevi aliquid boni, sive quod daemon fortasse providens se exiguum habere tempus ad nocendum, ita saeviat, sive quod illa Catholicorum hominum intensa pietas, ipsis etiam persecutionibus mām [? materiam] ampliorem bene merendi accipiens, hoc a Domino impetratura sit. Et tamen quodcumque futurum sit, gratulor certe Rae Dī Vae de tot laboribus quos ecclesiae catholicae gratia, continenter, et scribendo, et agendo, et consulendo, et omni denique ratione communem causam promovendo tolerat; et praeterea gratias ei ingentes ago de ea solitudine et cura quam de Patre Roberto nostro et sociis gerit, cum et eorum saluti adeo studiose consulat, et de eorum statu tam crebro, tamque certo, quod nobis gratissimum est, nos commoneat.

De fundatione Collegii nostri Anglicani, deque recenti S̄mi. D.N. munificentia nihil scribo, quoniam non dubito quin Pater Alphonsus omnia uberius et clarius Dī Vae expositurus sit. Equidem multum debet Anglia duobus Gregoriis, quorum adhuc alter e coelo coelestibus, alter in hac vita et terrestribus beneficiis eam iuvare non cessat, ut certe alteri vicissim omnis amor et reverentia debeatur, alteri non solum amor sed et preces ut eum quam diutissime Christus Dñs ecclesiae suae utilitati, et particulari Angliae servet incolumem; cuius etiam immensam bonitatem a Dē Va oratam velim, ut nobis sanctum suum spiritum et lumen pro sui nominis honore abunde impertiat. Accepi binas Dīs Vae litteras * de rebus Anglicis; et quidem quod ad Patrem Campianum attinet, etsi et praesens fructus qui eius opera edebatur, valde nos delectabat, et maiorem in dies expectabamus, tamen quoniam ita Dño placuit, cuius ad honorem dirigebatur ille fructus, laeti conquevimus in divina providentia; immo etiam speravimus, ut maius est meritum tormenta quam labores perferre, sic fortasse futurum, ut ad istorum populorum conversionem maiorem vim habeat Pater Campianus in carcere, vel in equuleo, quam in suggestu, aut concione ceterisque occupationibus pristinis. Dominus modo illi quod speramus, et quod ab eo summis precibus expetimus, det vires et robur ad bonam confessionem pro eius nomine faciendam. for such a one ; and, if any one occurs to you as suitable, your Reverence would do me a favour, by helping us in the matter with your advice.

Such are the preparations which, out of our scanty resources, trusting in God's guidance, we place as a bulwark against the enemy's wicked onslaughts ; as to which, when I had read much that your Reverence had written to dear Father Alphonsus, assuredly not only had they for me no terrors, but even from them I conceived a hope that we should shortly happen on some good. For either it is that the devil, foreseeing that he has but a short space for showing his malice, so plays the madman ; or that the well-known deep-seated piety of your Catholics, deriving from their very persecution more ample merit, will obtain of God this blessing. Still, whatever may be in store, I must congratulate your Reverence on all the toils which, on behalf of the Catholic Church, you continually undergo, by writing and by action, by consultation, and finally by promoting in every way the common cause of all. Moreover, I return you heartfelt thanks for the solicitude and care you display on behalf of Father Robert and his companions, in that you so assiduously provide for their safety, and keep us informed as to how they fare, so frequently and with such accuracy—a service to us most grateful.

About the founding of our English College and the recent benefactions of the Holy Father, I write nothing ; for I am sure that Father Alphonsus will explain all more amply and with greater clearness. Truly great is England's debt to the two Gregories ; for she never lacks help from one of them in heaven with heavenly gifts, and from the other in this life with those which are temporal. Hence is due to the saint every service of love and reverence, and to the pope, not only love but also prayers that Christ our Lord may long keep him safe to the advantage of His Church and of England in particular. And I would have your Reverence supplicate God's infinite goodness to impart to us, for the honour of His name, the light of His Holy Spirit in plenteous measure. Rome, May 28th 1581.

[Fr. Aquaviva] to Dr. Allen at Rheims, Rome, 14 October 1581.

I have received your Reverence's two letters on affairs in England, and indeed as regards Father Champion, although the immediate harvest, which through his exertions was being produced, gave us great consolation and we were daily looking for greater results ; yet, since it has so seemed good to the Lord, to whose honour those achievements were devoted, we have with joy resigned ourselves to divine providence. Nay we even hope that, inasmuch as there is more merit in enduring torture rather than toil, so for the conversion of that people Father Champion will have greater influence in prison or being racked, than on the platform or by preaching, or any of his former occupations. May our Lord, as we hope and ask of Him with most earnest prayers, only grant him strength and fortitude to make a good confession for His name's sake. But we, nowise dismayed at this event, will not (with God's grace) cease on that account nova cum opus fuerit illuc supplementa mittere ; donec nobis Dñus et operarios, et tales animos dederit, qui minime eos timeant qui occidunt corpus.

Illud vero gavisus sum, et omnino Dei providentiae tribuendum putavi, quod Pater Heywodus cum socio, incolumis et ita in tempore ad Patrem Robertum et consolandum et labore etiam levandum pervenerit ; qui deinceps quid agant, et quomodo eis provincia illa succedat, expectabimus ut D. Va, pro sua solita caritate, nos admoneat. Quod ad Hispanum attinet iam sane neque ille quidem neque alius quispiam, oratore discedente, mittendus erit, sed tamen si aliquis mittendus esset, credat nobis D. Va hunc, qui a nobis destinatus fuerat, satis aptum et idoneum futurum fuisse, quippe cui neque eruditio et quidem haud mediocris et varia deesset, et qui in primis magna esset pietate et perfectione, et denique, quod apud me plurimum valuit, ad istam ipsam Anglicam missionem divinitus vocatus, etiam ante de religione ingredienda cogitaret, ita ut ea de re cum ipso Pontifice contulerit, et haec una causa magna fortasse ex parte eum ad Societatem nostram impulerit.* Quod attinet ad facultates quas D. Va, Patris Roberti nomine, a Pontifice impetrari volebat, egimus diligenter cum eius Sanctitae, easque cum Dei gratia impetravimus. De iis nunc Breve ipsius Pontificis mittimus. Etsi quod attinet ad dispensationem in voto castitatis omnino non visum est summo Pontifici, ut nonnisi pro foeminis eam concederet, quod diceret viros, si minus in Anglia defectu religionum servare illud possint, posse extra Angliam. Ac siquid aliud fuerit quod ego praestare valeam vel pro Anglia vel pro ipsius Dñs Vae commodis, quae scimus omnia ad Dei honorem et Ecclesiae sanctae amplificationem directa esse, gratissimum mihi erit, si me in omnibus utatur. Nunc autem cum nihil aliud sit quod scribam, Dñm precor, ut pia ista Dñs Vae studia et labores tum hic in terra felici successu prosperare, tum in coelo dignis praemiis cumulare dignetur. Romae, 14 Oct., '81.

Addenda Dño Alano. Facultas dispensandi in matrimoniis in omnibus gradibus affinitatis et consanguinitatis, excepto secundo, iamdudum obtenta est,† et breve super ea confectum missum in Germaniam ad Patrem Gasparem Heywodum, sed quia fortasse ille iam in Angliam dicesserat antequam literae ad eum pervenirent, omnino eius exemplum una cum his Dñs Vae mittere visum est. * The Spaniard whom Aquaviva had in mind was Diego Sanchez—"Jacobus Sancius."—for whose wonderful vocation to the Society, and life of sanctity therein, see Sacchini, Historia S. J., Pt. V. lib. viii. p. 404. The course of events prevented Sanchez from coming to England, and he died at Seville on the 20th of February, from sending thither fresh reinforcements ; until our Lord shall grant us labourers with courage so great that they have no fear at all for those " who kill the body."

In that Father Heywood and his companion arrived safe and so well in time both to console Father Robert [Persons] and also to lighten his labours, I was rejoiced and thought it due on every count to the providence of God. What they do in the future, and how they suit that mission, we expect your Reverence, with your wonted charity, to keep us informed. As regards the Spaniard, now neither he nor any one else will be sent, as the Spanish ambassador is leaving England. But still, if any one has to be sent, your Reverence must trust to us, that he whom we had assigned, would be quite fit and suitable ; for he is a man in whom there is wanting neither learning (and that in no small degree, and with no narrow limits), and above all a man of piety and perfection, and finally (which counts very much with me) called by God to that same English mission even before he thought about entering into religion, and so called that he spoke even with the Pope himself on that matter, and this alone was perhaps in great part the reason which induced him to enter into our Society.

As to the faculties which your Reverence, in Father Robert's name, desire to be obtained from the Pope, we have been diligent in our dealings with his Holiness, and by God's grace have obtained them. About them we will shortly dispatch a Brief from the Pope himself. However, as regards dispensing with a vow of chastity, the supreme Pontiff would in nowise agree to grant that faculty except in the case of women ; for he said that if men, through lack of religious orders, could not keep that vow in England, they could do so out of England.

And if there be any further service which I can render either to England or by way of helping your Reverence's own projects, which we know are all directed to the honour of God and to extending the empire of Holy Church, it will give me the greatest pleasure, if you make use of me on all occasions. And now, as I have nothing more to write about, I beg our Lord, that He may deign both to prosper all your Reverence's pious projects and labours with happy success here on earth, and to crown them with full and fitting rewards in Heaven. Rome, October 14th 1581.

Postscript for Dr. Allen.

The faculty for dispensing in marriages in every grade of affinity and consanguinity, except the second, was long since obtained, and a Brief framed in that tenor dispatched to Father Jasper Heywood in Germany ; but because perhaps he had already departed for England before the letter reached him, it has been judged quite necesaccidat in secundo gradu, in foro exteriori, necessarium erit Romam mittere. Neque enim eam facultatem ulli concedit Pontifex.

Addenda Dño Alano. His scriptis, redditae sunt nobis Dñs Vae literae 11 Septembris scriptae, quibus quod attinet ad Hispaniensem nostrum, iam supra a nobis responsum est. De Patre autem Ferdinando et de Italo quovis, etsi missioni isti tantum faveo quantum puto Dñm Vam nosse, tamen duo nobis hoc tempore praesertim, quo persecutio ita fervet, dubitationem afferebant, alterum quod non videbamus quam magnum emolumentum afferre possent homines linguae expertes et qui a reliquis nostris divulsi a quibus iuvari possent suas quisque res agere deberent; alterum quod eadem de causa multo magis periculis expositi essent, quippe qui et facilius deprehenderentur ut externi, neque locorum aut hominum notitiam haberent, neque quos cavere aut quibus se credere possent cognoscerent. Itaque, cum etiam praeter haec, ob onerum multitudinem quam in Italia habemus, non multi nobis supersint Itali, quales quidem ad talem missionem requirerentur; in Anglis autem e contra illa omnia incommoda cessent, et multi ex iis suppetant et boni et docti et huius provinciae cupidissimi, non sane nobis ratio remanebat cur non potius hoc negotium per indigenas administrandum esset. Tamen ob desiderium quo certe tenemur ut nullo loco et rei ipsi et sancto Dñs Vae zelo desimus, haec ipsi proponenda putavi ut nos planius doceret de illis omnibus quae supra commemoravi, et in primis quam viam tenere possent ut et aliquid rerum gererent et tute illic consisterent. Quae quidem necessario mihi prius intelligenda putavi, vel ut ego ipse de iis recte deliberare possem, vel ut aliis etiam quibuscunque communicanda res erit, eius rationes reddere, et in primis ipsi Pontifici, sine cuius consensu et approbatione res tota aggredienda non esset. De subsidio pecuniario agemus cum Pontifice et cum Illmo Comensi.

Reverendissimae Dñs Vae litteras, accepi, [et] etiam catalogum facultatum quas a Suumo Pontifice peti volebat, quarum quoniam partem iam habebamus, pro reliquis Suae Sanctitati libellum obtulimus easque ut spero obtinebimus, et quam primum ad Dñm Vam mitemus. Nunc igitur aliud non erat quod Dñs Vae significarem quam pergratum mihi fuisse Patris Roberti consilium quod D. Va et ipsamet mihi perscripsit, ac de subsidio pecuniario, quoniam ob graves sary to send with this a copy to your Reverence. If any case occurs of the second degree in foro externo, you must refer it to Rome; for this faculty the Pope delegates to no one.

Postscript for Dr. Allen.

After we had written this, we received your Reverence's letter dated the 11th of September, to which (as regards our Spanish Father) we have above already made answer. But as regards Father Ferdinand or any Italian, much as I favour that mission, as your Reverence knows, yet two facts made me doubt, at this time especially when the persecution waxes so hot; firstly because we did not see how there could be much assistance from men who were ignorant of the language, and who, separated from the rest of Ours, by whom they might be helped, would have to manage each his own affairs; secondly, because for the same reason, they would be much more exposed to danger, as they would be much more easily taken up as foreigners, having no knowledge of places or persons, and being ignorant of whom they ought to shun, or to whom they might trust themselves. And so, (since in addition to these reasons, on account of the multiplicity of our obligations in Italy, we have not many Italians left at our disposal, who would be found with such qualities as could cope with such a mission as this, while on the contrary for Englishmen all those obstacles would be non-existent, and there are at hand many such men both virtuous and learned and very desirous of such an enterprise) we certainly had no further reason why this business should not be carried out by the native born. Still on account of the desire with which we are certainly possessed of being in nowise wanting to the cause and to your Reverence's zeal, I thought I ought to put these points before you, so that you might inform us clearly on all the details I have above mentioned, and especially what course they could follow so as to take some active part in affairs and yet stay there in safety. I have judged it necessary that I should have a clear understanding on these matters, so that I might be able to give them due consideration myself, and (as the project will have to be made known to others as well) also explain its bearings, and this in the first place to the Holy Father himself, without whose consent and approval, the affair cannot be undertaken. As to the help in money, we will treat with the Holy Father and with the Cardinal of Como.

[Fr. Aquaviva] to Dr. Allen at Rheims, Rome, 23 December 1581.

I have received your Reverence's letters and also the list of faculties which you wished to be asked for from the supreme Pontiff; and as we already had some of them, I presented to his Holiness a petition for the rest, and these—when we have obtained them, as I hope will be the case—we will send at once to your Reverence. But on this occasion there is nothing more for me to say except to express to your Reverence how agreeable to me was Father Robert's plan, about which your Reverence yourself wrote to me. As to the causas nihil hoc tempore cum Summo Pontifice agendum censuimus, ipsimet fecimus ut ducentos aureos mutuo acciperemus, quos vel postea ab eius Sanctitate impetrabimus vel ipsi cum Domini gratia, quae suis operibus non deest, aliquo modo inueniemus. Eos Rhodomagum, ut Pater Personius mandavit, perferri quam celerrime curabimus.

De Patre Campiano grata sunt quae D. Va narrat quantae utilitati fuerit haec ipsa eius calamitas, quae tamen quoniam pro Christi amore et veritate accidit, felicitas potius dicenda est. Dominus det illi spiritum ac robur ad reddendum bonum testimonium et certamen pro sua gloria sustinendum. Expectamus in dies quid de eo actum sit. Haec mihi occurrebant ad binas Dñs Vae litteras quas 16 Sept. et 7 Novemb. scripserat.

Nunc superest ut me Dñs Vae precibus commendem eamque rogem ut, si quid sit in quo nostra ei opera utilis esse possit, id nobis cum omni fiducia significet, quod dico quia hactenus quidem nimis verecunde id facere solet, et cum eiusmodi praemunitioibus quas neque necessitudo nostra patitur, neque res ipsae quas, cum ad commune bonum spectant, non minus nostras quam Dñs Vae existimare debemus. Romae, 23 Decembris 1581.

Rhemis. Dño Gulielmo Alano. (Gall. Ep. Gen. f. 134v.)

Excusatio quam D. Va affert de litterarum raritate, et si gratum mihi accidit, quia eius caritatem satis testabatur, minime tamen necessaria fuit, quippe cum ab homine occupatissimo nos etiam ipsi non valde otiosi litteras expectare non debeamus, nisi cum aliquod negotium urgeat. Nunc autem quod Adamum Hygenum* nobis commendat plane ita Dñs Vae amori ac prudentiae confidimus atque etiam notitiae quam habet nostri Instituti, ut omnem illi facultatem concessam velimus eum recipiendi, si idoneum iudicet; et Romam vel Parisios, quo ipsa maluerit, ad nostros mittendi.

De reliquis autem Angliae operariis quos D. Va ad Societatem nostram animum scribit adiecisse, plane in eadem sumus sententia, non esse illis hoc tempore stationem in qua a Domino positi sunt deserendam, et hoc ipsum memini me ante aliquos menses Patri Roberto qui idem a me quaesiverat, respondisse. Quinetiam placebit mihi ut ipsa Dominatio vestra ad eos scribat, quos eius animi esse cognoverit, eosque animet ut in opere Domini alacriter pergant, neque vineam illam adeo auxilii egentem tam alieno tempore derelinquant, quandoquidem etiamsi Societatis membra essent, tamen in help in money, since for serious reasons we have decided on this occasion not to treat of that matter with the Holy Father, we ourselves have effected a loan of two hundred crowns, which we will either beg for later from the Pope, or will ourselves procure in some way or other with God's grace, which fails not in works done for Him. We will see that they are transmitted to Rheims, as soon as may be; according to Father Persons's behest.

As to Father Campion, very consoling is what your Reverence recounts, of how great service will prove even this calamity that has befallen him, if it is not rather to be called felicity, seeing that it has come about through his love for Christ and true religion. May our Lord give him courage and fortitude to render a good testimony and bear the brunt of battle for His glory. We await daily what shall be done in his regard. This is what occurs to me to say in answer to your Reverence's two letters, written on the 16th of September and the 7th of November.

It now only remains for me to commend myself to your Reverence's prayers and to ask you, if there is anything in which our efforts may be of service to you, that with full reliance on us you will make it known. And this I say, because so far at least, you have been wont to do this with over-great modesty and with such apologies as neither our close friendship should brook nor the business itself, which—since it regards the common good—we are bound to regard as no more your Reverence's than our own. Rome, December 23rd 1581.

[Fr. Aquaviva] to Dr. Allen at Rheims, Rome, 23 October 1582.

The apology which your Reverence makes as to the fewness of your letters, although it gives me pleasure, as being a clear proof of your charity, still was in no way called for; inasmuch as from a man who is very busy we, who also have not much leisure, ought not to look for letters, unless there be some business that is urgent. But now as to your commendation to me of Adam Higgins, of a truth I have such confidence in your Reverence's charity and prudence and also in the knowledge that you have of our Institute, that it is our will to invest you with powers to receive him if you think him a fit subject—and to dispatch him to Ours at Rome or Paris, as your Reverence shall judge the better course.

But as to the other labourers in England whom your Reverence writes of as having set their hearts on our Society, we are most certainly of the same conviction, namely that at this juncture they must not desert the post in which they have been placed by our Lord; and this same answer I remember I made some months ago to Father Robert [Persons] who asked the same question. Moreover it will be a service to me if your Reverence writes yourself to those whom you know to be so inclined and encourages them to go on zealously in their work for our Lord, and not abandon at a moment so inopportune that vineyard which is in such dire need of their labours; since, even if they became members of the Society, it would eadem illis laborandum et desudandum esset, ac denique ad eorum consolationem et ut dilationem hanc aequius ferant, permitto Dī Vae ut quibus iudicarit participationem omnium meritorum ac bonorum operum quae in Societate per Domini gratiam fiant, nostro nomine impertiat.

Ceterum quod ad me epistolam Patris Edmundi, sanctae memoriae, ipsiusmet chirographo, misit, valde mihi gratum fecit, eritque mihi, ut D. Va scribit, pro reliquiis quibusdam et pro pignore quo beatus illius in coelo spiritus ad orandum pro nobis eo magis obstringatur.

De nostra in Hispaniam profectio, uti se D. Va audivisse significat, ita fuit. Certae enim causae nos adegerunt ut eam in aliud tempus prorogarem. Et ut vere dicam inter alias causas etiam respectus Angliae vestrae fuit, cuius negotia illa quae Pater Robertus tractabat videre cupiebam expedita antequam hinc me moverem, ut ea facilius dirigere et promovere possem. Quam ego curam ac studium, ut D. Va me rogat, et Collegio huic et rebus omnibus quae ad Angliae salutem pertineant, ita impertiar ut omnem eis diligentiam et laborem impendere paratus sim. Quare non cesset D. Va, si quid opus fuerit, nobis significare et quod adeo amanter facit, deinceps etiam pro nobis Christum Dominum assidue deprecetur. Romae, 23 Octobris 1582.

Cum Pater Robertus nuper a me quaesisset ubinam sibi hoc tempore maneret indicarem, etsi multis me rationibus adducebat ut in Francia subsisteret atque etiam sese manifestaret, tamen quo mihi clarius Domini voluntas constaret ipsum eius Vicarium consulere placuit. Ac cum ipsi suae quoque Sanctitati non parum res probata esset, unum me tamen nonnihil monebat, quid de eo facto homines existimaturi essent, maxime in Anglia. Quod cum nulli melius quam Dī Vae notum fore putassem, negotium totum in Dīs Vae et Patris Roberti iudicium permittere statui, itaque ipsi Patri Roberto scripsi ut de eo cum Dē Va ageret, ac simul utrique statuerent quod optimum factu videretur. Mihi quidem in illo mittendo sicut etiam in retinendo unica maior Dei gloria proposita est, quod ita vereor ne illius praesentia hostium furorem irretet, non in se solum sed etiam in Catholicos universos, a quibus fortasse insectandis nonnihil remittent cum illum extra Angliam esse constiterit. Sed hoc ut dixi D. Va, omnibus perpensis circumstantiis, melius iudicabit; ac ego quoque et ad hoc et cetera omnia pro divino honore videnda et exequenda magnam a Domino Nostro Dī Vae divini luminis copiam precor. be in England that they would have to work in the sweat of their brow. In fine, for their consolation and that they may bear being thus put off more patiently, I allow your Reverence to impart in my name, to those whom you shall judge fit, participation of merit in all the good works which by God's grace are done in the Society. But in sending to me the letter of Father Edmund of holy memory, written with his own hand, you have done me a very great pleasure, and it will be to me—as your Reverence writes,—a sort of relic and a pledge by which his blessed soul in Heaven may be more bound to intercede on our behalf.

As to our departure for Spain, our purpose was as your Reverence announces that you have heard ; for certain reasons have forced us to put it off to another occasion. Truth to say, among the other causes was preoccupation about your country, England, the affairs of which, then in Father Robert's hands, I desired to see settled before I moved from here ; as thus I could more easily preside over and hasten that business. Such attention and zeal, as your Reverence asks me, will I show for this College and for all that relates to the spiritual welfare of England, that I am ready to lavish every effort of labour on those objects. And so your Reverence must not cease from making it known to us, should any necessity arise ; and, as you so charitably do at present, so also in the future intercede always for us with Christ our Lord. Rome, October 23rd 1582.

[Fr. Aquaviva] to Dr. Allen at Rheims, Rome, 5 November 1582.

When Father Robert lately asked me to make known to him where at this crisis he ought to tarry, although he tried by many arguments to bring me over to his staying in France and even showing himself there, still, to the end that our Lord's will might be more clear to me, I decided on consulting Christ's Vicar himself ; and although the project greatly commended itself also to the Holy Father, still there was one thing he kept pressing on my attention, viz., what sort of judgment men, especially in England, would be likely to pass on his action. As I thought that that could be gauged by no one better than by your Reverence, I determined to leave the whole affair to the united judgment of yourself and Father Robert ; and accordingly I wrote to Father Robert himself to treat with you on the matter, and that in concert you should settle what seemed best to be done. Both in sending him and keeping him there the sole end I proposed was the greater glory of God ; and as I fear so much that it is his presence that excites the fury of our enemies, not merely against him in person but also against the whole body of Catholics, they perhaps will slacken somewhat their persecution, when it becomes known that he is out of England. But as to this, as I said, your Reverence, having considered all details, will be the best judge ; and I, on my part, both in this matter and as to all else that you have to see to and carry out for the honour of God, beg of our Lord for your Reverence an abundance of His heavenly light. Institere hic mihi quidam nomine Joannis Harti ut eum cupientem et petentem ad Societatem nostram ascriberem. Amisimus Dñm Georgium Gilbertum, ex cuius obitu quantus ad nos dolor pervenerit, facile D. Va existimare potest, quae omnium maxime novit quantum damni in illo uno gens Anglicana fecerit. Sed tamen et nos et R. * For Hart's letter see C. R. S., iv. 72.

[Fr. Aquaviva] to Dr. Allen at Rheims, Rome, 18 May 1583.

Some persons here have been very urgent with me on behalf of John Hart, that I should enrol him in our Society, such being his eager desire and petition. Some time back we also saw on this point a certain letter of his which gave us no small edification; although indeed at that time we had not come to any decision about granting this his desire, chiefly for those reasons which I remember on a certain occasion to have mentioned in writing to your Reverence. But now inasmuch as those reasons have ceased in his case, and as besides his fortitude and purity of intention have by long tribulation been refined as by fire, he seems to deserve all the consolation we can afford him; and so we have decided to give your Reverence authority, if he perseveres in his desire and your Reverence judges in the Lord that it will be for the greater glory of God, to announce to him that we hereby enrol him amongst us and consider him as one of Ours. Add also, if you please, an exhortation for him to continue brave in the future and bear himself, not merely as a strenuous soldier but as a combatant in our Company, where I doubt not that, on this account alone, greater assistance will be given him by our Lord's grace-dealing hand to meet and overcome all adversity.

For the rest we have no news and are rather looking for tidings from you of the arrival of dear Father Robert, about whom we trust shortly to hear something. May the Lord Jesus ever keep your Reverence safe and grant you much grace, for the glory of His name, to do always that which you are now doing. Rome, May 18th 1583.

[Fr. Aquaviva] to Dr. Allen at Rheims, Rome, 10 October 1583.

We have lost Mr. George Gilbert, from whose death what grief has overtaken us your Reverence can easily conceive, as you best of all know what a loss in him alone the English nation has incurred. But still both we and your Reverence, and whosoever else are possessed with zeal for the honour of God, ought to be greatly consoled both by the will of our Lord, to Whom nothing can be pleasing save what is holy and just and also fraught with grace for us, and also by the consideration that his conspicuous and ardent piety and virtue are to us most certain pledges that he has been raised to the state of glory, where he not only rests from his labours and reaps the eternal reward of his devotedness, but that the same patronage over his country, which he exercised here on earth by prudence, toil and energy, he will by constant intercession in the presence-chamber of Christ our Lord manifest with richer and more bountiful effect. And I am confident that very soon we shall by actual experience feel and clearly perceive that, as is the case with all other events, so this has been brought about by God, Who ever provides for us that which is the better.

Still on this occasion it came into my mind to put before your Reverence something that seemed to us very expedient, that there aequali, si fieri posset, non solum zelo sed etiam auctoritate et prudentia qui negotia ista nationis quae incidant promovere posset. Nam etsi nobis et Societati nostrae non deest neque unquam deerit per Dei gratiam voluntas impendendi ac superimpedendi pro ea omnem operam ac laborem, tamen ut D. Va intelligit, multa sunt minuta et particularia quae praesertim quantum ad executionem efficacius et decentius ab homine seculari et eiusdem nationis quam a nostris hominibus tractantur, et ita tractari velint ii ipsi apud quos eae res tractandae sunt; idque non solum nostrum erat iudicium sed hominum etiam Anglicorum qui nostra in urbe versantur. Itaque D. Va pro sua prudentia dispiciet quid de negotio sentiat; tum si negotium placuerit, quemnam hominem ad hoc maxime aptum existimet.

Praeterea idem Dñs Georgius sicut se ipsum et quidem antea, ut D. Va novit, et nunc maxime Societati nostrae dicavit eaque de ratione se in Divi Andreae sepeliri iussit, ita ad eius loci inopiam ac necessitatem sublevandam octingentos aureos nummos testamento legavit; cuius nos caritatem ac liberalitatem etsi omni devotione suscipimus, nec dubitamus quin a Domino suum praemium relaturus sit, tamen persuadere nobis non potuimus quin aliquanto maior Dei honor futurus sit si in tantis ac talibus Angliae angustiis ea tota summa in istius gentis usum convertatur, praesertim cum nihil dubii nobis sit quin nostro isti loco quantumvis egenti, Dominus pro sua pietate aliunde provisorus sit. Itaque hoc etiam D. Va considerabit, ubinam eam pecuniam melius collocandam putet, num in Collegio isto Rhemensi, an ad aliquorum particularium exulum inopiam sublevandam, ac denique, an hic censum aliquem esse malit quo subveniri possit aliquorum usibus qui Romae commorantur. Quicquid enim D. Va nobis significaverit id libenter sequemur.

De cetero quod ad missionem Anglicanam attinet, de qua D. Va sexto Augusti ad me scripsit, sciat duos iam a nobis, alterum ex Hispania, alterum ex Germania, nempe Gibbonum, evocatos esse, ut isthic cum Dē Va et Patre Roberto congregiantur, ac cum ipsis visum fuerit, in insulam, cum Dei gratia, traiciant.* Patri etiam Gasparo significavimus, ut quamprimum ei licuerit conferat se in Franciam, quorumdam negotiorum causa, de quibus expedit Dñm Vam et Patrem Robertum cum illo diligenter consultare. Quare spero, cum Domini auxilio, toti illi negotio abunde in praesens provisum iri.

Itaque nihil aliud habeo in praesenti quod scribam nisi ut me et Societatem totam Dñs Vae precibus et sacrificiis ex animo commendem et illi vicissim multam gratiam et auxilium ad agendum quod agit, et opus Domini in Domino persequendum ex animo precer. Romae, 10 Octobris 1583.

* C. R. S., iv. 105 sqq.

should be a successor here equal to him, if that may be, not only in zeal but also in authority and prudence, who may be able to help on the affairs of his nation as they occur. For although there is not lacking,—and by God's grace, there never will be lacking—in us and in our Society the determination to expend and lavish on behalf of England, all our labour and energy, still, as your Reverence perceives, there are many trifles and details which, especially as to their execution, are more effectually and fittingly dealt with by a man of the world and one of the same nation than by our people, and that they should be so dealt with is also the wish of those with whom such matters have to be arranged; and this is not merely our opinion but also that of the English who dwell in our city. And so your Reverence will, with your usual prudence, consider your judgment on the project; and then, if the scheme meets with your approval, say what man you think is best suited for the task.

Moreover the same Mr. Gilbert, just as he did some time before (as your Reverence knows), so now dedicated himself altogether to our Society, and for that reason desired to be buried in Sant Andrea, and so to relieve the poverty and needs of that place bequeathed to it by will eight hundred crowns. Now, although we welcome with all gratitude his charity and generosity, and doubt not that he will receive his recompense from our Lord, still we could not bring ourselves to think but that it would be somewhat more to the honour of God, if—with England's troubles so great and of the character they are—the whole of that sum were transferred to the service of that nation; especially as we have no doubt but that our Lord, of His loving-kindness, will make provision from other sources for that place of ours, however great its poverty. And so your Reverence will also give this your consideration, where you think that money is most profitably to be allocated, whether for your College at Rheims, or to relieve the distress of certain individual exiles, or lastly whether you prefer it to be invested here so as to satisfy the needs of some who dwell in Rome. For whatever course of action your Reverence shall indicate to us, that we will gladly follow.

For the rest, as regards the English mission, about which your Reverence wrote me on the 6th of August, you must know that two have been summoned by us, one from Spain, and the other—namely Gibbons—from Germany, that they may confer there with your Reverence and Father Robert; and when it seems suitable to you, let them, with God's help, cross over to England. We have also sent word to Father Jasper to betake himself, as soon as he can, to France, by reason of some business as to which it behoves your Reverence and Father Robert to have with him a diligent consultation. And so I hope that, with our Lord's help, ample provision has for the time been made as to all those affairs.

And so at present I have nothing more to write, except devoutly to commend myself and the whole Society to your Reverence's prayers and sacrifices, and on my part earnestly to beseech for you much grace and assistance to do as you are doing and to persevere in our Lord in the work of the Lord. Rome, October 10th 1583.

Addenda Dño Alano. Quod attinet ad pecuniam Dñi Georgii, nolim Dñm Vam, ob caritatem suam in Societatem et praesertim in hanc nostram Sti Andreae domum, quae quasi omnium nationum Seminarium est, nostro huic consilio repugnare. Nobis enim statutum est nullam in hoc omnino rationem in contrarium admittere. Quin etiam optavi saepe ex Collegiis singulis aliquid etiam in hoc genere Angliae opitulari posse. Idque certe re ipsa praestitisset, nisi omnia plane in eo statu essent, ut vix se ipsa sustinere queant, pleraque etiam non parvo aere alieno conflictentur.

Quod mihi D. Va postremis suis litteris suggessit de Anglis ad Societatem nostram admittendis, acceptum est a me ut ab amico animo et divinae gloriae in primis cupido profectum. Et sane quanta in hoc genere circumscriptio, quanta moderatio a nobis servata sit ob eas ipsas rationes quas D. Va affert, nihil attinet me dicere, cum existimem Dñm Vam et ex Patris Roberti sermonibus et ex Patris Alphonsi litteris satis cognovisse. Neque vero causa etiam est cur aliter faciamus, siquidem nec Societati nostrae per Dei gratiam homines desunt, et potius plures longe quotidie confluunt quam recipi omnes possint, et hoc praesertim tempore dum maior in Angliam aditus [est, et] facile potest quivis videre minime nobis omnium necessariam esse illius nationis copiam. Verum ita certe adhuc nonnunquam accidit ut cum aliquos prae desiderio pene tabescere et confici appareret, etiam scrupulo quodam [urgeremur] ad eos consolandos ne divinae voluntati tam manifestae repugnare videremur, idque praesertim cum iis qui nondum iuramento sese obligaverant; nam in aliis, cum tamen complures petiverint, accipiendis ita restricti fuimus ut toto hoc tempore omnino paucissimi admissi sint. Et plane etiam recens quid de Ctesimundo,* qui tot iam annis hoc desiderio vel in primis tenebatur, factum sit Pater Rector uberius Dñi Vae narrabit.

Et quidem qualesquales sint querelae istae quas D. Va in hac parte existere scribit, et quaecumque earum ratio a nobis habenda, tamen decretum nobis est eam in posterum cautionem adhibere, ut quatenus per nos possit, etiam talium sermonum occasionem amputemus, quo scilicet quoniam omnibus debitores sumus etiam infirmioribus cum Dei gratia satisfacere conemur.

Neque iam aliud mihi occurrit quam ut Di Vae multam de coelo gratiam et benedictionem precer, et ipse me vicissim cum tota Societate eius precibus et sanctis sacrificiis commendem. Romae, 22 Martii 1584.

* Better known as Oswald Greenway, often mentioned in the story of the Gunpowder Plot.

Postscript for Dr. Allen.

As regards Mr. Gilbert's money, I would not have your Reverence, (by reason of your charity towards the Society, and especially for this our house of Sant Andrea, which is as it were a seminary for all the nations) to object to this our decision. For we are determined in this matter to admit of no reasons to the contrary. Nay more, I have often desired that the various Colleges could afford some help to England in this kind. This certainly I should actually have effected, except that all in truth are in such a state, that with difficulty can they find means for themselves, and many also are struggling with no small burden of debt.

[Fr. Aquaviva] to Dr. Allen at Rheims, Rome, 22 March, 1584.

What your Reverence in your recent letter suggested as to receiving Englishmen into our Society has been received by me as the promptings of a friendly disposition and one that is especially zealous for the glory of God. And truly how great in this kind has been our caution and how great our self-restraint, for those very reasons which your Reverence yourself adduce, it in nowise becomes me to rehearse, as I deem that your Reverence is quite well informed both by your speech with Father Persons and from the letters of Father Agazzari. Moreover there is no reason why we should act otherwise, since—by God's grace—subjects do not fail our Society. Rather there daily flock to us many more than makes it possible for all to be received, especially at this time when the facilities for crossing over to England are greater; and anyone can easily see that to us least of all is there any need of recruits from that nation. Yea of a truth heretofore so have things fallen out on occasions that, when it was evident that some men through hope deferred were all but fainting and outspent, we were even impelled by scruple of conscience to offer them consolation, lest we should seem to be resisting the will of God made so manifest. So did we act especially as regarded those who had not yet bound themselves by the oath; for as to receiving others, though very many have been candidates, our hands have been so tied that during all this time only very few have gained admission. What also, to take an instance, has been the course of action pursued with regard to Tesimond, with whom for many years this desire has been supreme, Father Rector will tell your Reverence in greater detail.

And truly whatever may be the nature of those complaints which your Reverence describes as being in the air on this head, and whatever be the reckoning we shall have to take of them, we are determined to be for the future so circumspect as to lop away every excuse for such talk, so that forsooth—in that we are “debtors to all”—we will endeavour, with God's grace, to satisfy even those who are weaker.

And now there occurs to me nothing more to say except to invoke on your Reverence abundance of heavenly graces and blessings, and for myself commend me and the whole Society to your prayers and holy sacrifices. Rome, March 22nd 1584.

Accepi praeteritis diebus Dñs Vae litteras scriptas 5 Junii ad quas non potui statim respondere, quoniam negotium quod continebant Anglicanae missionis, ut erat gravissimum, et non parvas nobis difficultates obiiciebat, visum erat necessario cum Summo Pontifice conferendum, ut non solum illius sancta benedictione sed etiam consilio ac lumine accedente eo certiores essemus de Dei voluntate. Itaque ad eum accessi, et cum ei Catholicorum necessitatem ac desiderium et etiam Dñs Vae iudicium exposuissem, approbavit eius Sanctitas ut aliquos ex nostris mitteremus.

Scribo igitur ad Patrem Robertum, nos ad hoc negotium una cum Patre Vestono elegisse Patrem Martialem, quem ipse quoque antea nobis nominarat; de tempore autem et modo omnia permittere Dñs Vae et ipsius iudicio. De reliquo quod D. Respondebo breviter Rae Vae litteris 8 Martii datis; neque enim aliud est respondendum nec vel illae aliud continebant quam de sede Patris Gasparis: in quo negotio spero nos, ex iis quae tum D. Va tum Pater Robertus ad nos scripserat, et in primis quae divina bonitas nobis inspirabit, id decreturos quod maxime ad Dei gloriam et negotiorum illorum promotionem conducat. Facile enim intelligimus quanti referat ut qui ista tractant, idem omnes sapiant, idemque spectent, atque iisdem etiam viis ac consiliis utantur; et contra quam et aliis scandalum et negotiis impedimentum et iis qui in ista opera cum tanta utilitate versantur, animi molestiam iudiciorum diversitas afferre possit. Quare quod ad hanc quidem partem attinet, poterit D. Va quieto ac tranquillo esse animo. [Fr. Aquaviva] to Dr. Allen at Rheims, Rome, 15 July 1584.

I received some days since your Reverence's letter written on the 5th of June, to which I was unable to give an immediate answer. For,—as the business concerning the English mission was very serious and beset me with no small perplexities—I thought it incumbent on me to seek an audience of the supreme Pontiff; so that, not only through the grace of his blessing but also with the added light of his direction, I might be more assured as to the will of God. So I approached the holy Father, and when I had unfolded the needs of your Catholics and their desires, as also your Reverence's judgment thereon, his Holiness approved of our sending some of Ours to England.

Accordingly I am writing to Father Persons that for this business I have chosen, both Father Weston, and Father Marshall, whose name he gave me some time ago, but that I leave all as to time and manner to his and your Reverence's decision. For the rest as to what your Reverence writes about Father Robert's labours being so helpful to you in sustaining the burden of your affairs, I rejoiced greatly in the Lord and I beseech the divine Majesty to give him grace to be daily still more serviceable. For those affairs are of such a nature, are so bound up with the glory of God, and import so much for the salvation of many souls, that not merely by the diligent toil of Ours, but even with my own life's-blood,—if need there be,—do I desire to aid and help them forward. And so if ever there be any service which can be rendered by us, always—with God's grace—we will be ready and alert. Now there remains for me only to commend myself and the whole Society to your Reverence's prayers and holy sacrifices. Rome, July 15th 1584.

[Fr. Aquaviva] to Dr. Allen at Rheims, Rome, 9 April 1585.

I will reply but briefly to your Reverence's letter of the 8th of March, for there is nothing else to be answered nor did the letter refer to anything else except as to the question of Father Jasper's future post. And in this business I hope that we,—both through what your Reverence and Father Persons have written to us, and especially through the inspiration which God's goodness will give us,—shall ordain that which may chiefly conduce to the glory of God and the advancement of those affairs. For we readily perceive how important it is that they who handle those matters, should all have the same sentiments and views, and with consentient minds advance by the same paths; and, on the other hand, what scandal to others, delay in affairs, and discomfort of mind to those who are so usefully employed in that service, disagreement of judgment is wont to engender. Wherefore, so far as this business is concerned, your Reverence may rest in peace and tranquillity. But still, to secure this end better and more securely, we have judged in our Lord that Father Jasper himself should be summoned to Rome, not to stay here, but to be sent from hence elsewhere where-alio ubi maxime commodum visum erit mittatur. Itaque sic et Patri Roberto et ipsimet ut quam primum faciat significamus. De cetero vero, si quid ad res ipsas adiuvandas vel consilium vel opera nostra poterit, Dī Vae libenter offerimus, et nos ipsos eius orationibus et sanctis sacrificiis commendamus. Varia de Campiano expectatio cum adhuc viveret animum nostrum anxium reddiderat, mortem nimis patriae nostrae immaturam lacrymis precibusque a Deo quantum potuimus, sumus sedulo deprecati, (loquutus etiam de aliis &c.), sed pueris vestris nostrisque defunctis tamque gloriosa morte sublatis, ipsis vobis, patriae, Societati, Collegiis, Ecclesiaeque universae, tam memorabilem de hostibus triumphum toto corde gratulor. But for the rest, if to help your business forward our counsel or assistance can be of any avail, we gladly offer them to your Reverence and commend ourselves to your prayers and holy sacrifices. D. Miscellaneous Letters from Dr. Allen.

Allen,

[? Rheims], 23 August 1581.

He says that he [Campion] was taken on Sunday the 16th of July at the house of Mr. Yate at Lyford. He fixes the treachery on the cook. He invited the enemies for the Sunday. . . . [?]. He had parted from Persons five days previously. He says they came in number about a thousand with the sheriff of the county and eight honest justices, as they call them.

He says that Campion was taken after three days.

They kept him in the same county, until they got an answer from London, whither they dispatched messengers. In that interval of four or five days Father Campion joyfully held discussions on religion, and most gladly spoke on the kingdom of God, (he used to preach before gentry, wherever he was, and they gave him their attention) and many bewailed not his but their own plight as miserable.

The sentence written in big letters [over his head] in English was "EDMUND CAMPION, THE SEDITIOUS JESUIT"; and he rejoiced that he was worthy "to suffer reproach for the name of Jesus."

He was taken before two earls, an unusual proceeding; and is a sign that they have no ordinary estimate of the man.

He says that he has almost all these details from Father Persons's letter.

Notes and Extracts from Dr. Allen to Father General Aquaviva, [Rheims], 1 January 1582.

Our solicitude about Campion, ever-changing while still he lived, filled our soul with dread. Against his death, that for our native land came all too soon, with prayers and tears unceasing we, with all our might, made supplication to God . . . but on your children and ours, who are dead, snatched away by a death so glorious, on such a splendid triumph over our enemies, with all my heart I felicitate yourselves, our fatherland, the Society, the Colleges and the Church universal. In scarcely any epoch of the Christian Church has an event taken place more glorious, more salutary or fraught with greater grace; nor has there ever been among all the martyrs any tiore iniquitate, iniustiore sententia, quam isti, condemnatus ad mortem &c.

Gilbert is already at Rome. From Allen.

Father Campion, by his frequent torturing on the rack, was so strained in his back and loins, and so unstrung in muscles and limbs, that he could neither stand upright nor use his hands to convey food or drink to his mouth. When for nine hours on end he had stood at the bar, and had pleaded for their innocence against the charge of treason and conspiring the death of the queen, on which they were all indicted, and for himself and his companions had with wonderful dexterity and intellectual skill rebutted the charge; one of the gentlemen who were present proffered a cup, and with most loving obeisance, held it to the holy confessor's mouth, until nature was refreshed: by which act of charity he was much solaced and very many of the bystanders were edified. One who was present told me this.

About Thomas Langdale. . . . The Solicitor-General. . . . He wishes to treat with Father Heywood. . . . The prudent judged him to be an apostate or likely to be a traitor Judas; especially as he said that he would convince. . . . He has a well-born nephew, who is said indignantly to have upbraided his uncle, when he urged him to go to the heretics' church, and to have said that he would kill him, were he not hindered by fear of the law: that by this apostasy he would bring disgrace on his name and family.

Father Heywood has sciatica and pains in his joints, he is unnerved. He cannot restrain himself and is a source of danger and a burden to the rest; he lives for the most part in common inns on account of the peril. Certain gentry have sent a message to Allen about recalling him, when Father Persons shall come.

[iii] Persons from Ognate,

16 January.

He was almost recovered. Through the ignorance of a doctor in purging him, he had an attack of jaundice, was not far from a fatal consumption, and was living among seculars full of black choler. A lay-brother came from Ognate to Bilbao, a distance of ten leagues, to find him and to invite him to Ognia. The charity of Father Gil Gonzales, who on hearing of the case, wrote immediately to the Provincial that help must be sent to him. But for this he would have been dead in a few days at Bilbao, where the doctor was incompetent for any sickness.

Now he has been five days at Ognate, and is half well again, though he arrived half dead; he had been upheld rather by hope than by strength. At Bilbao he had been more than ten weeks.

Admodum R^de Pater—, Ea quae inter nos nuper notitia et amicitia, ut spero, vere christiana inita est, etiam post discessum vestrum periuicunda mihi fuit, eiusque recordatione nonnullas his diebus mentis meae molestias subinde repuli: sed et in ea re voluit Deus nonnihil acerbi doloris ad castigandos affectus meos immiscere. Ecce enim mox, per eum qui equos vestros reduxit, monet me Covertus meus isthic quosdam e nostratibus iniquissimos et falsissimos de nescio quibus erga et me atque nationem etiam nostram hic habitantem malis officiis vestris rumores sparsisse.

Impiissima est et mendacissima calumnia undecumque profecta est illa fabula. Sed me cruciat magis quod dicatur a nostris profecta, qui a tua charitate toties antea publice commendati et a quorundam infirmorum hominum seditiosis vocibus acriter e cathedra vindicati, atque tandem in penultima concione supra quam meruerunt ex abundantia amoris christiani laudati, minime mortalium debebant istam recompensam fecisse; praesertim cum toties vicissim nostro sodalicio universo tua in nos sancta officia commemorassem et ut pro vobis identidem orarent commendassem.

Certe non possum credere id quicquid fuerit a nostris saltem qui hic mecum habitant potuisse proficisci; et hic cuncti, quos super hac re sum allocutus, detestantur facinus. Undecumque sit, certe ex malo est et ex diabolo, qui inter tam dulces fratres iurgia seminare desiderat. Et sicut id falsum et vacuum est quod de verbis vestris contra nos confictum est, sic et reliqua ab omnibus cognoscuntur esse malitiose inventa. Et si queam ullo modo per Covertum illum nostrum aut per alios expiscari a quo nostratium hoc commentum sit divulgatum, sentiet se graviter peccasse, et non tam vestram pietatem quam nos ipsos nationemque suam singulariter laesisse.

Interim, mi dulcissime et desideratissime pater et frater in domino, feras ista patienter, licet molesta, sapienterque contemne quia falsa;

Dr. William Allen to a French Jesuit,

Rheims, 6 May, 1585.

Copy of a letter of Dr. Allen sent through Père Commolet.

Very Reverend Father—, That acquaintance and friendship,—truly Christian, as I trust, in its nature,—which has recently been formed between us, has been,—even after your departure,— a source of great pleasure to me, and by thinking on it I have from time to time chased away certain troubles that during these days have beset my mind; but even with that consolation God has willed, so as to keep my passions in restraint, to mingle a dash of bitterness and sorrow. For straightway, even by him who has brought back your horses, friend Covert sends me warning that some of my nation have scattered abroad reports full of wickedness and falsehood, of some ill-service or other done by you against me and those of my nation that dwell in this place.

From whatever source that story takes its rise, it is a calumny most wicked and most untrue. But what causes me greater pain is that it is said to arise from Ours, who least of all men should have made such a return. For through your charity, they have so often ere this been praised before all men; they have been so generously defended out of your pulpits against the calumnious outcries of certain weak-minded individuals; and finally,—in your last discourse but one, out of the abundance of your Christian charity,—they have been commended so much above their deserts: especially as for my part, I had so often rehearsed to all our Brotherhood your holy services in our regard, and had enjoined on them to pray for you in return.

Of a truth I cannot believe that the story, whatever it be, can proceed from Ours, at least not from those who dwell here with me; certainly all here, whom I have spoken to on this matter, express abhorrence of the evil thing. Whatever be the source, it is certainly a wicked one,—even the Devil, who is eager to sow discord among such loving brothers. And as that is vanity and a lie, which out of your words, has been forged against us; so what follows, is patent to all as an invention of malice. And if in any way through my good friend Covert or any others I can find out by whom among Ours this falsehood has been sent abroad, he shall feel that he has grievously offended and has inflicted a signal wound, not so much on your charity, as on ourselves and on his own country.

In the meanwhile, most loving and dearest Father and Brother in our Lord, bear this patiently, hard though it be, and in your wisdom nec minus diligas nos nostrosque tui studiosissimos propter alicuius unius vel stultitiam vel maledicentiam. Quanquam spero nostrorum neminem auctorem fuisse tam absurdae et falsae calumniae.

Quod ad cetera gratulor tibi ex animo salvum ad tuos reditum, quibus prospera omnia precor; quibus etiam et praesertim Rđo Patri Provinciali ac caeteris natu majoribus si salutem a me dicas pergratum erit.

Rhemis, raptim et eodem momento quo Coverti de istis ingratis rebus literas accepi.

despise it, because it is untrue; and love us and Ours—most devotedly yours—none the less, merely because of some one fellow's stupidity or scurrility. And yet I still trust that no one of Ours has been the forger of a calumny so preposterous and so untrue.

As to the rest, I congratulate you from my heart on your safe return to your brethern, on behalf of whom I pray for all prosperity. If to them and especially to Rev. Father Provincial, [Père Odon Pigenat] and those who are older, you convey my greetings, it will be a service.

From Rheims, in haste and at the very time that I received Covert's letter about this irksome business. May 6th 1585.

WILLIAM ALLEN.

PARTICULARS OF PRIESTS IN ENGLAND AND WALES, 1692.

FROM THE ARCHIVES OF THE OLD BROTHERHOOD. CONTRIBUTED BY THE REV. RAYMUND STANFIELD.

This description was supplied to the "Old Chapter of England," now represented by the "Old Brotherhood," by the Rev. John Ward, the Secretary. He was son of Thomas Ward, the author of Errata to the Protestant Bible, England's Reformation, and several other controversial and historical works. The original is now amongst the archives of the "Old Brotherhood" and has been transcribed by me for the Society. It is here reduced into short paragraphs. Mr. Joseph S. Hansom has added the explanations in square brackets and footnotes, refraining from comment, except for the curiously named "Quousque".

It may be well to say that the references to "A Roman" mean that the subject was educated at the English College in Rome. R. S.

Riding, where, in one place there is a standing salary of 7 lb. and for assisting the poor of 5 or six towns. He is a learned and vertuous person educated at St Omers and afterwards at Valadolid, his most usual residence at Squire Philip Langdale at Houghton on the Wouldes.

Mr Richard Franck of Valadolid, he has been about 36 yeares in the mission, he was a convert and sent immediately from England. He was at his return sent into Yorkshire by Mr Knightly where he has continued ever since. He resides at Mr Beckwith at Marton in Holderness where he hath always pay'd for his dyet. He has a parish of several towns, the salary is 6 lb. per annum and has besides 4 or five familys to assist none of them above 4 miles from his home. He is aged 62. A learned and very vertuous person and true clergyman and sincerely affected to the Chapter in defence of whose authority he wrote a very learned treatise.

Mr Joseph Metcalf alias Eglesfield of Doway, aged about 56, of above 20 years standing in the mission; his residence has been always at Nutt-hill in Holderness, first with his parents, after that with his eldest brothers widdow. He is a vertuous able man, exceeding prudent and very active. So that in all good respects I scarce know his fellow. He assists a Parish in East end of Holderness which has not that I know of, any certain fund annext to it. But Mr Harry Constable and his sister (unkle and aunt to the Lord Dunbar) give him a voluntary allowance. This latter I do but guesse at, what or how much it is, only I know they allow'd Mr Hodgson, Predecessor to Mr Jos: 14 lb. a year on that account.

Mr Thomas Gilpin alias Stevenson of Doway, aged about 45, of about 13 years standing in the mission. He has been allmost all his time with Mr H. Constable and sister who now live at Garton in Holderness, he is a very vertuous and learned and sober person.

In the City of York.

Mr Robert Vinter of Doway about 55 and been I believe 15 or 16 years on the mission. An able discreet and portly man but grown so fatt, unwieldy and infirm of late that he can act little, so was forced to give over Holdonter* Parish of 15 lb. a year or better and has now only some few at York, Esq's Cholmly at Bransby and 2 or 3 Familys there about to assist. I hear he will winter at Bransby, 8 miles from York.

Mr Robert Ward of Valadolid, has been 8 or 9 years on the mission, his age much under 40. In his first year he taught some boys at Quosque † then lived a year or 2 on what he could get at

* The wapentake of Holderness, containing nearly fifty parishes, already referred to.

† More properly "Quo-usque," now a farm-house, in a secluded position on the river Aire, in the modern parish of Carlton and the ancient one of Snaith. Mr. Joseph Gillow says it was the dower-house of the Stapletons of Carlton, where the Ven. Thomas Thweng, the last of England's priest-martyrs, opened a school. Sir Miles Stapleton was one of those included in the fabricated plot of the infamous Robert Bolron. There has been considerable conjecture as to the origin of the name; but looking at the latinity, and to the occupation by the martyr, it seems York, where old M^r Salkeld dying he struck in with the rich and vertuous widow M^r Westby where he has a very happy residence.

By another letter dated November 19th I have this further account. D^r George Witham of Doway, lately settled at Nabourne with his sister Palms and her husband 3 or 4 miles from York. His excellent qualities are well known. He is made Vicar Foran of Yorkshire.

A letter dated Feb : 169 $\frac{2}{3}$ gives this account of the North Riding.

M^r Thomas Fesby (sometimes written Faceby) * of Doway not much above 60 years of age, of above 30 years standing in the mission very sober and of great regularity but with all of great singularity and a great inflexibility in it. No friend to the Chapter as appears by a letter from M^r Franck dated Jan : 9. 169 $\frac{2}{3}$. He resides with M^r Meynell of North Dalton.

M^r John Marsh, first educated at St Omers, then 9 years at Valadolid (for want of sufficient age) aged about 57 and has been in the Mission about 32 years. A man of excellent witt, parts and zeale. Has been in good places in the South, was banisht London by Dangerfield, † stayed some while in Lancashire and about 11 or 12 years since humbly betook himself to the most desolate and laborious place in this district, that is to assist a great multitude of poore in the moores. He once writt mee that at one Easter he had near 900 communicants and these scattered at great distances. His abode is most at M^r Smiths at Egton Bridge, where he takes some roomes and keepes house of himself.

M^r Marmaduke Dalton alias Jos : Booth, first a Cantabrigian and becoming a Catholic, went to Doway and was sent away thence without orders by D^r Leybourne in the latter end of his reign there, not for any fault but what was common to the best of the house, was ordained in Ireland by Dimissorys from Dean and Chapter and had his faculties from them, is aged near 60 and has been above 20 years on the mission. He is somewhat contemptible in person but far from so in wisdom and virtue, he is very temperate discreet and truehearted B^r has an excellent pen and most zealous for Dean and Chapter. He has managed Doway concerns in the country I think wholly at his own cost now 8 or 9 years since good M^r Meynells death. His mother was daughter to the old Lord Darcey who used to say he had lived to see I cannot tell how many score out of reasonable to think, looking at this small beginning towards the conversion of England, that, with mingled feelings of hope and sadness, he might well designate it, "Till when?" Its occupation as a dower house for life or widowhood lends another meaning. Mr. Harwood Brierley, who does not mention these circumstances, writing in the Yorkshire Weekly Post of 20 Nov., 1909, has other suggestions,—that Prince Rupert had on his standard, at the battle of Marston Moor, a lion, representing Charles I, and, issuing from its mouth, the Ciceronian "Quousque tandem abutere patientia nostra,"—or "How far" from Darton, near Barnsley, to which vicarage some terrier assigns the possession of Quousque Hall and Close. The editors of Kirk's Biographies have confused Quousque with Ponteland in Northumberland.

* Faesby or Feasby, alias Roodon or Rowdon in the Douay Diaries : but the name is from Faceby, near Stokesley, N.R. Yorks.

his loines and yet not one idolator amongst them. I think little Duke [Marmaduke] was the first in which I had some hand but that was after the old Lords death. His mother was so zealous against him that she would scarce ever look at him and I think gave him nothing at her death tho extreeme rich. However he had before 40 lb. per annum for life settled on him by his Father which he enjoys. He resides at near B. Smith.*

Mr Francis Hodgson of Doway, a very vertuous advised and pious man aged about 40 and in the mission about 17 or 18 years. He has been seldom in any place of name unless some few years at Cliffe with George Witham Esq but mostly assisted the poor in the moores and Cleveland. Of late years wholly in Bishopric but last year came into Yorkshire and lives at Hardenhill near the Lady Smith. I suppose he means the B. †

Thos: Cornforth of Doway aged 40 and has been 16 or 17 years in the mission, a vertuous man, his residence with Esq Scroope of Danby.

The account goes on by a letter dated Feb : 23.

Mr Mathew Berry of Doway, aged and has been 10 years on the mission. He seems very active and of a good capacity. He resides with Mr Meynell eldest son to him of North Dalton and assists some people in Cleveland.

Mr Christopher Witham, he is but young and been about 7 or 8 years in the mission. He halts a little but very pious and regular and preaches often. He resides at Cliffe with his father and mother and is a help to many poor people that come thither. The letter mentions not of what College but I suppose Doway.

Mr Perkinson, he is Chaplain to the L. Smith (B) ‡ and I hear an Eminent preacher. He is a meer stranger to me.

Mr Hildreth a stranger likewise to me nor did I ever hear of him till last summer that Bishop Smith had sent him to Thorp about 6 or 7 miles from Cliffe in Mr Methams roome to teach a few boys there. I suppose also of Doway.

Mr Calvert. Hispanus, newly come over and I hear was to wait on Bp Smith at latter end of last summer who had thoughts of employing him in the Moores or else in Holdenshire [Howdenshire] but I hear since he is gone back amongst his relations about Pomfret side. I suppose he may be of Valadolid although the letter does not express it.

An Account of the West Riding by a letter of March 8. 1693.

M Augustin Smithson of Doway of whom by a former letter a character is given but not commendable, no want of parts but of charity a great want, aged about 60, has been in the mission about 30 years and lives with Esq Trapps at Nid[d], a declared enemy to the Chapter.

Mr Paul Stevenson of Doway, aged about 50 and has been about 18 years in the mission an able, witty man, was public preacher in the Clergys Chappel in York and was for some time in prison there upon the revolution in 1688. He resides at Sir Walter Bavisors [Vavasour] Bart: at Staplewood [Hazelwood] and assists some others of good note.

M^r William Pearson a Roman aged above 60, has been in these parts above 20 years, a temperate and regular man. He assured M^r Franck as appears by a letter of Jan: 9. 169 $\frac{2}{3}$ that he owned the Chapters authority and should oppose none of their orders but could not be brought to take the oath (but how he now stands affected may be doubted). He resides with Sir William Tanckred, Bart: at Brampton [Brampton].

M^r Hardcastle of Valadolid, has been above 20 years in these parts and by consequence cannot be very young, much of the same sentiments and temper as M^r Pearson. He resides with M^r Messenger at Fountains Abbey.

M^r John Baites alias Lodge of Doway, aged about 40 and has been 15 or 16 years in these parts, a sober vertuous man, he lives with Sir Miles Stappleton Bart: at Carlton.

M^r Dinmore I think of Valadolid aged about 40 and in these parts above 14 years a sober prudent man, resides with Sir Solomon Swale, Bart. at Stanley [South Stainley].

M^r John Skoopham, I could never tell anything of his education. He came into these parts in the height of the popish plot, entertained by M^r Dealtry of Thorp-hall near Selby, a Prot: with his whole family. He lived there 2 or 3 years, sued for and gott an estate of 30 or 40 lb. per year inheritance (some say more) afterwards he began to practise his profession thereabouts. He is of great witt, memory and reading and says he can with ease preach every Sunday and Holiday and he practises it much when he has conveniency. But he is much subject to melancholy and spleen which together with his secular way of living at first, has run him into some inconveniencys of bad husbandry so as he has sold and spent his estate and besides incurred several debts. About a year or two ago Bp Smith had him with him for some months and I hope has much altered him but believe still in much care of him. He lives about Pomfrett side and assists some people thereabouts but where his residence is I cannot say. I guess him of Doway.

M^r John Simson of Valadolid aged much about 30 and been here about 7 or 8 years. He formerly taught School at Quosque and now lives there with one M^r Errington heir apparent to Sir Miles Stappleton, he is a very vertuous sober man.

M^r Miles Lodge of Doway a vertuous and sober man. I believe he is under 40 and has been 8 or 9 years here. He assists I think Sir George Gascoignes family and many about Barnbow and Red Hall belonging to the Lady Saville.

An Imperfect account given by M^r Ed: Kynne, Archdeacon of Worcestershire and Gloucestershire in a letter dated Nov. 4. 1692.

M^r Edward Kynne, Archdeacon but mentions not of what College age or standing in the mission and residences.

M^r Daniel of Doway lives with my Lady Yate * constantly.

M^r Clayton of Doway who lives sometimes with M^r John Russell of little Malvern, sometimes with M^r Bercelett [Bartlett] of Hill-end, and helps there the neighbouring poor.

M^r Mason lives privately with his sister at Worcester without undertaking any employment unless by chance.

M^r Charles Penrice of Lisboe, has lived with M^r Kynne about 5 years and helps the poor of the country.

These B.B. are of Worcestershire, no account yett given of Gloucestershire.

By a letter of M^r Barret I am informed that M^r Clayton resides now in Worcestershire.

A most imperfect account given by M^r William Skynner Archdeacon of Cornwall Devonshire and Dorsetshire. Jan: 27, 169²/₃.

It follows in this manner. I cannot but approve of the contents of yours, there being a necessity that the Chapter should preserve itself, that by it the whole body may be duly influenced and provided for and consequently that it should be corresponded with and an exact account given it of the number and quality of all its B.B. that at least something of government may be kept up and good offices performed and an utter confusion avoyded. But I cannot persuade myself that this is a seasonable time to discourse such matters at a distance or write characters of particulars. Therefore I beg the favour to excuse me if at present I only tell you without formality that ye two worthy friends in the parts are y^r humble servants and give what assistance lyes in their power to the poor 60 miles and more distant from each other, that I have not seen M^r Smith who came lately down, neither he nor I having the convenience. So cannot well tell how these parts agree with his constitution and that it is in a manner labour lost for me to endeavour to send to M^r Lloyd and when he writes to me his letter is commonly half a year on its journey before it arrives mee. A further representation of ye little concerns is needless at present, not to use any other terms and I hope I shall before long have an opportunity to express myself more fully to you which I much desire to doe being much enamoured with y^r worthy genius and commendable zeal for the common which I shall endeavour to imitate according to my poor abilitys and circumstances. In the interim I shall not fayle to persecute you with such inspired scrolls as an occasion offers.

Mr William Pegg and Mr Henry Harnage, the former of Doway, the other of Lisboe both very well descended, live together in a very honourable residence,* the one for the family, the other for the country, both learned and vertuous of long standing in the mission and great painetakers in the harvest.

Mr Chitiden [Chetwynd] Purcell of Doway and between two or three years in the mission, well learned and vertuous resides with his unkle † and assists where necessary.

Mr Madrine a Roman of good esteeme and credit, not of long standing in the mission. At the date of this letter he resided with Mr Lacon at Linley but since removed as I think into Staffordshire.

There was lately sent in his stead Mr Good of Lisboe a newcomer who seems to be a very capable and well tempered person.

In the Archdeaconry of Surrey and Kent. Mr G. Keny, Archdeacon.

Mr John Rout of Doway, a young man and of no long standing but vertuous and laborious. He mostly resides with Mr. Arundell at Guildford Surrey but helps many poor dispersed at great distances.

Mr Groves I think of Valadolid a late comer, resides at Mr Whittenalls at Peckham in Kent.

Mr G. Keny Archdeacon resides with the Dutchess Dowager of Norfolk at the Colledge in Yorkshire.

OFFICIAL PAPERS RELATING TO CATHOLIC RECUSANTS.

CONTRIBUTED BY THE REV. RAYMUND STANFIELD. EDITED BY
JOSEPH S. HANSOM.

The following papers from the "Old Chapter" collection, transcribed for the Society by our member, the Rev. Raymund Stanfield, called for some research and comment, more especially "A.," where the evidence seemed so clear at first, but was found unreliable in important particulars, involving an historical homicide, shortening a man's life by about twenty-eight years. It has, however, required more comment than generally desirable. Some of the papers are illuminating in themselves, making one wish that more were known of these recusants. A few notes from available sources are added to these. The case of John Wentworth alias Hidalgo, without doubt a priest, of whom practically nothing seems to be known, beyond his alias in Tierney-Dodd, may be cleared up later. This may be accepted as an instalment towards his identity. New names and new facts about old ones will be welcome.—J. S. H.

A. GEORGE TURNER, PHYSICIAN, 1596.

George Turner, Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford, 1572; B.A., 27 March, 1572; M.A., 21 June, 1575; is stated to have died 1582.* The last statement is wrong. In an undated paper, but about 1580,† concerning "suspicion of papistrie" in the College, we read "With Parsons [Robert Persons, later S.J.] and since his departure from the colledge hath [George] Turner, [Christopher] Bagshawe, [William] Staverton and one [Thomas] Pilcher bin fellowes; all which were grevously suspected of religion". And later, "It is said yt Turner also ether is gon or shall goe beyond the seas wth a phisicion, to whom the Q. M^{tie} hath geven leave to passe and to take one wth him". He is said to have taken his degree of M.D. abroad. On his return he was a candidate for admission to the College of Physicians of London, 4 September, 1584, and elected Fellow, 29 February, 1588,‡ being described as a native of Suffolk.§ He has been confounded with another George Turner of St. John's College, Cambridge, where he is described as of Derbyshire.|| That the Doctor was the Balliol College man is shown by our own pages,¶ alive 31 May, 1602, and living "in good worship," in Fetter Lane. In fact he survived his imaginary death twenty-eight years, dying about March, 1609-10.

In spite of his religion Turner had a large practice and was a favourite of Queen Elizabeth, who prevented his being passed over, on that account, for office as an Elector, at the College of Physicians. He was elected Treasurer of the College a few months before his death. A suspicion of dabbling in alchemy may mean nothing. Many people have thought they had discovered the "philosopher's stone". He had the misfortune to be mated to an unfaithful and iniquitous wife, a supposed base daughter of the infamous Dr. Simon Forman. If he had been a Protestant he might have divorced her; but his Christianity was so sublime that he actually left a legacy to the man who had wronged him, with a suggestion that he should marry the faithless woman. A merciful death saved him from witnessing her end on the scaffold for assisting Frances Howard (daughter of Thomas 1st Earl of Suffolk, and the divorced wife of Robert Devereux, Earl of Essex) in poisoning the writer and poet Sir Thomas Overbury, because he had attempted to frustrate her marriage with Robert Carr, Viscount of Rochester, and Earl of Somerset.

Turner's name does not appear in the printed lists of Middlesex recusants; but that partial and negative evidence is not conclusive; however, it is also possible that he may have obtained immunity by purchase or favour.

The object of the large bond for attendance before the Archbishop of Canterbury for some ecclesiastical cause is not stated. The existence of the paper in the "Old Chapter" collection suggests little beyond its Catholic nature. May it be one of the attempts to forge evidence blackening the character of Robert Persons, the Jesuit, whom the government seemed to dread as much as a foreign army? We have seen Persons, and his brother John, rector of Charlinch, appealing him as a trustworthy witness against the slanderers more than five years later.*

Whereas George Turner Doctor of physick hath entered bond in the summe of five hundred pounds to her Majestie for his personal appearance to be made before the Lords of her Majesties most honourable privy Council within 5 days next after notice or warning to him given or left at his own house in Fetter Lane in London. These therefore are hereby to give notice or warning to him the said George Turner in case he be remayning at the said house or else by leaving of these presents at the said house for notice or warning thereby thus to be given unto him for his personal appearance to be made in all points according to the said bond, given at Lambeth the xxvii of November 1596 Jo: † Cantuar.

§ Francis Richardson's statement that he went "to see France," although he returned "because his money was spent," proclaims him a man of means. He may have been the recusant, a miller, of Turnmill Street, Clerkenwell, who appears in the Middlesex Sessions Rolls (vol. ii.) in 1622 and 1623. We may hesitate to declare him the same recusant of Northorpe, in his native country, described as "esquire" and "yoman" in 1637 (ibid. vol. iii.).

C. THOMAS MARROW, 1603.

Before the Bishop of London. The examination of Thomas Marrow taken the 20th June 1603.

He saith that he is about 21 years old, that he was born in Northampton, that he went beyond the seas since her majestys death : that he went to Paris to see the countrie,* that his father is a Romish Catholick, that he thinketh it is a dozen years since he went to Church, that he left the Church because he saw other Churches better than it, that he will not conform himself to goe to the Church, that a box of reliques and such other things he received at Paris but he knoweth not of whom, that he brought with him xxv lres and vi paire of beades of coloured wood, that the Spiritual Doctrine of Lewis of Granada and office de beata Maria are his, he refuseth to take his oath that the piñsses are true or to take any oath att all though he be moved thereunto in the Kings name.

D. JOHN KITCHYN, SAILOR ? 1603.

The examination of John Kitchyn of ye age of 20 years examined by ye Bishop of London.

He saith that he was never a recusant till his late going to ye seas in July next shall be a year, with Sir W^m Munson,† but being on ship board he went to the publick prayers there used and suffering a wreck at ye sea he was by a flemings meanes landed at Ligorno ‡ from whence he went to Florence and there by seeing the manner of their Service he became a Romish Catholique. He was likewise at Pisa and was there shryven by an Italian by ye means of some scumling latyn which this ex^t hath, and staid in both those cities about five weeks, from whence he went to Rome and was in there about a month. In which time being not able to show himself a Catholique but in good will, he was again confessed and reconciled to ye Church

* This seems to imply Marrow was a man of substance and probably education. His signing with a mark may be due to the rack or rheumatism from imprisonment, etc. We see he had books, perhaps in Latin, to read.

† Sir William Monson was a distinguished naval commander, and therefore we may assume that John Kitchyn was a sailor in the navy. If he continued a Catholic and a sailor he might escape the ecclesiastical and civil courts as a recusant ; but it may be well to note that Francis Kitchen, yeoman, or Kytchen of Islington was a recusant in 1605 and 1606.

of Rome in ye penitentiarie there by Philip * Harrison a Jesuit. Ye manner of his conversion and reconciliation at Pisa was as followeth, he protested that he was sorry that ever he went to ye Church in England: promised obedience to ye Church of Rome, that he would never go again to ye Church in England established there by ye lawes of the Realm, [and that he would thenceforth be ever obedient to his ghostly Father scratched out]. After he was reconciled he went to ye English College and had speeches with Fr. Persons only to this effect he declared unto him the cause of his coming to Rome and of his desyre to have his letter to Sr William Stanley as minding to have served under him. All this whereunto he granted and writ his letter to that effect and so did Mr Fitzherbert at this ext desyre unto ye said Sir William. It was known in Rome that her Majesty was dead and that ye king was proclaimed [24 March 1603] but he saith he heard neither speeches against her nor against ye King. He saith that coming to Sr William Stanley, he sent him with a letter by one † porter but understanding ye effect of the letter that he could have 4 crownes a month he neither delivered the letter unto him but determined not to serve under him.

He came by Doway and remayned there 3 days, was in ye Seminary and had speeches with ye President of his being at Rome but requesting of hym this Ext^t whether he had any letter thence unto him and he saying he had none for ye President, caused him to drink and so dismissed him. He had also some ordinary speeches with 2 or 3 English students whose names he knoweth not. Being demanded whether he will not conform himself and go to ye Church he desireth he may not be urged thereunto but is content to hear any learned man that should be appointed to deal with him for this altering of his opinion which he thinketh will hardly be done. He denieth that he is a priest and will be content to depose the same. That all the premises are true concerning his relation and that he is no priest he willing took his oath upon the holy book.‡

JOHN KITCHEN.

E. JOHN CLARK, 1608 or 9?

Although the late Plot, evidently referring to Gunpowder Plot (5 Nov. 1605), there are evidences in the information that it is of 1608 or 1609.

Thomas Sackville, 1st Earl of Dorset, died 19 April, 1608. Robert Cecil, 1st Earl of Salisbury succeeded him as Lord Treasurer, 5 May, 1608. His diminutive, deformed and diseased body is evidently referred to in the fifth article.

Francis Palmer, late of St. Andrew's, Holborn, gentleman, was proclaimed a recusant 12 Sept. 1608.§ By 30 Oct. his fortitude had evaporated, and he attended service at St. Edmund's Church, Lombard Street, and in consequence stay of proceedings was ordered 1 Dec. 1608. His † Illegible.

‡ We can better appreciate his readiness to swear he was not a priest, than his readiness to listen to the casuistry of "any learned man," when we find his age stated as twenty.

degradation as informer may have commenced about the time. His imprisonment, referred to as a "longe hinderance," may have continued after the stay of proceedings. He says he could not obtain bail for his appearance, pending the arrival of a brother.

An informer's word is always taken with suspicion. Still confidential communications may have been made by Clark to him before the latter's apostacy. Such open displays of religion and his opinions on persons and affairs would proclaim Clark a most indiscreet conspirator, a very braggart indeed. All this on the top of suspicion of the 1605 plot, imprisonments in the Tower and most London prisons, condemnation to death and pardon makes the description look overdone, the picture too lurid. In a state paper (Domestic) of 17 Oct. 1610, there is a grant of a lease "formerly belonging to John Clarke of Walthamstow, deceased".

ARTICLES AGAINST JOHN CLARK, RECUSANT.

First he sought to seduce my Brother maintaining all such points as are noted erroneous by Protestants concerning Romish heresy to be the pillar and foundation of truth.

Secondly in publick wise in all places he seekes to seduce as now in prison he doth, affirmed and complained by most of the prisoners in that place not only in words and wearing his Popish reliques apparently but disperses a prophane catechism in the same place in the way of seducing.

Thirdly he decyfered many priests unto me giving notice unto me after a former information that he was the first that was taken in suspicion of the late conspiracy touching the Parliament house and being clapt into the Tower by justice was after committed to most prisons in London and at length after trial was condemned yet at length pardoned for forepassed offences, himself boasting of his religious defence in the face of the whole bench being then present and further noted unto me that touching the maine points of the Papists which we hold enemies and fained that his defence was such in the contrary that he put them all to A non plus.

Fourthly he pronounced loud and uncivil speeches against the state to this effect that the King should be deposed and enforced to leave his kingdom and if resignation were not made according to the Romanists determination, then to be deprived of his life. But if that his majesty yielded to the statutes and appointments then not to be dislocated but to enjoy his former state and right.

Fifthly touching the honourable Lord treasurer, he uttered many infamous speeches not fit almost to rehearse, asking this question, how is it possible that this kingdom of England can be ruled in religious truth when such a crook back and dismembered person hath the full predomination and contains the government of the whole land within the circuit of his disposition. But I make no question but it will fall out, it hath been expected that is that he shall be enforced to poison himself.

Sixthly comming to Tybourn, finding an occasion to speak of that sturdie stander because it was a little decayed he answered that his hope was such that in regard so many righteous martyrs had ended their lives for the truth in that place that afore another pair were built there might rather be such an alteration that a chappell might be built in memorial of them.

I humbly beseech your honour to consider of my longe hinderance by means of my imprisonment who am neither able to defray the charges which this trouble hath drawne me into neither have I any friendes in towne to be bound for my appearance until Saturday next and then my brother surely will be here to witness against Clarke so that in the meantime I beseech your Lordship to consider my necessity and requite me unto the intent of my mind which was only forward to descry any such intention which was perilous unto the state though that such indiscreetness happened unto me at this time but in hopes of your honours remitenance to befriend me according to your honourable disposition I rest in hope your honours most obedient

F. JOHN WENTWORTH, PRIEST, 1637.

The description of John Wentworth, gentleman, as a priest, is justified by the description of five priests as workmen, and it may be well to give the full quotation from a letter of Colonna the Spanish Ambassador to the court St. James's, to Cardinal Mellini, in June, 1624.*

"I brought with me from Flanders the Archdeacon of Cambray, Don Francisco de Carondolet, a noble personage and of known virtue; and Mr. William Low, an Englishman's son, though born and brought up in Flanders, a good virtuous man and well practised in the English tongue. Here I found three persons who are, father friar Simon Stoke,† a discalceate Carmelite, one of the greatest and most approved subjects of his religion [i.e. order] whom I chose for my Confessor: Mr. John Hidalgo, a fellow of the Seminary of Seville, by nation an Englishman though generally taken for a Spaniard, a man irreprehensible; Mr. Musket,‡ a secular priest and a holy man, and one of those that have converted most and laboured most of any that have or do labour in this vineyard. With these five workmen we have endeavoured to increase in this house the glory and reputation of the Catholic religion, with the renown due to the greatness of the subject, which relation I leave to others, seeing there have not been wanting some who have undertaken to make known to your Lordship how little, for gaining this holy end, we have stuck at, human considerations or valued expenses, even with the certain danger of our lives."

And this Examinant believeth that there were four hundred of the said books printed or thereabouts. And he further saith that by the letters J. H. in the title page of the said book is meant John Hydalgo which is this examinants name* in the Spanish tongue, who acknowledgeth himself to be the author and penner of the said book. And this examinant further believeth that he had dispersed very few of them before he understood that the same books were excepted against, and none since that tyme but delivered all he had except five or six which he reserved for his owne use, about a month ago to M^r Badger a printer to be disposed of at the pleasure of the Archbishop of Canterbury his grace.

To the fourth ar[tic]le he answereth and confesseth himself to be a Romish Catholique and so hath been for all his lifytyme. And otherwise he doth not believe this article to be true.

PROCEEDINGS AGAINST CATHOLICS FOR ATTENDING
MASS AT THE SPANISH EMBASSY ON PALM

CONTRIBUTED BY THE REV. RAYMUND STANFIELD. ANNOTATED
BY JOSEPH S. HANSOM.

The following examinations of persons for the crime of attending Mass and receiving the hallowed substitutes for palms in the chapel of the Spanish Ambassador's house in the Barbican is another of the "Old Chapter" collections. The persons named are not all Catholics, nor all attendants; but the proceedings are directed against the Catholics named.

The second volume of Middlesex Records has been consulted for confirmatory evidence, and has been useful to some extent. One must regret that so few records, and so much comment, summaries and extended index are included. Several of the Harleian Society's volumes have been of use. It has been difficult to reconcile some statements in the pedigrees, at times in conflict, and the spellings as Talkarne, Tallakarne (Essex Visitation, Harl. Soc. xiii. 293), &c., are difficult to deal with.*—J. S. H.

* Lower (Patronymica Britannica) gives it as "Tolcarne," saying there are several in Cornwall, evidently descriptive of places; but he fixes the family in Camborne parish. This makes the pronunciation of "Tal" as in "tall," "pall," and "Paul".

† No Thomas Davies, except a physician in 1611 with no address, and Thomas Davies, cutler, of High Holborn in 1615 appear in the recusants' roll; but John Davies, tailor, of St. Sepulchre's, appears in 1608.

‡ George Matchet or Matchett, yeoman or gentleman, appears as a recusant in 1608, 10, 12, 25, 28, 30, 31, 32, 35, 37, 38, 39, 40 and 41, his wife Mary, in 1628, and his wife . . . , in 1631, 32, 35, 37, 38, 39 and 40. Such records from one source alone, proclaim him an unwavering recusant.

in Holborn, scrivener, confesseth that he was at the Spanish Ambassadors house upon Sunday last were a sevensnight, being the 13th of this instant March stilo veteri, between the hours of nine and eleven in the morning and that his errand thither was to speak with one Galloway about a house which he had to sale, that he had there a bough of Ewe in his hand, that he there saw strangers such as he knew not, some English and some others.

23rd Martii 1613. Sara Argall* single woman lying at Mr Cooke's † house in Holborn examined ‡ (This M^{rs} Argall goeth ordinarily ladylike) saith that upon Sunday last was a sevensnight, being Palm Sunday by ye accompt of the parts beyond the Seas, she was at the Spanish Ambassadors betwixt the hours of eight and twelve in the morning where she saw boughs of Ewe in the hands of divers persons from some of which she took a bough and thinketh that ceremony was used upon it, which is accustomed to these days. That she went thither unlike a gentlewoman in a peticoate and a wastecoate.

23rd March, p.d. William Allen ‡ servant to Christopher Beeston, † player, dwelling in Clerkenwell parish examined confesseth that upon Sunday last was a sevensnight (which was ye Palm Sunday according to the accompt beyond ye Seas) he heard Mass at ye Spanish Ambassadors and saw Palms lying upon the table but * Lady Argall, the wife of a knight, is named by Sander in his reminiscences [C. R. S. i. 22] as cast into prison for hearing Mass in the early part of Elizabeth's reign. Dr. Shaw gives no knight at this period; but Sander may refer to Margaret, daughter of John Talcarne of Talcarne () in Cornwall, who married Thomas Argall of London, and secondly as his third wife Sir Giles Alington of Horseheath, co. Cambs (mar. lic. 21 June, 1564, Harl. Soc. xxv. 28, and Vis. Essex, ibid. xiii. 137, 293, and Vis. Cambs, ibid. xli. 15). Sarah Argall, in the text, may be the sixth daughter of Richard A. of East Sutton, Kent, and his wife Mary, daughter of Sir Reginald Scott of Scott's Hall, Smeeth, Kent. Her brother Reginald was knighted in 1606, and it was probably another brother, Samuel, who was knighted in 1622. John Southcote, in his Note Book (C. R. S. i. 116) mentions Mrs. Argoll as a Catholic residing abroad. The name is supposed to be derived from Erccall, co. Salop. The family settled in Essex, and in Kent for a short time. In an undated Elizabethan paper Sarah Argall appears as a prisoner in Wood Street Compter for recusancy.

† In the Middlesex recusants two of the Cooke family named William occur from 1605 to 1622, and it is difficult to differentiate between them and their three wives, Elizabeth, Margaret, and Bridget, the last being a widow in 1623.

‡ The names of William Allen and Christopher Beeston must remain grouped. Jane the wife of Christopher Beeston, and William Allen, yeoman, appear as recusants in 1614, and 1615 when the latter is called his servant, as in the text. Jane wife of C. B., gentleman, and W. A. in 1616. In 1617 she is called "the wife or Christopher Hutchenson alias Beeston, gentleman." and Allen's name does not appear again. In the same list appears Andrea, the wife of Robert Beeston, yeoman, also of Clerkenwell. Christopher seemed to reside in Turnmill Street, and to be connected with the Red Bull Playhouse. Beeston's name only appears casually in the parish registers, as might be expected by his profession. In N.R. Yorks. Records, ii. 119 and 122, we read that another Christopher Hutchinson of Hutton Bushell then aged sixteen and others were presented "for goinge abroad wandering in the cuntry as common players, and for playing of Enterludes," in 1616, and described "as players of Enterludes, vagabundes, and sturdy beggars". In Canon Maddison's Lincolnshire Pedigrees there are pedigrees of Beeston and Hutchinson, the latter having four Christophers about the time (Harl. Soc. li. 536).

denyeth that he knew any person there, saving one Mrs Rainsford * who went thither in company with him and dwelleth in Clerkenwell Parish.

23rd March. Frederick Windsor, gent. lying at Mrs Talbott † in Clerkenwell examined confesseth that the two branches, the one of Ewe and the other of Box found in his desk were delivered unto him by one John Rowton (whose lodging he knoweth not) who told him to keep them for his sake and further saith that about a day or two past he was at the Spanish Ambassadors gate to speak with one Barber, porter to that house and his this examinants Countryman.

24th March 1613. Robert Baxter of ye Parish of St. Andrews in Holborn, gent, examined saith that, upon Sunday last was a sevennight (being ye Catholique Palm Sunday) he was at Mass at ye Spanish Ambassadors wherent were present sundry ladyes and gentlewomen, English whom he knew not as also English men none of whom he knew save only one Atkins one of ye Spanish Ambassadors household servants. That there were hallowed boughs almost in every persons hand that was present there that day which were delivered unto them before his coming, for as he saith it was about tenn of the clock before he came thither and whether this was ye first, second or third Mass that was celebrated there that morning he knoweth not, because every such solempne day there are three masses celebrated every morning as he hath heard but at this Mass (heard by him) were present near an hundred persons.

25 March 1614. John Galloway ‡ of ye Parish of St Sepulchres London Vyntenour, examined confesseth that he was at the Spanish Ambassadors house uppon Sunday last was sevennight being their Palm Sunday and staid there from about nine of the clock till eleven, that he went thither in company with George Matchett from his this examinants house and being asked whether he heard Mass there that

* In 1610 Richard Raynesford, gentleman, was committed for refusal to take the oath of allegiance (and presumably of supremacy as a Catholic). The name seems to be of the Midland counties, settled in London and the neighbourhood, but it appears a few times in the parish registers.

† Eleanor Talbot, widow, of St. Andrew's, Holborn, conformed in 1608, and may have been the daughter of Sir Thomas Baskerville, wife of John Talbot of Longford, Salop, and mother of the tenth Earl of Shrewsbury. Margaret Talbot, spinster, of St. James's, Clerkenwell, in 1614, may be wrongly described as "widow" in the two following years, whilst there is a fourth entry of the same name, a spinster, in 1617 of St. John's parish, and Eleanor T., spinster, of St. James's, Clerkenwell, in the same year.

‡ On 3rd September, 1608, in the printed Middlesex records it is stated that John Galloway, with no further description, "not onley refuseth to take the oath of obedience, but hath also divulged abroad that His Majesty is but a temporall Kinge and hath nothing to doe in Causes ecclesiasticall". It may be a coincidence, but Payne (Nonjurors in 1717) gives Dr. Stephen Galloway (son of another Stephen, and Elizabeth Turberville his wife declaring their estate in Pall Mall Street; whilst Mary Galloway, spinster, of St. Giles's-in-the-Fields makes declaration of £2000 on mortgage of an estate at Danby-on-Wiske, N.R. Yorks. also appears.

These people should not, however, be confounded with the English or Irish Monsieur or Dr. Gallway (C. R. S. vii. 118 and 111), edited into Scotch Galloway on p. 118, who seems to me identical with the French Dr. Gallois or Galloys, young Henry Bedingfeld's medical attendant at La Flèche.

day saith he is not bound to accuse himself and that he will hear Mass no oftendor than he cann.

28th March 1614 Robert Wise * of ye Parish of St James Clerkenwell, weaver examined before the Lord Bishop of London, confesseth himself to be a popish Recusant and that he was at the Spanish Ambassadors upon Sunday last was a fortnight being their Palm Sunday and there heard Masse and had a bough of hallowed Box delivered unto him by ye priest as likewise there was unto divers others which bough he brought away with him but gave no part thereof to Thomas Davyes or any other without ye house and that there were present at that Masse in the Chappell at the least 200 persons the one half thereof being no Spaniards. (* Note that Davyes saith he had ye bough of Wise.)

25th March 1614. Henry Wise of Shoe Lane in the Parish of St. Brides, London, weaver, examined confesseth that upon Sunday last he was in the aforenoon at the Spanish Ambassadors house and heard Divine service there being present thereat forty people many of them English whose names he knoweth not.

29th March 1614. Elizabeth Moore † widow lying at ye Lady Skynners, ‡ being examined confesseth herself to be a popish Recusant and that upon Sunday last was a sevensnight being their Easter Day she was at the Spanish Ambassadors house about nine or tenn of ye

* It will be noted that Robert Wise is described above as of Harwell in Berkshire, which will account for his not appearing in the Middlesex recusants. On the other hand, I find in the parish registers a Robert Wise marrying 8 May, 1608, to Susan Harris, having five children baptised between 1609 and 1618 and being buried himself 16th January, 1619-20 when he is described as a "householder". In the Berkshire Visitation of 1664 (Harl. Soc. lvi. 243) John Lyddall of Yxmere (sic), Oxon, who died 1632, married Margaret daughter of John Wise of Harrow (? Harwell), Berks. Other Wises in the same volume seem to be of Oxfordshire. John Wise of Drayton, Oxon, disclaimed to bear arms in 1634. Henry Wise, weaver, of Turnmill Street, and Cecilia his wife appear as recusants in 1623, and Frances, wife of Hugh Wise, yeoman, of Clerkenwell in 1635.

† In 1606 and 1607 are named as recusants, "George Moore, gentleman, and his wife Elizabeth Moore alias Elizabeth Moore, spinster, both late of St. James's in Clerkenwell"; but in 1608 it runs "George Moore, gentleman, his wife Elizabeth Moore, Francis Moore, yeoman, Charles Moore, gentleman, Mary Moore, spinster, Anne Moore, spinster, Elizabeth Moore, spinster, . . . of the parish of Stepney". The wife of George Moore may be the widow in 1614.

‡ Three Skinners were knighted in 1603, and one in 1604; but if "ye Lady Elizabeth her grace" means Elizabeth, Lady Skinner, this may be Elizabeth, daughter of Robert Fowke of Symondsburry, near Bridport, Dorset. Her first husband was Henry Middlemore of Enfield, Groom of the Chamber to Q. Elizabeth, by whom she had a son Robert who married Dorothy, daughter of Peregrine Fulstow and his wife Dorothy, daughter of Sir Thomas Tresham of Newton, Northants. Elizabeth Fowke married secondly Sir Vincent Skinner of a Lincolnshire family (Harl. Soc.

In 1611 he writes to the Earl of Salisbury, Lord Treasurer (State Papers, 1611-18) asking favour in reference to a debt, seeming a defalcation of £177 10s. He was imprisoned for debt, and buried at St. Andrew's, Holborn, 29 February, 1615-16, "out of Isaac Bringhurst's house in High Holborn, being a Prison". The widow and their son William S. of Thornton Curtis, co. Lincoln (where she was buried 16 Dec., 1633) renounced administration (Harl. Soc. lii. 888). The text does not make it clear that she was a Catholic, or sent a messages to the priest, only that she had a friend and a nurse Catholics.

THOMAS, FIRST LORD ARUNDELL OF WARDOUR, AND HIS PROPOSAL TO SETTLE THE MANOR OF CHRIST-CHURCH-TWINEHAM, HANTS, ON THE CHURCH, 1638.

JOSEPH S. HANSOM.

This paper is another of the "Old Chapter" documents, written cursively from beginning to end; but here spaced into paragraphs. The writer "E. Jr." may possibly be Edmund Ireland vere Dutton, who Gillow (Dict. Eng. Cath. iii. 548) says restored the finances of Douai College to a flourishing condition, when he was procurator, circa 1641-7. If so the paper may be a memorandum or report as to moral debts by recovery of which he hoped to achieve that success. The date cannot be fixed within the years 1641-7, as he had already acted as agent for the College in London and elsewhere (ibid.). Mr. Gillow writes that he died a Carthusian at Nieuport, 1 April, 1652.

For the purpose of the paper it need only be stated that Thomas, 1st Lord Arundell of Wardour, died 7 November, 1639, a year before which the account begins.

Mr. Edward Doran Webb has obliged me by supplying several missing particulars of the family, covering the whole of the persons in the paper.

His lordship mar. 1st Mary Wriothsley 5th dau. of Henry, 2nd Earl of Southampton, by whom he had—

1. Thomas, who succeeded as 2nd baron, and mar. Blanche 5th dau. of Edward Somerset, 4th Earl of Worcester.
2. William of Horningsham, Wilts, mar. Mary, dau. of Anthony Mary Browne, 2nd Viscount Montagu.
1. Elizabeth Maria, mar. 4 July, 1606, Sir John Philpot of Thruxton, Hants.

By his second marriage to Anne, dau. of Miles Phillipson of Crook, Westmoreland (she died 28 June, 1637, bur. at Tisbury) he had—

2. Katharine, mar. Ralph Eure, eld. son of William 4th Lord Eure of Wilton, co. Durham. Ralph, dying v.p., their son William succeeded as 5th Lord Eure.
3. Mary (the "sister Somerset" of the text), who mar. Sir John Somerset of son of Henry, 5th Earl and 1st Marquess of Worcester.
4. Ann, mar. Cecil Calvert, 2nd Lord Baltimore of Baltimore, co. Longford, who founded Baltimore city, Anne Arundell county, Maryland, North America.
5. Frances, mar. John Talbot, 10th Earl of Shrewsbury.
6. Margaret, mar. Sir John Fortescue of Saldon, Bucks.
7. Clara, mar. Humphrey Weld who bought the Lulworth Castle estates, Dorset.

"Sr Tho. Reynolds" is doubtless Sir Thomas Reynell of West Ogwell, Devon, knighted 1603; but he is only mentioned as acquiring the manor of Slapton on the southern coast of Devonshire. William Knipe is evidently the seneschal or steward. Mr. Webb says the family was an old Catholic one, settled at Semley, their house with its little chapel still standing, and that Edward Knipe the last member died 1821 aged 78.

Mr. Webb adds that Lord Arundell bought the manor and castle of Christchurch Twyneham, Hants, 1 November, 1601, from Henry Hastings of Woodlands, Dorset, for £5,000. By the survey it seems to have appreciated to the value of £18,000 by 1638, a few years after which depreciation may have followed when Blanche Somerset was heroically defending even Wardour Castle against the parliamentarians, and her husband, the 2nd Lord Arundell, destroyed it rather than suffer it to be a help to the enemies of his king, for whom he sacrificed his life on the field of battle.

The family were obviously not the best pleased at the munificent grant ; and the writer of the statement (whether Ireland or not) evidently felt that a value of over £100,000 of present money was a strain on it, calling for accommodation.—J. S. H.

NOTES TOUCHING CHRISTCHURCH.

1. The Lo: Ar: a year before his death declared to Mr W^m Knype that he intended to give Christchurch for his soul and bad him inform himself how it might be settled sure. This Mr Knype told me.

2. In the beginning of his last sickness whilst his Lo:p yet walked up and down his drawing chamber, he told me that he intended to give twenty thousand for his soul, for Christchurch, said he is surveyed at eighteen thousand pounds and I will give copihold to two thousand pounds value. Christchurch he said he intended to settle presently and therefore sent up to London to have good advise how it might be made sure from the danger of the Law, adding that it was land of his own purchasing, the clearest and most unquestionable he held.

3. Growing weak with sickness he bad me tell Will: Knype that he would have a conveyance of Christchurch to the Lo: Bal: made out of hand. I replied that Mr Knype was very busy in his Lo:ps Audit. Tell him (said he) I will have this done, all other business set aside.

4. I moving him afterwards to perfect the collateral security for the manor of Slapton to my Lo: of Shrewsbury. Let the conveyance of Christchurch be done said he for that is the business ; then he added. I will do that of Slapton also but this is of more importance.

5. After he had given order to have the deeds of Christchurch drawn, for five days together he still called for it and when the other deed for security to my Lo: of Shrewsbury was by his steward presented to him to be sealed, he put it back and called for the deed of Christchurch and could not be drawn to seal ye deed of security till that of Christchurch was presented and perfected.

6. When I brought him word that the conveyance of Christchurch was ready for ye seal his Lo:p exulted in spirit, lifting up his eyes to heaven and said I am glad of it. I hope that will satisfy all.

7. After ye deeds was sealed and delivered, he rested in quiet and looking upon me and calling me by name he said Oh were I Emperor of the whole world I would give it all for ye honour of God and the good of my soul.

8. I hearing that Christchurch should be engaged by a former deed made for ye use of the La: Ar: and her children, was troubled lest his Lo:ps good intentions should be frustrated. Whereupon I asked ye La: Bal: and M^{rs} Eure if they would be pleased that I should manifest to his Lo:p ye former engagement of that Manour. But they said in no case for it might prejudice them and M^{rs} Eu: added that I should not only prejudice them present but also the absent and her sister Somerset would think I did her ye greatest disfavour in the world.

9. At another time I asked the same ladies if they did not think that if his Lo:p understood that the Manor was engaged he would not recall those things he had made to his children with power of revocation, and they said they doubted not but he would.

10. The Lo: Bal: seeing at several times his Lo:p's great zeal and earnest desire to provide for his soul said before ye said ladies that he did assure himself that if his Lo:p knew how other things were engaged he would rather give Warder Castle for his soul than have his intention frustrated.

11. I not yet assured that his Lo:p would leave the whole Manour to be freely disposed of asked ye parties above mentioned whether in case his Lo:p should give 6 or 7000 out of that Manour for his soul they would be contented to give 500 a piece. My Lord Bal: his Lady and M^{rs} Eure accorded thereunto and M^r Weld made answer that he would give as much as any should and then correcting himself he said he would give as much as my Lo: Bal: would give. Afterwards walking with me upon the tarras he said that if his Lo:p should give that Manour to pious uses he would not meddle with it for he did think it would not do him any good.

12. M^{rs} Weld wished me to move my Lo: Ar: to pay in present two thousand pounds of her portion which would be due before Christmas in regard her husband had use for the money. I moved him accordingly and his Lo:p caused the said sum to be paid presently and deceased before ye day that it was due so as if it had not been paid M^r Weld must have expected till the lands made over to S^r Tho: Reynolds had been sold.

13. I do protest seriously in presence of Almighty God before whom both I and all parties concerned in this affair must give a strict account that the fear I had of prejudicing My Lords daughters and their husbands and the confidence I had that nature, piety and conscience would prevail so much with them that they would not make difficulty but concur with all alacrity to any reasonable motion for ye good of his Lo:ps soul so eagerly by him thirsted, were two strong motives which hindered me from discovering to his Lo:p the engagement of Christchurch, which had I done M^r Weld for certain had not received his £2000 for his Lo:p did very hardly accord to pay it as the case stood because as he said he should want present money to employ for his soul, and of ye sum which he then appointed to be given in present alms £250 was by that occasion expected half a year. M^{rs}

Eure was afraid of her Rectorie. What do you think would become of ye £1000 bond given to my Lo: Shrewsbury and the like to my Lo: Bal: both free gifts and both given in ye latter end of my Lords sickness after these matters were agitated? And what could I find in myself stranger so great a willingness not only to hinder but to further their particular interests but think that they no strangers but children most tenderly beloved, sucking from their cradles upwards principles of religion as well as reason, would be forwards to embrace all just conscientious and honourable ways to comply with their noble and religious fathers intentions for the good of his soul sithence that ye way to help himself was concealed from him merely and only for their particular interests and that matters might proceed in a peaceable way. Of these things a strict account will be exacted in ye day of just and equitable judgment. What informations I have here given you I am able to depose every particular upon oath for though many years be past yet I took notes of them upon the place and in ye time when they passed.

SOME RECORDS OF THE MONMOUTH MISSION.

CONTRIBUTED BY JOHN HOBSON MATTHEWS.

THE CATHOLIC MISSION OF MONMOUTH.

Although, ever since the Reformation, the Catholics of the county town had been visited at frequent intervals by one or more of the proscribed and outlawed priests of the "Roman obedience," * it was not until the reign of James II. that the very numerous adherents of the Catholic Faith in this neighbourhood obtained such a measure of toleration as enabled them to assemble for public worship otherwise than secretly. Then it was that the old Norman chapel of Saint Cadoc at Monmouth Priory was resorted to by the Catholics of this town, it having been restored for the purposes of Mass and other Catholic rites.†

On the accession of William of Orange, the exercise of Catholicism was again forbidden under dire penalties, and its adherents once more found themselves under the necessity of meeting in secret. The place which they now chose for their religious assemblies was an upper chamber in the rear of the Robin Hood inn, at the bottom of Monnow Street. This ancient messuage, still standing, with an ogival doorway on the street, and a pent-house extending along the whole front, clearly dates from the 16th century.

In 1778, in accordance with the provisions of the first Catholic Relief Act, about fifty Catholics of Monmouth and the immediate neighbourhood attended before the Justices in the Shire Hall, and, on taking the oath of allegiance to King George the Third, were registered as exempt from penalties for religion.

In 1792 the Catholics of Monmouth formed a committee to arrange for the erection of a chapel in that town. The committee (see post, p. 144) comprised (inter alios) the Right Reverend William Gregory Sharrock, O.S.B., Bishop of Telmessus in partibus infidelium; William Vaughan of Courtfield, esq.; Miss Mary Kane, and Michael Watkins. The lastnamed was the owner of the Robin Hood, and was a builder, and to him was entrusted the construction of the new chapel. It was built on the east side of Saint Mary Street, and was little more than a spacious room, with an altar at the east end. The chapel had to be built in a secluded position. It is said to have been expressly stipulated by the Mayor and Corporation that the building was not to look like a church, and that the worshippers were only to enter it one at a time. Access to the chapel door was up a narrow passage, and behind a couple of small, shabby houses—for it was not to open on to the public street. In 1802 the congregation numbered 120.

Though the Monmouth chapel was not opened until 1793, its registers commence 10 January 1791. The earlier entries are, of course, only of Baptisms; but Marriages began to be recorded in November 1800. The chapel was registered for the solemnisation of Matrimony 1 July 1837.

A Catholic Mission had existed in the Powells' old mansion at Perthîr, in the parish of Rockfield, perhaps ever since the Reformation. Its registers, which are kept at Monmouth, date from 1751. (See C. R. S. vol. i. p. 271.) The Mission was served by Franciscans Recollects, who had here their Noviciate until 1818. Two of these friars successively served the Monmouth chapel, from 1797 till 1800, viz., the Revv. Peter Jones and George Roberts, O.S.F.R. Owing to this and other circumstances, many entries of Baptisms performed at Monmouth must be sought in the Registers of Perthîr. Until about 1825 the Monmouth Mission was united with Holywell, Flintshire, both chapels sharing the same endowments, which included certain farms in cos. Monmouth and Flint.

The following is a list of the priests in charge of the Monmouth Mission, with the year of the appointment of each:—

1797. Peter Jones, O.S.F.R., Missionary Apostolic.

1798. George Roberts, O.S.F.R., Miss. Ap.

1802. George Gildart, Miss. Ap.

1818. John Jones, Miss. Ap.

1835. Edward Metcalfe,* Miss. Ap.

1836. Thomas Burgess, Miss. Ap. (Afterwards Bishop of Clifton.)

1851. Thomas Burgess Abbott (nephew of the last), later made Missionary Rector.

1893. James Bolton Moore, priest in charge.

1898. Sidney Nicholls, priest in charge.

The congregation at the two Sunday Masses now numbers on an average 100, not including the Militia, but including seven White Sisters from Brittany.

A. RECUSANTS PRESENTED AT THE MONMOUTH QUARTER SESSIONS, 1716-9.

The earliest book of Quarter Sessions Records of the Borough of Monmouth is a thin unbound foolscap paper cahier containing the Minutes of the Court from 1716 to 1721. Among the entries are the Presentments of a very few Popish Recusants, who in nearly every case are Margaret and Mary Duffield of the hamlet of Wyesham in the parish of Dixon.†

The custom of presenting the Recusants at the Sessions was evidently becoming obsolete. It died a lingering death in 1720, after a final flicker of life in 1719, in which year a last spasmodic attempt was made by the Justices to schedule the Catholics throughout Monmouthshire.

It is surprising that so few persons should be presented here, and those almost exclusively from one place, especially in view of the censure on the Constables in 1716 for their neglect of duty in this respect. The town and neighbourhood of Monmouth at this time, and for long afterwards, abounded in obstinate Papists. Why the Constables of Wyesham in particular should have distinguished themselves by their Protestant zeal is a mystery.

* Formerly O.S.B. and chaplain at Talacre, Flintshire; compiler of the Welsh Catholic prayer-book, "Llyfr Gweddi y Catholig" (Liverpool, 1837), and founder of Saint Mary's, Newport.

† The farm called the Duffields near Monmouth is probably named after this family.

* These extracts do not purport to comprise all the entries relating to Catholics, but only such as are known by me. At the time the Registers commence, probably more than half the inhabitants adhered to the Faith.

† This must not be taken to mean that the ceremony was performed by a heretical minister. The baptisms of Catholics were often so entered in the Protestant Parish Registers, with no hint of their having been performed by a priest.

‡ In the parish of Wonastow. This fine old mansion still remains. It has five priests' hiding-holes.

§ Widow of Henry Herbert of Wonastow, esq., and dau. to William, 3rd Earl of Worcester, K.G.

|| Williams of Monmouth Priory were Catholic from the middle of the 17th to the middle of the 18th century, or perhaps longer.

 1791. Bur. Charlotte Evans de Grange.

John Williams aged 80. A popish Priest, who possessed the Grange Estate given him by three sisters the proprietors of it Frances Mary & Elizabeth Evans & also of a very large property given him by two sisters in Abergavenny, Mrs Merediths valued, ut fertur, 20,000 £ was buried December 4.

["The Grange referred to belonged, I have understood, of late years to the Catholic chapel in Monmouth and has been recently sold to Lord Llangattock" (Letter from J. A. Bradney, Esq., of Tal-y-coed, to J. H. M., written in 1902).]

E. APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE FOR THE ERECTION OF THE CATHOLIC CHAPEL AT MONMOUTH.

A small sheet of vellum, written on one side; in my possession. Endorsed "Monmouth Chapel accompts".

The Catholicks of Monmonth and its Vicinity having long laboured under considerable inconveniences in regard to a place of Worship, and being firmly persuaded that a Public Catholick Chapel in the Town of Monmouth will be attended with many advantages, do constitute and appoint the R: R: Mr Sharrock, Rev^d Mr Weetman, Rev^d Mr Gerard, J. P. Lorymer Esq^r: P: Hobbes M.D., Thomas Embry and J. S. Woollett a Committee with full power to associate new Members when necessary, & making every regulation for carrying into execution so desireable a purpose, as Witness our Hands this 1st Day of January 1792 and following Days.

F. THE EARLIER REGISTERS OF THE MISSION OF MONMOUTH, 1791-1830.

The older volume of Registers of the Catholic Mission of Monmouth, preserved in the Presbytery there, is a square octavo paper book half-bound in marbled boards. It contains also a copy of the Registers of Perthîr, as printed in C. R. S. vol. i. p. 272. The greater part is in the handwriting of the Rev. Thomas Burgess, Missionary Apostolic; but the latest portion was written by his nephew and successor, the Rev. Thomas Burgess Abbot.

On 5 March 1906 I discovered, in a box at the Presbytery (where it had lain forgotten 56 years), a small book which proved to be an earlier copy from the original Register of the Revv. George Roberts and Peter Jones, O.S.F.R. It contains the Baptisms and Marriages solemnised at Monmouth and Perthîr from 1799 to 1818, and a list of the Catholics in the two Missions from 1798-1818.

At the same time and place I found a transcript made by the Rev. George Gildart 29 January 1816, from Bishop Sharrock's original, with a continuation by him and his successor, the Rev. John Jones. The Rev. Thomas Burgess' copy was doubtless made from Messrs. Gildart's and John Jones', which is written in a square octavo paper book bound in calf. It had evidently been intended and partly used for some other purpose. Leaves have been torn out at one end, and, though the first entry is in 1802, a leaf bears the inscription:

“paid Mr^s Winn for Mr Brians diet at “severall times 13^l by me Rog. Kyn.”

This allusion to the Wynn and Kynaston families shows the book was brought from Holywell by Mr. Gildart in 1802.

Many of the earlier entries are duplicated in the Mission Registers of Perthîr and Llanarth. (See vol. i. 272; iii. 144.) As regards the Perthîr Register, this opportunity is taken to state that the older copy, discovered in 1906 as above mentioned, contains a few particulars omitted from the version printed in vol. i.—mostly the names of the parishes in which the parents of the newly baptized resided. (See post, p. 161.)

[The following is written on the inside of the front cover :—].

Benefactors to the Chapel in Holywell, [co. Flint,] with obligations as follows

Mr Francis Fettyplace & Lady one Mass a week.

(N.B. The above obligation was not transferred to Monmouth.)

Robert & Mary ap Gwynn one Mass a week.

Edward Thomas & Elizabeth Hughes 8 Masses a year (4 for Elizabeth.)

Eleanor Tudor & Edward Parry to be remembered.

H. NEEDHAM OF HILSTON.

Sebastian Needham, a Catholic, settled in the parish of Skenfrith, Monmouthshire, in or shortly before the year 1660, and his descendants figure in the Recusant Rolls from 1679 onwards. Near the end of the 17th century they became possessed of the fine estate of Upper Hillstone or Hilston, in the parish of Saint Maughan's; and owned it until 1803, when John Needham sold it and removed into Somersetshire.

Most of the gentlemen of this family were lawyers. Being Catholics and so unable to subscribe the Test Oaths, they were not legally qualified attorneys or barristers and could not sue for their fees; but they carried on what must have been a fairly lucrative practice in preparing deeds and wills for their Catholic neighbours and advising them on points of law. I have seen the name of Robert Needham (1650-1723), in particular, appended as a witness to many legal documents prepared by him. It is subscribed in a fine firm court-hand, furnishing a singular example of the last surviving school of good English orthography.

In the pavement of the chancel of Saint Maughan's parish church is a vault-stone inscribed in memory of Robert Needham of Hillstone, esq., ob. 1769, aet. 51, and his parents Robert and Anne Needham, who both died 1720.

A pedigree of the family will be found in Bradney's Monmouthshire (Vol. i. p. 58). It includes a Jesuit, a Franciscan and three secular priests.

The old home of the Needhams was burnt down in 1838 and replaced by a classic mansion.

Arms of Needham of Hillstone: Argent, a bend engrailed azure between two buck's heads cabossed sable.

J. Letter of the late Reverend Mr. Thomas Abbot, Rector of the Catholic Mission of Monmouth, to Alfred Williams, Esq., F.P., of the Mount, Caerleon, dated from Lancaster, 1 September 1902.

Of the authentic history of the Prichard family I can only relate the little I was able to pick up in the neighbourhood of Skenfrith and Grosmont from the old Catholics living in the neighbourhood of the Graig hill 50 years ago.

The last of the family, Miss Prichard, who left Old Hillstone about 1836, I think, had been obliged to sell the Graig to Mr. Thomas Wakeman. Just before I went to Monmouth she used to drive from the farm of Old Hillstone (so the congregation told me) to Mass, so long as she was living there; but she left before I got into the neighbourhood.† I heard she was on a visit at Rotherwas, and I rode over to make her acquaintance; but she had left on the morning of the day that I arrived, and I lost sight of her, and never heard where or when she died.

Bishop [Matthew] Prichard, O.S.F., was the second Vicar Apostolic of those parts. There was a sort of Will of Conscience on the Perthyre estate, to support two priests to attend the numerous Catholics still in that neighbourhood. The Bishop resided there with a priest for the Powell family, who afterwards became connected by marriage with the Lorymers. The last Lorymer made a bankruptcy of the estate by his folly and extravagance, and died about 20 or 30 years ago. Whilst living with the Powells, Bishop Prichard died at Perthyre and was buried in the Powell vault under the chancel floor in Rockfield parish church. His tombstone, with its long Latin inscription, still forms the predella under the communion-table of that church. The late incumbent was a bigoted parson. In doing some repairs to the church, he had this and two other ‡ Catholic tombstones removed, and offered for sale as waste materials! This I heard from some of the Protestant parishioners;

* Robert Needham is my name,
England is my nation,
Hilstone is my dwelling-place,
And Christ is my salvation—

a common fly-leaf rhyme at this period.

† Father Abbot went to Monmouth 1841. He was a native of Lancashire and the descendant of a martyr. He was in charge of the Monmouth Mission over fifty years, and was a great authority on its history and antiquities. He died at Lancaster, 1904.

‡ One was the tombstone of the Rev. Francis Andrew Weetman, O.S.F., in the churchyard, dated 1795.

so I walked over, and saw the stones reared against the boundary wall. The Vicar happened to call upon me, with his wife, a few days after on some business; so I asked him why he had removed the Bishop's tombstone. He said he did not think it right to have a "Romish" bishop's tombstone there. I said, "Are you not going to replace it?" He replied, "No, certainly not". Then I said, "I will write to my friend the Rev. Dr. Oliver, of Exeter, who has published * the history of Bishop Prichard with a full description of his Lordship's burial there and the inscription on the stone, and I will get him to put a footnote in the next edition, to the effect that, through the bigotry of the Rev. Ellis Everett, this monument was removed in such a year". He then said he would have it replaced immediately. I said, "If you don't, I will hand down your name to posterity like Pontius Pilate's in the Creed". It has been replaced, and his successor, Canon Harding, I am told, still repeats the anecdote to visitors.

The Breviaries of Bishop Prichard were given to me, and I left the two large quarto volumes in the Presbytery library at Monmouth. One of them was mended at the back with a harp-string. The family portraits † I sent to Mr. Herbert of Clytha, but that of the Bishop was sent to Downside. The oak bedstead on which he was said to have died I converted into a reredos to Father Kemble's altar, which I placed in the tribune of my church at Monmouth.

You must please excuse my shaky writing, being in my 83rd year.

* Collections, p. 389.

† They represent the Misses Bridget, Catherine and Winifred Powel of Perthir. Two large oil paintings, of the Crucifixion and Saint Catharine, from the domestic chapel of Perthir, are now in Monmouth Catholic church. There are also a portrait of the Rev. John Williams of Perthir and the Grange (vide ante), and a small portrait on copper of Bishop Matthew Prichard, V.A.

THE CONFESSION OF JOHN HAMBLY, PRIEST.

CONTRIBUTED BY THE REV. JOSEPH L. WHITFIELD, M.A.

P.R.O. Dom. Eliz. 192 (46).

From this document we obtain an outline of the life of this martyr, of whom we otherwise possess but little information. It is also of great interest from the information it preserves concerning the College at Rheims, and concerning the manner of life of the early seminary priests.

The confession was procured by fear, not by physical torture; but we can find indications of the pressure used by the examiners, in the martyr's supplementing his admissions by details that he had at first endeavoured to suppress. This confession shows how necessary was that reticence of the missionaries concerning their labours, which the martyr records. He had to suffer for his treachery since, by reason of it, his fellow-Catholics brought him no relief during his imprisonment.

The martyr suffered at Salisbury about Easter, 1587, the necessary fortitude being granted to him, according to Fr. Warford, S.J. (Collect M. see Pollen, Acts, p. 268), in a supernatural manner.

In one point the confession differs from the Douay Diaries, where it is stated (p. 200) that Hambly received the subdiaconate on the same occasion as the tonsure and minor orders.

The document was employed by R. Simpson for an article in The Rambler (N.S. vol x., p. 325) but has not been produced in extenso hitherto. It is here produced verbatim but not litteratim.

[The Covering Letter]

[Endorsed.].—20 Aug. 1586. From the Bishoppe of Salisburie & Mr. Giles Estcourte, with the examination of John Hamblie als Tregwethan a Semynarie priest.

To the Right Honorable the Lords of her mai^{tis} moste honorable Privie Counsell.

Our humble duties unto your honours remembered. It may please your lordships to be advertised that

Upon a search made on the Even of the Assumption of our Ladye last in such suspected & other recusants houses as are nere about these parts for the solemnisation of which popish feast we thought these persons would assemble themselves together we found in one recusant's house, at Knoyle near Sarum, a seminary Remes man called John Hambly als Tregwethan, a Cornish man born, who, as he confesseth hath said divers Masses, as well in London as in ye country, & hath reconciled divers: so hath he discovered & set down the names of divers other seminaries, very dangerous & seditious people some remaining about London & some of them in other counties. These persons being the known enemies to God, & dangerous to her Majesties most happy government we thought it our duties to advertise y^r honours as well of this person as of his confession the copy whereof we have herewith sent to your honours to whose honourable consideration we leave him & his deserts. This seminary (as it also falleth out by his confession) was at this last assizes holden in Somersetshire indicted & condemned upon the new statute of treason as a seminary priest, & since brake prison & escaped; & yet the man is not so obstinate at this time but he can be contented (so he may obtain mercy of her majesty, & pardon for his life) to forsake the Pope, come to ye church, & willingly follow her majesty's proceedings, as he beareth us in Hand. And thus we heartly leave y^r Lordships to Gods merciful tuition, from Sarum this 20 of Aug. A^o 1586.

[The Confession.]

The confession of John Hamblye als Tregwethan of the parish of St Mabyn in Cornewall clerke, taken the xviiith day of August in the xxviiith yere of the reign of our sovereign Ladye Queen Elizabeth before the Reverend Father in God John Bishoppe of Sarum, & Gyles Estcourt Esquire two of her Majesty's Justice of her peace within the county of wilts.

The saide ex. saythe that he hathe byn brought uppe from his infancy at divrs scholes in Cornewall learning the Lattyn tonge unless it were at some times when he discontinued at his father's house.

And that about four yeres past one Nicholas Bawdwyn dwelling in the same parish where this ex. dwelt, and being before that a scholar in Oxford in Exeter College there, gave unto this ex. a book called the reasons of refusal amongst certain other books, with whom this ex. having often conference, and by reading of these books, himself having a mind withall to the Romish Religion, at Christmas was three yeres last began to forbear coming to the Church since which time he hath not been at any service in any Church in England.

Nere about which tyme of Christmas was three yeres being doubtful of imprisonment by reason of his not coming to Church repaired to London where he lyed at ye sign of the Sonne & Seven Stars in Smithfelde till May then next following in which time he met with one David Tomson being a priest and a Cornish man born at Blisland in Cornewall whose name in truth is David Kempe, and with one ffoskew another priest they being both seminary priests and now lodged at the Redde Lyon in Holborne, they being both of this ex. acquaintance before for that he had seen the said ffoskew before at the said Nicholas Bawdwyn house in Cornewall, and which said ffoskew in a chamber over the gate at the said sign of the Redde Lyon did reconcile this ex. the manner of being reconciled was as this ex. remembreth as follows, first this ex. did confess himself unto the said ffoskew and after this ex. kneeling upon his knees unto the said ffoskew the said ffoskew for this ex. reconcilend said these words unto him Ipse Dñus n^r Jesus xrus qui est summus pontifex absolut te et ego auctoritate illius licet indignissimo mihi comissa absolvo te ab òi vinculo excōicacōis majoris et minoris quantum possum et indiges. Deindi absolve te ab oībus peccatis tuis In nom. pris. et filii et spūs stī. Amen. Which said ffoskew did afterwards enjoyne this ex. to penance to say a number of pater nosters & ave marias, & one credo, which said Tomson & ffoskew had been both before that time beyond the seas and had received priesthood there & were then returned into England again & wch ffoskew was as this ex. thinketh one of the Innes of Court before his first going over.

And this ex. further saith that he before his going over did use to resort much to one M^r Richard Norrys & M^r Tether being both seminaries & prisoners in the Marshalsea where at the said M^r Norrys his chamber he heard a masse at which masse were present the said Bawdwyn, this ex. & one other whose name this ex. remembreth not and which masse was said by the said M^r Norrys in the lent before this ex. going over. And further saith that he was at another masse about Easter following in another chamber in the Marshalsea which masse was said either by one M^r Tippett or by one M^r Warmington which this ex. certainly cannot tell & there were present at the said masse besides the said M^r Warmington, Tippett & this ex. a gentlewoman who was then prisoner in the said Marshalsea and two others whereof he thinks one was her daughter & the other her maidservant, and one William Norrys brother unto the said Richard Norrys. And further saith that he was at one other masse which was said about the beginning of lent was three yeres by one Weekes being a seminary priest & born in London, in a chamber of one Alice Holte wch was not far from a gate in London & this ex. thinketh called Bishoppe's Gate. And that there were present at the saide masse besides this ex. & the said Weekes the said Alice Holte, a sister of Warmington's whose name he knoweth not & Evlyn Bawdwyn sister to the said Nicholas Bawdwyn.

And this ex. further saith that he went on intending to go to Remes in France, & toke shipping at Rye & that there went in his company over at that tyme one Arthur Stratford a Glosestershire man, M^r Maundy whose mother as this ex. remembreth dwelt then in London, William Norrys brother to the said Richard Norrys & two others whose names this ex. remembreth not. And that they all landed at Depe in Normandy on the 4th of May then next following from whence they all went together to Roune in Normandy at wch place they met with one M^r Godeson, M^r Tomson, M^r Nitingale being all Lancashire men & going toward Remes, wch three, this ex. & the said William Norrys went altogether to Parys staying there 2 or 3 days & so from there to Remes at wch place they made it known to Doctor Allane that they came over for their conscience and so were received into the college at Remes whereof he saith Doctor Allane is President in wch college this ex. thinketh there be two hundred English men & boys amongst which there was then one M^r Bayly who is next officer of the said college under Doctor Allane, one Doctor Webbe who read in the said college to the residents of the said college a book called Caietane's Sum & sometimes Navarre or enchiridion which do treat of cases of conscience and matters touching confessions, and Doctor Barrett who read in the said college controversies, and Doctor Stephens a student & one Dr Eley a student, one Doctor Gyfford who read in the same college St Thomas of Aquino, one Doctor Stillington who read also the first part of St Thomas, M^r Parkins or Parkinson licentiate who doth expound a parte of a chapter every day after dinner, and one Morrrys who doth expound a part of a chapter of the Old Testament after supper, M^r Lewkner who is governor of the little boys there, & one M^r Jerrard a priest who hath also some charge of the little boys there, & one M^r Gyfford a younger man, & one Hudson who do read there the one Lodgick & the other philosophy. He also knew there one M^r Emans a priest, M^r Godsall a priest, M^r Coope a priest, M^r Simson & one Weye a scholar & one other of the Gerrardes & one Olbaston a Lancashire man, one Patynson, & one Bray a boy, & one M^r Jmmes a Priest, & one Bawdwyn a Lancashire man & a priest, & one Hammer a priest, & one M^r Edwarde a priest, & one M^r Reynolde a priest who lives at Roane in Normandy aforesaid, & one Yaksly a priest, & one M^r Harryson a priest, & one M^r Lancaster a priest being a Somersetshire man, & one M^r Michell an Irish man being a priest, & one M^r Owyn a priest, & one Grey a schollar being a boy, all which were at Remes in the college there at the time of this ex. being there, and that there was then there also one M^r Lyster a priest, & one M^r Wollesley a priest.

And he continued there almost two years during wch tyme of his being there he studied the cases of conscience wch M^r Doctor Webbe did read & the cases of controversies, & before his coming over he took the inferior orders of priesthood called quatuor minores of Cardinal de Guise & that he was made subdeacon of the Bishoppe of Traysalpina at Le Thinckesse, & deacon of the Cardinal de Guise at Rounes, and priest at Laon by the Bishoppe there, & had delivered unto him to come over into England by Doctor Webbe four pound in money or thereabout, & apparel like a serving man as the manner is, & was sent over into England by the licence & appointment of Doctor Allane, to convert those that are in error & to save souls, to whom he did affirm to do his uttermost endeavour to convert those in England wch were not of the Romish Religion.

And came over a little before Easter last May twelve months in the lent season into England & came over in a foreign bottom & was landed on the sands a xxx miles beyond Ipswich; and there come over with him from Remes one Morrrys Williams a priest & a welshman borne, & one James Clayton a seminary priest, wch Clayton as this ex. saith was landed at Newcastell. And that this ex. & the said Williams went from the place where they were landed together to London & were lodged both together at the sign of the Blew Bore in Holborne where they continued about fortnight & after that this ex. removed to the Redde Lyon in Holborne leaving the said Williams behind him at the said Blew Bore. And so this ex. continued in London about a month or five weke upon this last coming over. And that during the tyme of his being in London then he said one masse on Easter day was twelve months in a chamber being in Grayes Inn or very nere unto it, this ex. knoweth not whether, being thereunto procured & sent by one M^r Cornelly's a priest, & that there were present ix or x persons as he supposeth all gentlemen some of Grayes Inn & some not whose names he knoweth not saving that as he remembreth one of them was named Mr. Goode & that the said gentlemen or some of them had provided against this ex. coming to say the masse aforesaid a masse booke & all other things incident & appertaining to the same. And calling himself more thoroughly to remembrance saith that the said masse was by him said within Grayes Inn at the coming in of the courte coming from the upper part of Holborne & turning in the courte on the left hand went into a chamber there, near the corner of the said Grayes Inn courte where he said the said masse where there was provided for him beforetime Alb, Amys, Maniple, Stole & Girdle, wine & singing cake, a masse booke, a superaltare, & altar clothes, at wch tyme after he had said masse he made holy bread & holy water, and there were present with him at the said masse ix or x gentlemen of the Innes of Courte as it seemed to him by their apparell amongst which there was one Mr Goode being a young man somewhat hye coloured in favour—and was by this ex. reconciled in a little study being in the said chamber standing on the north side of the chamber, & towards the upper end of the chamber from the coming in, & the board whereat he said the masse stood on the south side of the said chamber & the light wch came into the said study came from the West. And saith he was brought into the acquaintance of the said Goode by one John Cornelly's a priest being this ex. countryman, wch Goode brought this ex. to the said chamber, & saith that all the resedew of the gentlemen wch were there exceed not the age of xxiiii years except one who as he supposeth was about xxx years of age having a black beard & a lean face being as he took him also by his appearance one of the Innes of Courte, at wch time this ex. had gathered for him for the said masse among the said gentlemen x^s or xii^s, at wch time vi or vii of the said company did communicate with this ex. by receiving the sacrament under one kind only. After wch time the said Goode & this ex. had conference together in Grayes Inne Felde ii or iii times wch felde behind Grayes Inne is a place seminaries & catholicks do resorte some tymes to have conference together.

And that about a fortnight after that he said another masse in flete street at a house near unto the great conduit there upon the left hand going down flete street towards Powles within ii or iii houses of a sadler's shop there, & that he was thereunto procured by ii of the gentlemen that were at the masse he said in Grayes Inne at wch masse the said Mr Goode & those ii wch procured him & i or ii more amongst wch last company there was one Mr Smythe a gentleman of the Innes of Courte being of a reasonable stature, pale face & lean without any beard; where there was provision made accordingly for the said masse & one or ii communicated with him there & had gathered for him there nere about a crown in money.

And further saith, that he came out of London in May last was xii months & was directed by one Nicolas Blewett a Cornishman to one Andrew Munday who dwelleth at a farm of one Mr Watkins in Bemester in Dorsetshire, where he hath made his most common abode ever since, where he hath said since his first coming thither an viii or ix masses & was helped to say the said masses by one William Barrett dwelling at Coltley in Maxton parish in Dorsetshire & being a weaver by his occupation. At one of wch masses were present the said Munday, himself, the said Barrett, ii other gentlemen whose names he knoweth not, the one somewhat hie coloured having a flaxen beard, of middle stature & nere about xxx years of age & the other nere of the same stature somewhat blacker of complexion with a black beard & not xxx years of age. And that at all the residew of the said masses there were no more present but this ex., the said Munday & the said Barrett, & that the said masses were always said in the said Munday's own chamber. And this ex. also confesseth that between Christmas & Candlemas last he said one masse at one Whitells house in Coscombe parish within a mile of the said Munday's at wch masse there were no more present but the said Whittell, Barrett & this ex. And further saith that he resorted to one Mr James Peppyn's house within a mile of Bridgewater wch James Peppyn was by this ex. reconciled at Bridgewater at an Inn there called the sign of the Three Crowns there, in a chamber where they lay all night together, who gave unto this ex. v^d or thereabout.

And further saith that he rode at another time since Easter last to Chard to meet one Mr Fulford there, where he met with him at an Inn but the sign he knoweth not, & that they lay there that night & the next day they came toward Munday's house and that this ex. was apprehended the said next day at Crockhorne being in the way to the said Munday's house in the company of the said Mr Fulford & of a gentlewoman wch the said Mr Fulford had thought to have married at the said Munday's house. And also saith that the said Mr Fulford & the said gentlewoman were also apprehended with him & brought all before Mr Attorney by whom after examination had he this ex. was committed to the Common Gaol of Ilchester & the said Mr Fulford & the gentlewoman were let go, who departed back again into Devonshire. And further saith that if he had not been then apprehended at that time he should have married the said Mr Fulford & the said gentlewoman at the said Munday's house the next day following at a masse. Wch Mr Fulford was one of the sons of Sir John Fulford & was reconciled long before this ex. was reconciled. And also he further remembreth that since Easter last (past) was at the said masse with him in Munday's house a brother of the said Mundaies whose name as this ex. remembreth was Henry Munday.

And he also further remembreth & confesseth that he had at his first coming over given him by the said Mr Cornellys the priest in London xx^s towards his maintenance. And that he had of one Mr Crowder a priest v^s & v^s of another priest whose name he knoweth not, & v^s of a gentleman whose name as he thinketh is Mr White being a tall slender man with a black beard, & that the said ii gentlemen wch were at Munday's house aforesaid at the masse there gave him xii^s or xiii^s iiii^d wch this ex. certainly remembreth not, & that all this was given him towards his maintenance. And that the said Mr Fulford gave him x^s when he met him at Chard towards his maintenance.

And also he confesseth that there is one Mr Sherwodde a seminary priest who came from Remes into England before the this ex. came,

& one Mr Dallyson a priest, & one Vyvyan a priest & a Cornishman, & one John Curry als. Father Curry a Jesuit being a Cornishman. And also saith that the said [Curry erased, Mr Sherwodde over] did tell him he was appointed to say a masse in St John's Street near Symthefelde but whether he said the masse or not he cannot tell. And further saith that all the persons before named by him to be priests are seminaries & that there is also one Tredwth an a Cornish man & one Williamson a Devonshire man both students in Remes. And saith that the common manner among the seminaries is not to be known thone to thother, not what they do nor where they lye, but when they meet they conferre one with another in the cases of conscience & questions in divinity one of them to help another.

And further saith that at Dordun in France, & at Mesoponte & at Eue there are divers English boys brought up by the English & French Jesuits there in the Romish Religion. And further saith that the manner at Remes is that when any person cometh thither to be instructed that he bring sufficient with him to releave him then is he releaved with his own goods, if not then they are releaved by contributions & benevolence of the pope & the king of Spain & from divers others of France. And also he confesseth that there is one Taylor a Seminary priest & two of the Sissells both professors at Remes, & one Dr Bagshaw who came from Rome to Remes when this ex. was there where he was made priest & is a seminary & one Mr Small also a seminary who was banished out of England. And that he also saw there one Parsons als Father Parsons a Jesuit also. And he further confesseth that he had of the said Nicholas Bawdwyn ten pounds at his first coming over out of France which was delivered to the said Bawdwyn by a brother of this ex., & was part of a legacy given to this ex. by his own father.

And this ex. further confesseth & sayeth that he was at last Assizes holden in Taunton in Somersetshire condemned for being a seminary priest, & had his Judgement thereupon & yet upon his submission & promise of Reconcilement to her Majesty's laws he was reprieved; & for that he lay there upon the bare boards, & had but the allowance of a penny aday, & could not have the allowance of ii^d a day more & a bed as it was allowed and appointed unto him, he escaped & came to Knoyle to the widow Browne's house there by the former advertisment given by the said Dallyson of one Barnes who was son in law to the said widow Browne, wch Barnes is also a catholick as this ex. termeth him, at wch Browne house upon search made on sunday night last, he was apprehended. And also this ex. further confesseth that one Edward a young man was at the masse he said in Grayes Inn. And that there is at Remes beside those he formerly named one Joanes Mettam & Bodye, & at Rome one Bawdwyn & ffixar all papists.

The pagination of the two parts is consecutive. The front cover and the next fly-leaf are now loose. Ink has been spilt over the book making some parts slightly difficult to read.

The Henry Eccles with whom the chart commences, came originally from Chipping and was great great grandson to Edmund Eccles of Thornley in Chipping whose will was proved in 1624. The Meanfield estate had belonged to the Corless family for several generations, and it was by the marriage of Ann Corless to Henry Eccles that it passed into the possession of the Eccles family, and has descended in the direct line to the present owner Dr. G. H. Eccles; this eldest branch lost the Faith in the last generation.

By the will of Hy. Eccles, proved in 1779, his moiety of the Manor House of Massengill Hall in Thornton in the co. of York is to be realised and divided amongst his younger children, except his daughters Elizabeth and Ann who were nuns and had already had their portion.

These two daughters joined the Benedictines at Brussels and returned with the community to this country in 1794 when they settled at Winchester (now at East Bergholt). Three years later viz. in 1797 Ann was elected Lady Abbess, the first in England since the Reformation.

Amongst the Eccles papers is the following:—

"Dec^{ber} 3rd 1728 Then received of my Mother-in-law Ann Corless the summe of £4 2s. od. for a Chalice & Patine, as witness my hand (signed) Hy. Eccles."

NO. X.

THE CATHOLIC REGISTERS OF LIVERPOOL,
NOW ST. MARY'S, HIGHFIELD STREET.

CONTRIBUTED BY MRS. SEYMOUR SPENCER. EDITED BY JOSEPH S.
HANSOM, WITH HISTORICAL NOTES BY JOSEPH GILLOW.

The first book of Registers, dealt with below, are on folio foolscap paper $12\frac{1}{2}$ by $7\frac{7}{8}$ inches in their present state. They are now well bound in dark fawn-coloured leather. The marriages and baptisms are at opposite reversed ends of the book, stamped respectively outside in gold "REGISTERS OF MARRIAGES, 1741-1754. ST. MARY'S, LIVERPOOL," and "REGISTER OF BAPTISMS, 1741-1773. ST. MARY'S, LIVERPOOL." In binding or re-binding many of the pages have been strengthened or restored by tracing-linen, the last page of marriages being entirely covered by it, rendering the writing at times illegible, as the material has become more or less opaque. It has not been deemed advisable to risk removing the linen, as where used the paper is dilapidated, and might be destroyed. The best interpretation is therefore given.

In the "Short History of the Parish and Mission (1904)," supplied by the Rev. George Bede Cox, O.S.B., the present incumbent, it is suggested (pp. 5 and 6) that the registers were "probably rescued from the flames when the chapel was burnt down in 1746, or perhaps in 1759, as the last entries in 1759 also show decided marks of fire"; but my impression is that they have only received injury by damp, dust and smoke, age and handling, coupled with some want of care.* Some writing on the last page of marriages has been heavily scored out in ink, which has not only obliterated the writing, but destroyed the paper. The discoloration does not cease in 1759; but continues throughout the book more or less.

Mrs. Seymour Spencer transcribed part of the registers herself, and generously paid for the remainder being done, by permission of Fr. Cox, who supplied full facilities, including the loan of the original to enable me to collate the proofs.

There are sixteen unnumbered pages of marriages, and one hundred and fifty-eight of baptisms numbered, all more or less used for registers. The first eight pages of marriages are mostly signed or marked by witnesses. The marriage in 1752 "by Mr. Tatlock is, Mr. Gillow thinks, by Fr. Henry Tatlock alias Forster, S. J., of Fazakerley. Exceptions are the two first entries, the first four and the seventh on p. 8 (p. 000 post) and the fourth or last on p. 8 (p. 000 post). This last is dated "Aprill the 19th 1746," eleven days before the mob burnt the chapel, which accounts for no marriages being registered for nearly eighteen months. After their resumption no signatures or marks are given, and references to "certificates" and "ye clerks certificate" point to certain entries recovered by aid of the parish clerk from the registers of Liverpool parish. The marriage entries end about the time of Lord Hardwick's Marriage Act, which came into operation on the 25th March, 1754.

* Since the above has been in print I have had an opportunity of submitting the original book of registers to Mr. G. F. Barwick, Superintendent of the Reading Room at the British Museum, who authorizes me to say that he quite agrees with this view.

There are many cases known of Catholics risking the Elizabethan penalty for being married by a Catholic priest. Such marriages remained legally valid, the law of the Church still being the law of the country. But these secret marriages gave no permanent evidence in themselves, such as was obtained by registration at the parish churches. So even where a marriage took place before a Catholic priest, it may have been repeated as a civil form to secure registration, and to avoid fines. A priest was not always obtainable for the dangerous office, and neither canon nor civil law required his presence. Later a class of infamous parsons, and sham-parsons who kept registers, sprang up, who made entries of clandestine and forced marriages, and even threatened to register marriages which had never taken place. To put a stop to the enormities of these scoundrels Lord Hardwick's Act made all marriages, not celebrated and registered by an authorized person and in authorized places, *null and void in England and Wales, but did not affect Scotland, where they continued for over a century longer. It would be immaterial to the government whether this affected Catholics, as it did at law. To preserve their social status and legitimate their offspring, Catholics had to go through the civil form. The marriages would generally continue as before; but obvious necessity of separate registration ceased.†

A double or even triple record would have done no harm, and might have been of the greatest use, considering the perishable nature of such documents. When we remember that the first step of schism and heresy in this country was also the first step in the violation of this sacrament, and that registration founded on such violations was not always reliable, we must regret the omission of independent attestation. But caution was necessary as it was a crime for a priest to use his functions; it was a crime for him to be in England: it was a crime to be a priest.

The result was that marriage before a priest, and the issue of such marriage were not acknowledged by the law between 1754 and 1837, when some amelioration was conceded by the possibility of obtaining licences for marriages in our churches; but this was hedged about by obnoxious provisoes constituting a petty local and Protestant officer, the registrar, the person who celebrated the civil ceremony, provisoes which do not apply to the church as by law established. Our registers are mixed up in those of the parishes, those which we are able to print saving many from the confused mass. They give proof of religion, and afford clues where to search. It seems an irony however that, although we are so much dependent on parish registers, many of the latter, often with meagre entries, are lost or destroyed, whilst the names, relationships, occupations, ages, residences and interesting details of the staunchest Catholics are preserved in recusant and other official lists, certified by Protestant magistrates, ministers and churchwardens.

The baptisms are not signed by priests or sponsors. The signature of "John Culshin" on p. 207 seems irrelevant and to be classed with scribblings

* A legislative attempt was made in 1723 to suppress such marriages by imposing a penalty, half of which was offered to informers; but as the penalty was fourteen years' transportation, the half was not deemed adequate inducement by the informers. The whole would not have satisfied their greed.

† The Rev. John Fisher, O.S.B., states, in the Registers of Holme on Spalding Moor, that he kept no marriage registers from 1754 for the same reason; but resumed doing so in 1764 at the desire of the Vicar Apostolic (Cath. Rec. Soc. iv. 314). A cautious note of the marriage of Alice Sherlock of Liverpool at Warwick, says she "first breakfasted at Ld Dormers, with Mr. Payne" (Cath. Rec. Soc. i. 143).

elsewhere. It will be noticed that a heading for the first time is given to p. 15, the commencement of the old ecclesiastical year, 25 March 1745. There is a baptism recorded two days before the fire of 1746, and they are only resumed on 11 Feb. 1747-8, after a lapse of over twenty-one months. Blanks occur at times, indicating that intended records had been omitted. Large numbers of entries are evidently made at certain times, probably from other notes.

Notable entries are the invalidity of a marriage, owing to consanguinity, in 1748; and, a few months later, the enforcement of a marriage, in the chapel of the proscribed religion, by some authority claiming power to imprison, and the attendance of the bellman and a constable (probably with the man in charge) to witness the marriage; and a somewhat confused notice of a marriage in Dec. 1752, again by authority, that of "Mr Mair" (? Mayor), the man seeming to be under sentence of death. Many lapses of names occur, and especially the omissions of several Irishmen's names.

Mr. Joseph Gillow kindly supplies the following.

J. S. H.

HISTORICAL NOTES ABOUT ST. MARY'S, LIVERPOOL.

There is no record of any permanently resident priest in Liverpool before the opening of the eighteenth century. Previous to that time the Catholics in the town were attended by the missionary chaplains of neighbouring mansions, such as Crosby Hall, the seat of the Blundells, Croxteth Hall and Woolton Hall, seats of the Molyneux family, Formby, seats of the Formby and Molyneux families, Huyton Hey, the seat of the Harringtons, Ince Blundell Hall, the seat of the Blundells, Lydiate, the seat of the Irelands and Andertons, Speke Hall, the seat of the Norreys family, Wolfall Hall, the seat of the Wolfalls, and at various periods many other places. For some time previous to the establishment of an independent mission in Liverpool, Mr. Nicholas Blundell, of Crosby Hall, allowed his chaplain to serve the town, and in 1701 Fr. William Gillibrand, S.J., attended occasionally "with a stipend of £3 from Mr. [Fr. Thomes] Eccleston's fund, for helpinge at Leverpoole". At length it was decided that the commencement of a separate mission should be made, and on Dec. 2, 1707, Fr. Gillibrand left Crosby and went to lodge in Liverpool with Mr. Lancaster, who followed the business of a grocer, and Mass was said in one of the rooms of his house. Mr. Lancaster was a cadet of the ancient Catholic family of Lancaster of Rainhill Hall, and his brother William was a doctor practising in Ormskirk, whilst another brother was captain of a trading vessel. In this humble way the history of St. Mary's commenced, and the following is the list of the officiating priests so far as can be traced. No doubt it is imperfect, and it is difficult to distinguish between the senior priest and his socius, but it is the best that the writer can collect.

Fr. William Gillibrand, S.J., son of John Gillibrand, Esq., of Lower Chorley Hall, subsequently known as Gillibrand Hall, Chorley, by Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Chorley, of Chorley Hall, Esq., born Oct. 1, 1662, came to the mission from St. Omer's College in 1694, and soon after became chaplain to Mr. Blundell at Crosby; left Dec. 2, 1707, to commence the mission in Liverpool, but within the next two years went to fill the family chaplaincy at Chorley, where he died April 1, and was buried at Chorley, April 2, 1722, aged 59. He was succeeded at Liverpool by—

Fr. Francis Mannock alias Arthur, S.J., born Jan. 3, 1670, second son of Sir Francis Mannock, 2nd Bart., of Giffords Hall, co. Suffolk, by Mary, daughter of Sir George Heneage, of Hainton Hall, co. Lincoln, Knt., who assumed the name of Arthur at the Jesuite novitiate at Watten, being that of his sister Anne, the wife of Sir Daniel Arthur, of London, banker. In

1701 he was chaplain to William Fitzherbert, Esq., at Chester and Swynerton, and apparently so continued till he came to Liverpool in 1710. He resided with Mr. Thomas Brownbill, a mariner, who had recently erected a new house in John Street. Mr. Brownbill died in 1713, leaving a widow, and Fr. Mannock continued to serve the chapel, a room in her house, till 1715, when he probably went to reside with his nephew, Sir Francis Mannock, 4th Bart., at Giffords Hall, where he was in 1717. There he probably stayed till 1729, when he went to Ellingham, co. Northumberland, a seat of the Haggerston family. About 1734 he was transferred to York Bar Convent, where he remained till his death, Dec. 21, 1748, aged 78. During his term at Liverpool he would appear to have either had a socius or was occasionally assisted in the mission, for Mr. Nicholas Blundell, of Crosby, in his diary, incidentally mentions seeing FF. Morphy and Phillipson at the chapel. The latter has not been identified, but the former, who said Mass at Mrs. Brownbill's on March 30, 1714, is probably identical with Fr. John Morphy, S.J., born at Lille in 1657, who was ordained priest at Liège in 1687, and came in the same year to the mission in Lancashire. During the Revolution of 1688 he had to leave England, but after things had quietened down he seems to have returned to Lancashire. Fr. Mannock was succeeded in 1715 by—

Fr. John Hardesty alias Tempest, S.J., born in Yorkshire, April 21, 1681, one of the sons of William Hardesty, Esq., and his wife Mary, daughter of Thomas Tempest, Esq., of Roundhay, near Leeds, co. York, and relict of William Hargreaves, Esq., of Carlton, co. York. He was educated at St. Omer's College, and entered the Society at Watten in 1699. Sometime after his ordination he came to Liverpool, and succeeded Fr. Mannock in 1715. He also would appear to have had an occasional assistant, for Mr. Blundell notes in his diary that he heard Fr. Doodell (Dowdall), S.J., preach at Fr. Hardesty's on June 22, 1718. After the Rising in 1715 in favour of the rightful heir to the throne, the agents of the Commissioners for Forfeited Estates, and Estates given to Superstitious Uses, became very active in Lancashire, and it is probable that Fr. Hardesty withdrew from Mrs. Brownbill's house for a time, and later on either rented the widow's house or took one of his own, as his postal address was—"Mr. John Hardestie, at his house in Liverpoole". After the death of Fr. John Mostyn, S.J., at Lydiate Hall in 1721, Fr. Hardesty was instructed to give that congregation "a monthly Mass," and about 1724 he had a socius sent to him in the person of—

Fr. William Pennington, S.J. This good old man, born at Salford in 1661, was son of Richard Pennington, Esq., barrister-at-law, third son of William Pennington, of Pennington Hall, co. Lancaster, and Muncaster Hall, co. Cumberland, Esq., and his wife Katherine, daughter of Richard Sherburne, of Stonyhurst, Esq. His mother was a staunch recusant and his brother Roger died a scholastic S.J. at Liège in 1685. Fr. Pennington entered the Society with his brother in 1681, and in 1689 was serving at Sawston Hall, co. Cambridge, the seat of his kinsman, Richard Huddleston, Esq., the Penningtons having intermarried more than once with the Huddlestons of Millom Castle in Cumberland and Sawston Hall, co. Cambridge. Subsequently Fr. Pennington served in the Derbyshire District S.J., and for seven years was chaplain to Field-Marshal Tallard whilst prisoner at Nottingham. Eventually he came to Liverpool, probably about 1724. On Palm Sunday, March 26, 1727, Mr. Blundell records seeing him distribute 256 palms to the congregation. From this some idea may be formed of the number of Catholics in Liverpool and the capacity of the chapel. This number could not have got into an ordinary room of a house, and hence it is most probable that the chapel which Fr. Hardesty is known to have built before 1736 was really erected in or before 1727. Fr. Pennington remained here till his death, June 8, 1736, aged 75, and his remains were interred in the Harkirke cemetery at Crosby. Mr. Blundell wrote—"he was a virtuous humble man, and, whilst his health permitted, a zealous missionary . . . he laboured under great distempers with exemplary patience after a long illness, being a sort of coadjutor to Mr. Carpenter of Liverpool".

Fr. Hardesty "built his house out of town, in what is called Edmund Street, now in the middle of the town". The chapel was probably a part of the building, which was situated at the lower end, or south-west corner of Edmund Street. Subsequently, five years after its destruction in 1746, some right over this chapel appears to have been claimed by the lay members of the congregation, under the erroneous idea that it had been erected by public subscription. When Fr. Hardesty left Liverpool has not been ascertained. He was clearly not there in 1736. The last date on which he appears in Mr. Blundell's diary is Feb. 24, 1728, the occasion of the requiem Mass for Fr. Robert Aldred, S.J., the chaplain at Crosby, but the diary ceases in the following month. It is probable that it was in 1735 that he went to Tixall, co. Stafford, the seat of James, 5th and last Lord Aston, who died of the small-pox in 1749. In a letter dated from thence, Sept. 4, 1751, addressed to the Superior of the Lancashire District, Fr. William Molyneux, S.J., 8th Viscount Molyneux, of Sefton, Fr. Hardesty writes: "I wonder how it should have come into anyone's head that what I built in Liverpool was by subscription; and that it is required that an account be given of the money laid out on it. Know, therefore, and you may show this declaration to whom you please, that while I lived in the foresaid town, I received, one year with another, from the people about one or two and twenty pounds a year, by way of contribution towards my maintenance, and that no other subscription was ever made for me or for the buildings. From friends in other places I had part of the money I built with, but much the greatest part was what I spared, living frugally, and as not many would have been contented to live. What disaffected people may say and give out, I do not matter; I count it great gain to do good and receive evil. Nor do I regret my having spent the best years of my life in serving the poor Catholics of Liverpool". Fr. Hardesty continued at Tixall till he was declared rector of St. Omer's College, but en route to take up the office he died at Daventry, May 1, 1752, aged 71. He was succeeded at Liverpool about 1735 by—

Fr. Hermenegild Carpenter, S.J., born of English parentage at Lille in Feb. 1702-3, entered the Society in 1721, and about 1735 came to Liverpool. His stay could only have been brief, for he was living at Bryn, the seat of Sir Thomas Gerard, 8th Bart., according to Bishop Dicconson's list, in 1741. Subsequently he went to Wigan, thence removed to Stapehill, co. Dorset, and finally died at Bury St. Edmunds, April 12, 1770, aged 67. He was succeeded by—

Fr. John Talbot alias Mansfield (or Mansell), S.J., born in Lancashire Sept. or Dec. 27, 1708, son of John Talbot, of Wheelton, a cadet of the ancient Catholic family of Talbot of Carr Hall in Wilpshire, studied at St. Omer's College, and entered the novitiate S.J. at Watten in 1728. After ordination he came to his native county, and apparently was placed at Liverpool. In 1742 he went to Preston, and thence removed to Lytham Hall, the seat of the Cliftons, on Sept. 20, 1743. He was declared rector of the Lancashire District S.J. in 1758, and again in 1765. Some years before his death he retired to his sister's house in Walton-le-Dale, and died there June 9, 1799, aged 91.

Fr. Anthony Bedingfeld, S.J., eldest son of Francis Bedingfeld, Esq., of Redlingfeld Hall and Bures Hall, co. Suffolk, and Testerton Hall, co. Norfolk, was born in Suffolk, Oct. 28, 1697. He entered the Society in 1714, and after ordination served in Suffolk between 1724 and 1730, with the exception of the time that he was travelling with pupils in 1728 and 1730. In 1735 he became the last missionary at Flixton Hall, co. Suffolk, the seat of the Tasburgh family. He was transferred to Liverpool sometime before 1741 when he appears in Bishop Dicconson's list as the senior priest in charge of the chapel in Edmund Street, and his socius at that time was Fr. Roger Leigh. It was probably he who commenced the register in 1741. Five years later, after the defeat of Prince Charles Edward at Culloden, "No-Popery" mobs attacked Catholic chapels throughout the country, and on April 30, 1746, a mob of ship-carpenters, sailors, and riff-raff set fire to St. Mary's in Edmund Street, which they completely destroyed as well as the presbytery and four adjacent houses. An account of the destruction of the chapel and the erection of its successor was written by Mr. Thomas Greene in his old age in 1833, from recollection of what his parents and others had told him, and a copy, not quite verbatim, is to be seen in Foley's Records S.J., v. 364. Mr. Greene's memory, however, failed him in certain important details. The incumbents at the time were not FF. H. Carpenter and Thomas Stanley, but Fr. Anthony Bedingfeld and his socius Fr. Michael Tichborne. The Fathers and several of the principal members of the congregation met the mob, which treated them with respectful behaviour and without clamour or violence opened a clear passage for Fr. Bedingfeld to go up to the altar, take the Blessed Sacrament from the tabernacle, and solemnly carry it from the chapel, through the lane formed by the crowd across Edmund Street, to the house of a friendly presbyterian gentleman, said to be named Howard, who opened his door to receive and protect him. Then the mob tore up the benches, made a bonfire of everything combustible within the chapel and priests' house, and pulled the whole of both down. According to Picton's History of Liverpool, the riots were renewed on Tuesday, May 20, and the mob attacked the house of a lady in which was a private chapel. Though the mayor read the Riot Act, the authorities were powerless to arrest the action of the mob. Unfortunately the name of the lady is not stated. It is probable that she was Mrs. Elizabeth Greene, daughter of Cuthbert Clifton, nephew of Sir Thomas Clifton, of Clifton and Lytham, Bart. She was the wife of her second cousin, Capt. Francis Greene, formerly a lieutenant in the royal navy, but afterwards a captain in the merchant service. He had joined Prince Charles Edward and at this time was in hiding with his relative the Squire of Eccleston. On Sept. 24 following, the Greens took up their residence in a new house in Dale Street, and provided a temporary chapel for the congregation whilst St. Mary's was being rebuilt. Here, in the garrets, Mass was said on Sundays and holidays, the two stories underneath, as well as the stairs, being filled with the congregation, admitted singly and cautiously through different entrances, wholly by candle-light. There was no ringing of the bell at the elevation, etc., but a signal was passed from one to another. The house was situated between the residences of two kindly disposed presbyterians of social position. After a few months Mr. Henry Pippard, who had married the daughter and eventual heiress of Mr. Blundell, of Crosby Hall, treated with the mayor and corporation to allow the Catholics to rebuild their chapel. This was peremptorily refused. Mr. Pippard observed that no law could hinder him from building a warehouse and making what use he pleased of it, and it was acknowledged that he might do so, but at his own risk. Mr. Pippard, therefore, collected the subscriptions of Catholics, and built a warehouse of two stories upon vacant ground, purchased from a Catholic family, situated on the south side of the upper end of Edmund Street, "the front of which street was covered by buildings, also three six-yard houses, with small backyards, opening into the intended chapel-yard, to be tenanted by the priests, and rented by two other Catholic families. On the east side of this warehouse there were two large folding doors, one above the other, surmounted by a teagle rope, block, and hook, capped against the rain, as was then usual in Liverpool. The upper storey was to serve as the chapel, its upper folding doors being bricked up within, and the whole of the walls being stuccoed, had large leaded windows, and strong outside shutters to be closed towards the alley on the east side for security out of service time; sufficient light being admitted from like windows on the west, and two large sash-windows on the south; these two sides being protected by a small yard, and walls encompassing and separating them from another courtyard in front of several small dwellings of Catholic workmen; which courtyard was also closed every night by strong, double-folding gates. The ascent to the chapel was by a broad staircase on each side, within a tolerable brick and walled-in space of the lower warehouse room, the whole breadth between the two side walls for a walk under cover in rainy or cold weather, the remainder of the lower room being for lumber, etc. The entrance into the bricked space was by a pair of strong folding doors from the said chapel-yard, which was secured by strong folding doors in view of the opposite backyard of the inhabitants of Lumber Street; the alley (a cart-way) terminating therein to the east, and in Bicksteth Street, to the south." Such is the rather confusing description by the octogenarian Mr. Thomas Greene in 1833. Fr. Bedingfeld probably left Liverpool in 1749, and was living in Antwerp in 1750, acting as procurator of the English Province S.J. He died at Liège June 2, 1752, aged 54.

Fr. Roger Leigh, S.J., son of Roger Leigh, of Aspull, co. Lancaster, and his wife Alice Catterick, was born March 15, 1708, entered the Society in 1728, and after ordination came as socius to Fr. Bedingfeld at Liverpool. In 1741 he was transferred to Westby Hall in the Fylde, a seat of the Cliftons, which he left in 1745 for Formby. About 1760 he is said to have been at Rixton Hall, and in 1767, according to the Bishop of Chester, he was at Culcheth Hall, the seat of William Dicconson, Esq., and formerly that of the Culcheth family. Eventually, in or about 1778, he was transferred to Croston Hall, the seat of the Traffords, and blessed and opened the new chapel there on Jan. 19, 1779, in which year he left Croston. He was very infirm in the latter part of his life, and retired to the house of his nephew, Mr. Thomas Latham, in Wigan Lane, where he died Jan. 29, 1781, aged 73.

Fr. Michael Tichborne, S.J., a cadet of the baronets of his name seated at Tichborne in Hants, was born in that county Jan. 26 (or 27), 1692, studied at St. Omer's College, and entered the Society in 1712. Soon after his ordination he was sent to Hooton Hall, Cheshire, the seat of Sir Rowland Stanley, Bart., and he was there in 1728 at the time of the visitation of Bishop Williams. In or about 1746 he was transferred to Liverpool as socius to Fr. Bedingfeld, and thence removed to Rixton Hall, the former seat of the Massey family, in 1749. Apparently he left Rixton in Feb. 1751, and went to Bryn in Ashton, where he died July 4, 1751, aged 59, and was buried on the gospel side of the altar in the chapel at Ashton.

Father, the Right Hon. Charles, 7th Baron Dormer, S.J., born in Bucks, Jan. 13, 1690, eldest son of Charles, 6th Lord Dormer, has been thought to have served for a time in Liverpool, but it is very doubtful. He entered the novitiate S.J. in 1709, and after ordination appears to have lived in Hants, his address in 1724 being at Petersfield. He succeeded to the title upon the death of his father, July 2, 1728. In 1746 he was arrested in Liverpool as a priest and a supposed favourer of Prince Charles Edward and his army, then retreating to Scotland, and he was brought before the mayor. Upon interrogation as to who he was, he answered: "I am Charles, Lord Dormer. I have laid my coronet at the foot of the Cross, and am now a humble priest of the Society of Jesus." This reply so touched the mayor that he immediately ordered his release. On Jan. 27, 1747, he was appointed chaplain to Lord Molyneux at Croxteth Hall, and in 1749 he went to Poole Hall, Cheshire. Subsequently he served for many years the mission at Puddington Hall, in the same county, as chaplain to Mr. John Stanley-Massey, afterwards 6th Bart. In his will in 1752 he described himself as of Peterley, co. Bucks, and he died at Great Missenden, in the same county, May 7 (or according to Foley July 2), 1761, aged 71, and was buried there.

Fr. Henry Stanley, senior, alias Culcheth, S.J., born Sept. 11, 1688, was the 2nd son of Richard Stanley, of Great Eccleston Hall in the Fylde, Esq., by Anne, daughter and eventual coheirress of Thomas Culcheth, of Culcheth Hall, co. Lancaster, Esq. He entered the novitiate at Watten in 1706, and from 1716 to 1718 was professor of philosophy at Liège College. He is said to have served missions in the Oxford District S.J. for many years, and was declared Superior in Feb. 1728-9. Owing to his having witnessed a will at Waterperry, the seat of the Curzon family in 1742, it has been thought that he was stationed there for some time. About 1748 he was sent to Liverpool, served at Bedford Leigh for a short time, and thence, in or before 1751, retired to Culcheth Hall, where he died Nov. 27, 1753, aged 65, and was buried at Winwick.

Fr. John Rigby, senior, S.J., born in Lancashire, June 8, 1712, son of John Rigby and his wife Anne Spencer entered the Society in 1732, and sometime after ordination was appointed to Hardwick Hall, co. Durham, the seat of the Maire family, in May, 1746. He was transferred to Liverpool upon Fr. Tichborne's removal in 1749, and so continued till his death, Sept. 26, 1758, aged 46. It was in this very year that the mission property was formed into a trust, and it has been said, with great probability, that the chapel was at the same time rebuilt. Another account says that in the following year, 1759, the chapel was attacked by a No-Popery mob and wrecked. It seems more probable that the latter date is incorrect, and that it was the attack on the chapel in 1758 which hastened Fr. Rigby's death, and necessitated the rebuilding of the chapel and the formation of a trust. Fr. Rigby was the editor of "The Poor Man's Posey of Prayers," printed by J. Sadler at Liverpool in 1755.

Fr. James Grant, S.J., born in Scotland, Nov. 25, 1721, entered the Society in the Province of Compagna in 1743. He was transferred to the English Province about 1757, and about this time was in Liverpool. Ten years later, in 1767, he was living in the Oxford District S.J., and he died in London, May 5, 1769, aged 48.

Fr. Wilhelm Wappeler, S.J., a native of Nunan Sigmaringen in Westphalia, has been thought to have served Liverpool for a short time, but it is extremely doubtful. He was born Jan. 22, 1711, entered the Society in 1728, and subsequently served the mission in Pennsylvania, Maryland, for several years, but returned to England in 1748. In 1754 he became prefect at St. Omer's College, and then coming to the English mission was placed at Leyburn, co. York, whence he served Danby from 1758 till Sept. 1764. Now according to the Rev. T. E. Gibson, in his account of the Liverpool mission, Fr. Wappeler was a frequent visitor at Eccleston Hall in 1763, and apparently came from Liverpool. But as he was then in charge of the Leyburn mission, he could not have been more than a temporary visitor at Liverpool. Subsequently he withdrew to Ghent, and died at Bruges in Sept. 1781, aged 70.

Fr. Peter Bryan (Briant, or O'Brien), S.J., born in Ireland, March 28, 1735, entered the English Province S.J., at Watten in 1754, and after ordination is said to have served at St. Mary's, Liverpool, in or about 1766. Subsequently he spent ten years in the West Indies, and was at Antigua in 1773. Becoming heir to his elder brother, he returned to England. He died at Newhall in Essex, Feb. 28 or March 5, 1807, aged 72.

Fr. Ralph Hoskins, S.J., born in Maryland, April 15, or July 9, 1729, entered the Society in 1749. In 1764 he was professor of Sacred Scripture at Liège and completed the fourth year of his theological course. He served Waterperry, co. Oxon, in 1766, and thence appears to have come to Liverpool. He left the town for Brough Hall, co. York, the seat of the Lawsons, in 1769, and remained there till his death, April 15, 1794, aged 65.

Fr. John Price, S.J., born near Lanherne in Cornwall, Aug. 3, 1739, entered the Society Feb. 14, 1758. It is not on record when he first came to Liverpool, but Foley states that he was here as early as 1771, two years before the suppression of the Society. Later he seems to have gone as minister and catechist of lay-brothers to Liège College, and was there when the suppression of the Society was notified on Sept. 9, 1773. In the same year he returned to Liverpool and was welcomed by his old friends, with whose assistance he shortly afterwards opened an additional chapel in Chorley Street, of which he appears as the incumbent in the Liverpool Directories of 1777 and 1781. No mention of two chapels is made in the letter of Vicar-General Chadwick in 1783, referred to under Fr. Joseph Gittins, but as the writer of the letter only alludes to two of the three priests put down to Liverpool as being in disagreement, it may be inferred that the third, Fr. Price, was not living with them or concerned in the dispute, he having his own chapel in Chorley Street. In 1788 he erected a new chapel at a cost of about £550 in Sir Thomas' Buildings, off Dale Street, and opened it on April 5 of that year. Upon the restoration of the Society, he renewed his vows in May, 1804. He continued to serve this chapel till his death, Feb. 5, 1813, aged 74.

Soon afterwards the chapel was closed and sold. It is stated that it became a Dissenters' meeting-house, and was so used for many years, and still existed as such in 1878. Foley asserts that it was "disposed of to make way for the erection of St. Nicholas' chapel, now the pro-cathedral," which, however, is situated on Copperas hill, and, moreover, the proceeds of the sale of the site would belong to the Jesuits and not to the secular clergy.

Fr. Robert Johnson, S.J., a native of Liverpool, born July 2, 1745, entered the Society in 1764, and was ordained priest in 1771. At the time of the suppression of the Society in 1773 he was a master at the Little College at Bruges. He was then sent to Liverpool, but in the following year, 1774, was transferred to the mission at Scarisbrick, where he remained till the middle of 1790, when he removed to Lydiate, but continued to do occasional duty at Scarisbrick during the following year whilst that mission was without a resident pastor. He remained at Lydiate till Nov. 12, 1822, when he was transferred to Lowe House, St. Helens where he died Nov. 20, 1823, aged 78.

Fr. Anthony Carroll, S.J., born in Ireland, Sept. 16, 1722, entered the novitiate at Watten in 1744, and was ordained priest at Liège in 1754. He was soon afterwards sent to the English mission and served Lincoln till 1764, when he went to Hooton Hall, Cheshire, the seat of Sir Rowland Stanley, Bart., and was still there when the Bishop of Chester made his return in 1767. About 1768 he went to Exeter. After the suppression of the Society in 1773, he accompanied his relative, Fr. John Carroll, subsequently Archbishop of Baltimore, to Maryland, where he arrived June 26, 1774, but returned to England in the following year, and was placed at Liverpool. Soon afterwards he was transferred to Shepton Mallet, co. Somerset, and subsequently (according to Foley) was at Worcester and other places. His end was tragical. The Gentleman's Magazine for 1794, p. 1055, records that he was knocked down and robbed in Red Lion Court, Fleet Street, London, on Sept. 5, of that year, and was conveyed unconscious to St. Bartholomew's Hospital, where he died at five o'clock on the following morning, Sept. 6, 1794, aged 72. He translated Bourdaloue's Sermons, and published them under the title of "Practical Divinity," Lond. 1776, 4 vols. 8vo.

Fr. Joseph Gittins alias Williams, S.J., born Oct. 11, 1734, entered the Society in 1762. In 1771, according to Foley, he was missioner at Wardour Castle, co. Wilts, the seat of Lord Arundell, and between that date and 1773 he must have come to Liverpool, where he would appear to have become the senior priest. In or about 1773 he was joined by Fr. Raymond Hormasa alias Harris, and after about five years the two fell out over the temporal affairs of the mission, which caused a complete division of the congregation, and became a great and prolonged scandal throughout the county, as related in the succeeding notice. On Feb. 3, 1783, a return of the missions in the Lancashire, Cheshire, Cumberland, and Westmoreland portion of the Northern Vicariate was made to the bishop, Dr. Matthew Gibson, by his vicar-general, the Rev. John Chadwick, of Weld Bank, Chorley, and three priests were put down for Liverpool, Frs. Williams, Price, and Raymond Harris, with an estimate of 1200 communicants. Referring to the trouble at Liverpool between Frs. Williams and Harris as they were called, Mr. Chadwick says: "A physician from Liverpool call'd on me yesterday, a man of sense and worth, and I sincerely believe of neither party. He tells me that all the people there are thoroughly convinc'd, and, indeed, everybody else, that as long as either of those gentlemen remain there will be no peace for either them or the people: that they hope, therefore, you will compel both to quit." On the following March 16, the bishop suspended both incumbents, and prohibited them from exercising their functions within ten miles of Liverpool. Dom Archibald Benedict Macdonald, O.S.B., of Standish Hall, who had recently joined in the controversy in the Liverpool press, and Dom John Bede Brewer, O.S.B., of Woolton, were authorized to take charge of the mission of St. Mary's in Edmund Street, and they took possession on April 3, 1783. Fr. Gittins then removed to Worcester, where he died March 25, 1797, aged 63.

Fr. Raymond Hormasa alias Harris, S.J., second son of a genteel but not wealthy Spanish family at Bilboa, where he was born Sept. 4, 1741, was admitted into the Society in the Spanish Province, S.J., in 1756, and was banished to Corsica with some of his brethren in 1767. Thence he came to England, assumed the name of Harris, and was baptizing at Scarisbrick Hall in Aug. 1768. About this time, or shortly afterwards, he went to Walton Hall, co. York, the seat of the Watertons, and in 1773, after the suppression of the Society, joined Fr. Gittins (or Williams) at St. Mary's, Edmund Street, Liverpool. About five years later he fell out with Fr. Gittins over the temporal management of the mission, and the congregation took sides in the dispute. Fr. Harris laid the matter before Bishop William Walton, V.A.-N.D., at York in 1779, but his lordship, whilst declining to interfere in the temporals of the gentlemen of the lately suppressed Society of Jesus, advised that the matter should be referred to arbitration, and ultimately Henry Blundell, of Ince Blundell Hall, and Thomas Clifton, of Lytham Hall, were appointed arbitrators. In the meantime Bishop Walton died, and was succeeded in 1780 by Bishop Matthew Gibson. The animosity became more intense, and Catholics in various parts of the county—Liverpool, Wigan, Preston, and Lancaster—espoused the cause of one or other of the contending parties. Mr. Blundell and the trustees of the chapel, with a large section of the congregation, seem to have supported Fr. Harris; while Mr. Clifton with his relative Mr. Thomas Greene, one of the principal members of the congregation, as well as most of the clergy, sided with Fr. Gittins. The warmth of the dispute grew in intensity, and a vast amount of correspondence ensued, both privately and in the Liverpool press. Numerous meetings were held, and legal proceedings threatened. The arbitrators met in Liverpool, Nov. 21, 1780, and made their award, to which Fr. Harris submitted. A recommendatory clause in the award, however, created fresh dissensions, the dispute was renewed with redoubled vigour, and in Nov. 1781 Fr. Harris was suspended from the exercise of his functions by Bishop Gibson. Fr. Harris had preached a "Sermon on Catholic Loyalty," printed privately or in the public press, which seems to have given additional offence to his brethren. The congregation petitioned the bishop in behalf of Fr. Harris, and the original trust of 1758 was re-established. According to the very prevalent custom of those days, arising out of the restrictive action of the penal laws, the proprietary rights of the chapel and priests' house were vested in lay trustees and the bench-holders, which was one great factor in the trouble. The trustees now came into collision with Mr. Clifton, who claimed the proprietorship of the chapel, and distrained on Fr. Harris' goods under pretence of rent due. Shortly afterwards Fr. Harris' suspension was partially removed. In May, 1782, Fr. Gittins issued writs against Fr. Harris and the trustees to try the case at the next Lancaster assizes. The parties, however, met in August at the house of Thomas Worswick, the banker, at Lancaster, who took a very friendly part in endeavouring to prevent dangerous litigation. It was then agreed to submit the matter to the arbitration of James Orrell, of Blackbrook, Esq., and Thomas Eccleston, jun., Esq. of Scarisbrick, but the agreement proved ineffectual, and the trustees next arranged to meet the bishop at Preston, in order to deliberate on the subject, and make an end of the dispute. On Nov. 15, 1782, Fr. Harris and the trustees issued a printed "Vindication" of their conduct, to the great annoyance of the bishop, who threatened to suspend Fr. Harris. The meeting was delayed for some time by the bishop's indisposition, but eventually he met the trustees at the house of Dr. Stapleton in Preston, Dec. 11, 1782. After several conferences, in which Fr. Harris joined, a final agreement was concluded. Fr. Harris was to re-enter the chapel, and was promised the absolute restoration of his former functions. Mr. Clifton, on the part of the body of ex-Jesuits, as their representative and trustee, and Mr. Blundell, on the part of the acting trustees of the old chapel in Edmund Street, entered into an agreement, dated Feb. 13, 1783, by which the former was to assign over in trust to Sir Robert Gerard, Bart., and Henry Blundell, of Ince Blundell, Esq., the said chapel and adjoining house occupied by Fr. Gittins. Thus, after a violent storm of animosity and discord, of near four years' continuance, a calm ensued, which unhappily was but the prelude to a more serious commotion. Fr. Gittins, supported by Fr. Joseph Emmott, of Gillmoss, a member of the late Society, and the bishop's vicar for that body, re-opened the discord, though apparently against the wishes of the representatives of the body of ex-Jesuits assembled at Wigan, Feb. 17, 1783. Fr. Emmott persuaded the bishop to suspend the two incumbents, which was done under date March, 16, 1783. By this suspension they were both prohibited from exercising their functions within a space of ten miles from Liverpool. The two Benedictines, Macdonald and Brewer, were authorized by Fr. Emmott to take charge of the mission; the keys of the chapel and house were privately given to them by Fr. Gittins, and they thus took possession on April 3, 1783. This proceeding, which seems to have been accomplished with a certain amount of irregularity, caused great commotion, and a prolonged controversy of a recriminatory character was carried on in the Liverpool Advertiser and other papers. Fr. Brewer, who had only been sent as a temporary assistant to Fr. Macdonald, now withdrew, and was replaced by Fr. James Basil Kennedy, O.S.B., who had just arrived from Lambspring. Mr. Blundell, of Ince Blundell, appointed Fr. Harris to his chaplaincy at Lydiate Hall, which happened to be just outside the limit of his suspension. As this appointment was compatible with his residence in Liverpool, it was very unpalatable to his vicar, Fr. Emmott, who offered him the chaplaincy of Stonyhurst, which Fr. Harris declined as not sufficiently good and secure. In the meantime he continued to reside in Liverpool. Riots occurred in the chapel during divine service, and the two parties assumed such a menacing attitude towards each other that at last, on Oct. 24, 1783, the magistrates offered a reward for the discovery of persons who had thrown brickbats into the lodgings of Fr. Harris in Edmund Street. On Nov. 3 following, the bishop ordered him to take charge of the mission of Ugthorpe, in Yorkshire, under pain of suspension à Divinis. To this Fr. Harris declined to accede, preferring rather to pass the remainder of his life privately in Liverpool, in protest against the injustice which he believed had been done him, rather than acquiesce in a course which would seem to humble him in the eyes of his adherents. The Blundels, Gerards, Cliftons, Ecclestons, Greenes, and many other families throughout the county, took part in the dispute, as did also Joseph Brockholes, of Claughton, Charles Stapleton, M.D., of Preston, Richard Gillow, and Thomas Worswick, of Lancaster, Hawarden Fazakerley, of Fazakerley, Francis Gandy, Henry Billinge, Andrew Rosson, Christopher Butler, Thomas Doncaster, protestant banker of Wigan, etc. Fr. Harris was in all three times suspended by the bishop. It was after the second suspension in 1783 that he was appointed to Lydiate, but though he exercised his functions there on Sundays and holidays, his continued residence in Liverpool encouraged his adherents to carry on the dispute. His third suspension, in the same year, took away his faculties, and thenceforth he lived privately in Liverpool until his death, May 1, 1789, aged 47. His want of submission to authority, and lack of the humility necessary for his estate, brought immense trouble both upon himself and others. In many respects he was an able man, greatly admired by a large section of his fellow-townsmen, both Catholic and Protestant, and of undeniable service to the innumerable foreigners who were brought prisoners in prize ships to Liverpool. He published several works, one of which has been erroneously attributed to a namesake (Gillow, Biog. Dict. III. 144, 392-5)—(1) Christian Discourses, advertised by James Marmaduke, London, 1778; (2) An Appeal to the Public; or, a Candid Narrative of the . . . Differences now Subsisting in the . . . Congregation of Liverpool, Liverpool, 1783, 8vo, pp. 430, in which he alludes to a larger work, entitled, The Acts of the New Saints, which he says "is now in great forwardness for the press," but which it is to be hoped for the sake of his own credit that he did not publish; and (3) Scriptural Researches on the Licitness of the Slave-Trade, Liverpool, 1788, 8vo, which elicited many replies. Southey, commenting on the last work in his Common Place Book, III. 516, and quoting Forbes' Life of Beattie, II. 215, insinuates that Harris, "it seems, is connected with the slave merchants of Liverpool, by whose means he hopes to obtain preferment in the Church of England to which he is willing to conform". Fr. Harris certainly had the sympathy of Liverpool, which for many years later was a stronghold of the merchants (such as the Gladstones) who supported slavery, but there is no evidence that he had lost his head so far as to entertain the thought of abandoning his Faith.

The following is the list of rectors (in italics) and assistant priests under Benedictine administration:—

Dom Archibald Benedict Macdonald, 1783-8, Rector, when he left to found the mission of St. Peters, in Seel Street.

D. James Basil Kennedy, 1783-4.

D. William Jerome Digby, 1784, and again later.

D. Michael Anselm Chaplin, 1784, and died here on Dec. 30 in that year.

- D. Richard Bernard Butler, 1785-7.
 D. Edmund Pennington, came as curate 1787-8, when he became rector till death here 1794.
 D. John Atkinson, 1790-3.
 D. Daniel Spencer, 1793 till death 1794.
 D. William Jerome Digby, again, 1794-6.
 D. William Joseph Collins, 1794-7, Rector, who enlarged and improved the chapel.
 D. James Alexius Pope, 1797-1802, Rector.
 D. James Oswald Talbot, 1797-1800.
 D. Thomas Wilfrid Fisher, came as curate 1800, and in 1802 became Rector till death here 1847. In 1840 it was felt that the old chapel was inadequate to the wants of the congregation, and unworthy of its position as the oldest mission in the town. Fr. Fisher's age and infirmities prevented him from undertaking the task of collecting subscriptions and building a new church, so the burden of the work fell on his assistant, Fr. Wilkinson. It was determined to erect a church worthy of the rising importance of the town and the position of the Catholic body. A committee was formed, collections made, and the project was prosecuted with vigour. At this time the revival of Gothic architecture had commenced, and the services of the eminent Augustus Welby Pugin were secured, and on May 1, 1844, the foundation-stone was laid of a fine church to accommodate 3000 people, and covering the site of the old chapel as well as adjoining land purchased by the committee. At the time it was considered a grand monument of architectural skill. A tower and spire formed part of the design, but the spire was never erected. The church was consecrated on Aug. 18, 1845, and the solemnities connected with the opening were continued for eight days. Fr. Fisher, who had been appointed titular abbot of St. Alban's in 1838, of Glastonbury in 1842, and again of St. Albans in 1846, died at St. Mary's in 1847, aged 80.
 D. William Dunstan Tarleton, 1802-9.
 D. John Bede Rigby, 1809-14.
 D. Edward Benedict Glover, 1814-19.
 D. Henry Anselm Brewer, 1819-22.
 D. Thomas Francis Fairclough, 1822 till death here 1835.
 D. Joseph Bede Smith, 1827-9.
 D. Edward Anselm Glassbrook, 1829-31, and again later.
 D. James Ignatius Greenough, 1831.
 D. Richard Clement Croft, 1831-8.
 D. George Austin Lowe, 1835-6.
 D. James Austin Wilkinson, 1837-46, when he became Rector till 1850.
 D. William Vincent Dale, 1838 till death of the fever epidemic 1847.

D. John Jerome Lynch, eldest son of John Lynch and his wife Mary, daughter of Robert Roskell of Gateacre, near Liverpool. Born at Bruges, Belgium, May 14, 1849, he was educated at Ampleforth College, entered the noviciate at Belmont, where he received the habit Sept. 28, 1867, and made the simple vows Oct. 6, 1868. Returning to Ampleforth he took the solemn vows Feb. 23, 1872, and was ordained priest Sept. 18, 1875. In 1876 he was sent on the mission of St. Augustine's, Liverpool, and transferred to St. Mary's in 1877. During the severe epidemic of 1880 he caught typhus whilst discharging his priestly duties, tending the poor and fever-stricken of St. Mary's. Removed to the house of his cousin, Richard Roskell of Woolton, he died there on Christmas Day at the early age of 31, and was buried at St. Oswald's, Old Swan, Liverpool. His father and uncle Gerard succeeded their father, John Lynch (son of Garrith Lynch of Killarney, ob. 1814), who had settled in Liverpool, as corn merchants in St. James's Street. They were treasurers of the funds raised for building St. Mary's Church, and as such their names were inscribed on the parchment deposited in the foundation-stone in 1844. The family removed to Glascoed Hall, near Wrexham, in 1867.

D. Terence Benedict Snow, Rector, 1878-94. During his administration, in 1883-4, the site of the building was bought by the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company, a temporary iron church was erected in Pownall Square, where the services were conducted as usual, and St. Mary's Church in Edmund Street was pulled down and re-erected in its present position in Highfield Street. Mr. Peter Paul Pugin, son of the original architect, carried out the work—a reproduction of the old church. The church was consecrated on July 7, and solemnly re-opened on July 9, 1885.

[THE FIRST BOOK.]

Some perticuler Remarkes of our venerable Mother-Beginners y^t came from The English Benedictine Monastery of the Truely vertues & Religious Dames of our Blessed Lady of Consolation in the Towne of Cambray. And a Register, with the Remarkes of all y^e rest of our R^d Mothers, & Religious sisters, of this our Monastery of our Bles: Lady of Good Hope in Paris. Deceased since the yeare of our Lord 1652.

Our Constutions in the first chapter, and 13 clause, haveing ordained that A Register should be made, of al the names, of the Religious that are departed this life,—with such Remarkable things as hath happened concerning them in Life, Death, & after death, to be sett downe for an example & memöry to posterity & kept in Depositum; therefore to complie with these our solid and Descreet Constitutions, and the wil of our v R^d Mother Prioress, R^d Mo: Agnes Temple of the Infant Jesus, as also y^e great obligations we have to our venerable Mother-beginners, & that y^e Memöry of their vertues should be the more Deeply imprinted in our harts, and make us like good children faithfully walke in y^e same paths; they did with so much labour trace out for us. These powerfull reasons moved us to set downe some perticulers, 'Tho': uncapable of makeing due Remarkes according to their merites, For if we neglected the doing this in our Times who had the knowledg of them It could not be expected from others that follow us to doe it, knowing little or nothing of them; Likewise o^r gratitude requireing it of us. We also have made some briefe Remarkes of the Rest of our R^d Mothers & Religious Sisters Deceased; of this our Monastery. It being the practis. of our Mother house of Cambray and other Communitys. In al which Relations we have held a Low & plain stile that The Truth & sencerity may more cleerly apeare w^{ch} was that we cheifely regarded. And for the Register that our Constit^s in the same chap: also ordains to be made of our Spiritual & Temporal Benefactors deceased, we referr y^e Reader to the Book wherin they are written in perticuler, for to be read on y^e day of their departure as are our Religious, therefore doe onely heere speake of ven^{ble} Father Baker & some of y^e Relations of o^r v R^d Mother Justina Gascoigne.

[NOTES AND OBITUARIES.]

Heere followeth The perticuler Remarkes made, of our Venerable Mother-Beginners. And all the Rest of our very R^d Mothers & Religious Sisters Deceased. of this our Monastery of o^r Blessed Lady of Good hope in Paris. Since Its Beginning being. In The Yeare of our Lord 1652 the sixt of February.

I. 1652. Some Briefe Remarkes of y^e Religious Sister Gartrude Hodson Lay Sister departed y^s life y^e 7th of October the 1652.

Sister Gartrude Hodson of Saint Laurance was Borne in Lancastershire in England of vertues Catholike & English parents. She went to the Monastery of y^e English Benedictine Nunns of our Blessed Lady of Consolation in the Towne of Cambray, where she imbraced a Religious Life & made her holy profession for a Lay Sister, in y^e 20th of her age. the first of March 1650 the very R^d Father Placidus Gascoigne, being then presedent of y^e Benedictine Congregation: And the R^d Moth: Catharine Gascoigne, Abbesse of the abovesayd Monastery.

This religious sister, was of a very Tractable sweet, & peacible disposion; & never spared her pious pains, & labours when occations required it, & was also of a very devout spirite, & gave herselfe as much to prayer; as her obediences & imployments would permit keeping herselfe in her affaire & Busines much recolected. By w^{ch} means, she made so great progres in vertues that her Superiours two years after her professi: judged her fit; to be sent with y^e R^d Mothers Briget More, Elezabeth Brent, & Justina Gascoigne &c: who were al by holy obedience sent to Paris in the yeare 1652 to assist the R^d Mother Clementia Cary in y^e Beginning of this our Monastery of our Blessed Lady of Good Hope in Paris. But she being of a tender constitution & consumptive 6 mounths after her Arrival heer fell sicke; w^{ch} having suffered with much patience & resignation to y^e divine wil it pleased Almighty God to call her to himselfe; & being Armed with al y^e Rites of our holy Mother the Church she happily departed this Life; the seventh of October. 1652 at our first hired house. & we having no Burying place, she lieth buried at Portroyall heer in Paris but to y^e end she may the sooner attaine to y^e Company of the Blessed. Let us offer up our prayers for her resyting the de-proudis, this being her Anniversary day. Requiescat in pace Amen.

II. 1660. Some Briefe Remarkes of y^e R^d Mother Elizabeth Brent one of our first Beginners departed this Life the first of Aprill in the yeare of o^r Lord. 1660.

The very R^d Mother Elizabeth Brent de Sancta Maria was Borne in Gloscestersheir in England, of Catholicke and English parents of Good Quallity, her Father was M^r William Brent, and she leaving the world went over to the English Benedictine Dames of our Blessed Lady of Consolation,—(our Mother-house in Cambray) wher she espoused herselfe to God by the voues of Religion and made her holy profession the 15 of August 1629; in the time of the first Lady-Abbesse of that house viz Dame Francis Gawen; The very

R^d Father Rudiscend Barlow being also then presedent of the English-Benedictin Congregation.

This R^d Mother was so exemplar a practiser of al Regular, & Religious Dutys, y^t in the year 1652 she was by order of obedience sent to Paris wth y^e R^d Mothers; Briget More, & Moth: Justina Gascoigne, wth a Lay Sister S^{tr} Gartrude Hodson to assist Moth: Clem: Cary in y^e Beginning of this our Monastery heere in Paris. She was of a sereine & equal Temper & an Interne spirit; much Relishing ven^{ble} Father Bakers divine instructions; as may be seene by her Collections, and his Bookes, w^{ch} she write out and faithfully practised with Custodia Cordis; that he so much recomẽds.

She was also, indowed with great naturall parts, as a solid judgment, and a deepe reach into things; w^{ch} caused her to procede with much prudence, and discretion in her actions; Her humility was admirable, w^{ch} she made apeare in her sweet and humble comportment to al; perticularly to those that were under her charge, and education; to whos dispossion she so acomodated herselfe, that she became al to al, that she might gaine al to Christ; she knew wel, how to temper sweetnes with Rigor, y^t she was both loved & fear'd by those y^t had y^e happines to be under her conduct; & thõ: she was much imployed, in y^e offices, of M^{rs} of Novices, Celleraria & many other affaires; w^{ch} necessarily accour in new beginning-houses —yet it was never known that she absented herselfe from the Quire, although she had but a smal voice; nor mental prayer, or other conventuall acte, except upon urgent or extraordinary occation. Thus she by her vertus examples pains & indeavors, for y^e space of 8 years helped in y^e promoting & happy begining of this our Monastery; pertaking all that time of y^e poverty, & other inconveniencies o^r comũity was then in; And it pleased Almig: God for her greater merite, A yeare before death to send her a greevius infirmity viz: a cancer in one of her breasts; w^{ch} she suported wth great patience, & Resignation; & seeing y^t remidy's availed nothing; & y^t her Infirmitie increased, she intirely abondon'd herselfe to God. Conforming her wil; to his divine pleasur, & having most devoutly received all the holy sacraments of the Catholicke church; she happily depart'd this life, to goe to Inioy eternall repose in the next; as we have good reason to hope; the first of Aprill, 1660 about y^e 60th of her age, & 30th of her holy profession; And we liveing then in a hired house; where we had no semitary. she lieth Buried in y^e Royall Abbay Valdigrace, here in Paris; yet least through human frailty anything should hinder her speedier attaining to the Beatificall vission of God; Let us offier up o^r prayers for her Resiting the deprofoundis this being her Anniversary day. Requiescat in pace. Amen.

III. 1663. Some Briefe Remarkes of y^e very Religious Sister, S^{tr} Rachel Lanning Junieur; departed this Life, the 19th of January in the yeare. 1663.

The very Religious Sister Rachel Lanning of Saint John Baptest, was Borne in London in England of vertus Catholike & English parents; her Father was M^r Thomas Lanning, & her Mother M^{rs} Catharine Bruges; And this their Daughter being of a good & solid Judgment; gave herselfe much to devotion & retierment; & by the divine conduct she came to be acquainted with y^e R^d Father Huge Starkey one of our holy order, who gave her the Abridgement of ven^{ble} Father Augustin Baker his Instructions in print, called Sancta Sophia; and some directions for mentall prayer. By the practis of w^{ch} Almighty God was pleased so to enlighten her, to see y^e vanities, & inconstancys, of perishable things; y^t in the 20th of her age, forsaking y^e world she desired nothing more, then to dedicate herselfe to God, in a Religious estate.

She therefore came to this our convent of our Blessed Lady of Good Hope in Paris; & so seriously aplied herselfe to al Regular observances, that she was received to her holy profession; the 9th of October, the yeare 1660 & was the second professed for the Quire. She was of an interne Contemplative Spirite, & made such great progresse in y^e way of perfection y^t one may truely say she accomplish'd much, in a short time; for two years after her profession she being of a tender constitution, & the Aire of Paris too sharpe for her, she fell into a consumption; with an ulcer in her liver; so that sixe munths before her death, she was constraed to keepe her bedd continually. And reduced to such a great weaknes, y^t some weekes before she died, she could not rise whilest her bedd was made; yet suported it wth extraordinary patience. And being strength'ned with al y^e holy sacraments of y^e Church; she happily departed this life y^e 19th of January 1663 about y^e 23 of her age, & 2^d of her holy profession; & we being then in a hired house; & had no Burying place; she lieth also, in y^e Royall-Abbay of Valdigrace here in Paris. And to the end she may sooner inioy the Company of y^e Blessed, Let us resite for her y^e deprofoundis, this being her Anniversary day. Requiescat in pace. Amen.

IV. 1664. Some Briefe Remarkes of the V Religious Sister, S^{tr} Anne Langworth Junieur departed this life y^e fourth of November. 1664.

The very Religious Sister Anne Langworth of our Blessed Lady was Borne in Lincorshire in England of very vertus Catholike & English parents; her Father was M^r Arthour Langworth of Lincornshire; her Mother was M^{rs} Anne Prigion, this their Daughter leaving the world at y^e 22 of her age, imbrased a Religious life in this our Monastery of o^r Blessed (Lady) of Good Hope in Paris, & made her holy profession the second of July 1662. She was of a very quiet Mild dispossession, & had so good a propention to internall prayer, & mortification (in w^{ch} she seemed to be prevented by the grace of Almighty God) that in a short time, she arived to a great degree, of submission; holy simplissity and prompt obedience. In these vertus, she was so habituated that it was scarce ever known, she replied; or made any demoure, in any thing that was required of her by superiours; how contrary and hard, soever it was, to her nature or inclination. But always with great meeknes cheerfulness & alacrity punctually performed what was ordained her [according to that saying of our holy Father, in his rule, viz: as it were at the same moment the commande of y^e Master & the perfect obedience of the disciple went joyntly together & was speedily effected &c:] and one may say she died in an acte of obedience, for falling sicke of y^e smale poxe, & purple fever; in the space of three days coming to her death, & much desiring the holy viaticome y^e R^d Mother Briget More then the V R^d Moth: prioresse not imagening her to be so neere death, thinkeing a litle cordiall water might doe her good caused her to take some in a spoone w^{ch} she had great aprehension of, fearing it might hinder her from receiving the Blessed Sacrement. But when they sayd it was an obedience, she presently tooke it [& in this maner was obedient unto death] for contrary to expectation it so hastned her, y^t she could not receive her viaticome. nor the Confessor who was Mr Price; give her the Extreem unction before she expired. Altho: we may with good reason hope, she hath now received the reward both of her obediences, & her good desires. She departed this life the fourth of November 1664 the 26 of her age 2 years & some months after her holy profession, being the first y^t was Buried in y^e semitary of our Monastery of o^r Blessed Lady of Good Hope aux Champt d'Allouett in Paris.

And to the end she may the sooner arrive to eternall happines Let us offer up our prayers for y^e repose of her soule resiting the deprofoundis. this being her Anniversary Day. Requiescat in pace. Amen.

V. 1665. Some Briefe Remarkes of Sister Briget Swales Novice departe Life y^e 18 of Sep: in the year. 1665.

Sister Briget Swales. was Borne in England, in Yorkshir. of English parants but prodistants. Yet our Blessed Saviour was pleased to cast his eyes of compassion upon her drawing her both out of the darknes of heresi into the Catho: Church. and also conducted her unto the happy estate of a Religious Life. She was converted about a yeare before she came to this our Monastery of our Blessed Lady of Good hope Au Champt d'Alouitte in Paris. with the R^d Mother Maria Appleby whom she wated on. Niece to our Ven^{ble} Mother Prioresse viz Mo: Justina Gascoigne. And upon whos porsion she was admitted in order to Religion in y^e month of June 1665. But at the end of August folloing she fel into a great feveur with afluxe in w^{ch} she suffered extreeme great paine & torment for the space of 3 weekes with much Resignation to gods wil & haveing a great desire to die in y^e scapuler. she was admitted to the holy habit upon her death-bed. w^{ch} haveing recived, and armed with al the Rights of our Mother the Catholike Church. she departed this Life the eighteenth of September. 1665.—the 24 of her age. And was the second Buried in the semitary of this our above named Monastery. And that she may the sooner arrive to Eternal Repose. Let us say a deprofoundis for her; this being her Anniversary day. Requiescat in pace. Amen.

VI. 1666. Some Briefe Remarkes of the V R^d Mother Mo: Etheldred Smith Deceased this life the 9th of Octob: 1666.

VII. 1671. Some Breife Remarkes of our Very R^d Mother, Moth: Clementia Cary, the first Promotrix of this Monastery of our Blessed Lady of good Hope in Paris, departed ye 26. of Aprile. 1671.

The Very Reve^d Mother, Moth: Clementia Cary of St Mary Magdalen, was borne in London, in England. of Honorable parents; Her Father was Henry Cary; Vicount Faulkland, Viceroy of Ireland in the Raine of the first King Charles of England; Her Mother was Elizabeth Tanfeild also of great quality, and both of them English. The Lord her Father was educated and continued under ye comone misfortune of England in ye erronious Religion of prodistance. But his Lady during my Lords Life, was converted by the R^d Father Dunstan Everade of our holy order. And how real a conversion it was ye effectes sufficiently prove. In that after my Lords death she gained to the holy Church her two sons, who were educated under our Reve^d Fathers of St Edmunds here in Paris, & four Daughters who al became Religious at Cambray, (our Mother house) & were the R^d Dames, Dame Magdalena, D. Augustina, D. Maria, and D. Clementia, who came last to Religion thō: first into ye world. And of whome in perticuler we shal now speake.

The advantages of witt & Beauty w^{ch} she abundantly received from nature rendred her extreãly acceptable in al conversations. To w^{ch} being added the cercomstances of her Noble Birth together wth her Fathers loyalty & suffrings, and the eminent piety of her Mother, she became so much in the favour of Henerettæ Mariæ Daughter of France and Queene of England, that she continued in her Maiestys Court for some years, & seemed much pleased wth the gaity & delights of such a life, yet cheerfullnes & Innocency always prescribed limitts to y^e freedome she tooke in her conversations, duering her Residence at y^e Court. But in y^e flower of her age & delights of those worldly satisfactions. It pleased Almighty God to give her so fervent a vocation to seeke after more durable and solid joys y^t furthwith she resolved to take leave of the Queen and Court, & for ever bid Adieu to al y^e seeming pleasures & glittering follys of y^e world, w^{ch} accordingly she did, Imitating y^e pious examples of her three yonger sisters in taking the holy Habit among'st our Reverend Mothers at Cambray, y^e 3 of April. 1639. where having exactly perform'd al the dutys of her Noviciat she made her Holy profession in the year 1640. The twenty six of her age. To the true contentment of her soule, finding that peace and satisfaction w^{ch} the world could not give.

Retirement and prayer was now become the busines of her Life, & the speedy progress she made towards gaining perfection was such that when but two years professed; she was chossen as a fitt person to assiste the very R^d Lady Abbess Catherine Gascoigne. [who had received order & commands from his Grace the Lord Vanderburg of pious memory Bishop of Cambray] to Reforme a French Monastery of Nunns in that City called S^t Lazars. And altho: so great & pious a worke ought to be cheifly attributed to the wisdom & devotion of my Lady Abbess. yet a considerable share of the successe may be acknowledged justly due to our R^d Mother Clementia who with other perfections was so much Mistres of y^e frêch Languish as to compile for the use of those Religious, admirable instructions for y^e well performing of the divine office in publike, & also helps for mentall prayer and devotions, extracted out of the workes of the truely interne and contemplative Author the venerable Father Augustin Baker.

She who had thus successfully contributed to the Reforming of one Monastery was some time after chosen by the wisdom and providence of the Almighty God as a fitt instrument to undertake a farr greater worke in the Establishment of an other, for our Motherhouse of Cambray through many misfortuns in their Temporall concerns was reduced to so great extremity, y^t of necessity they must disperse into french houses, or send some of their Religious to seeke an Establishment elcewhere of w^{ch} the Later was Resolved upon; & the Superiour the very R^d Abbot Gascoigne, then presedent Generall of the English Benedictin Congregation. apointed our R^d Mother Clementia together wth her sister Dame Maria, & a Lay-Sister called S^{tr} Scholastica Hodson, to repaire to paris; And trie if means coule be found to begine a Coñmunity in this City. paris at that time was actually ingaged in civill warrs. And our Queen Mother of England here ; under many Misfortuns, so that an atempt of this nature seemed wholly groundless in such a juncture of affairs. yet this our R^d Mother had so firme a confidence in obedience ; And the goodnes and Mercy of God w^{ch} upon al occations was the foundation on w^{ch} she built her securest hopes. y^t with this intier resignation to God & superiours ; she & her two companians parted from Cambray, and arrived at paris, about Al Saints in the yeare 1651. where first they placed themselves with the Religious Dame, viz : the English Augustine Nunns upon y^e fosse of S^t Victor.

After their arivall at paris our Reve^d Mother Clementia made her first adresses to the Queen-Mother of England & the English Court. Where notwithstanding her Maiestys present exigences she found a Reception so kind & charitable as aparantly shewed absance had not Lessened y^t great esteeme & value her Maiesty had formerly conceived for her. The first effecte of her Maiestys favour was, orders she gave for the paiment of their three pentions whilst at y^e Augustine Nunns. And upon al occations continued afterwards our best friend and Gracious Benefactris tell her Maiestys deceace. Very R^d Mo : Clementia having gained the Queen to give so considerable a charity, was resolved to trie what effects her Maiestys example might have on others accordingly renewed her former acquaintance with my Lord Aubigny Lord Mountague and other nobility and gentry both of the Queen Mother and the French court. where she generally mett wth so many kind assurances of friendship & assistance. That forthwith she gave very R^d Father presedent speedy notis of the happy progress she hoped to make, & with his leave to hire a house of one Mon^{sr} Angloise in S^t Dominikes Street, for to begine the designed Com^ñ-unity here in paris ; And also humbly desired his paterity y^t she might have more Religious to assist her, as according he did, and sent five other Religious viz : The Reverend Mothers, Mo : Briget More, Mo : Elizabeth Brent, Mo : Justina Gascoigne, Dame Marina Appleton, & also a Lay Sister, S^{tr} Gartrude Hodson, Sister to her who came wth R^d Mo : Clementia first to Paris.

Upon the arrivall of these Religious al went to live in their litle hired house, where without doubt the superiority was justly due to the great paines, but greater Merits of our very Reve^d Mother Clementia. Yet her profound humility was such y^t neither then or ever after could she be persweded or induced to accept of the prioresship. (wherfore y^e 20th of feber : in y^e year 1652. Very R^d Mother Briget More was elected the first prioress and confirmed by the very R^d Father Gascoigne then presedent. And also y^e R^d and Learned Father Serenus Cressy (y^t set forth y^e 1st part of y^e Church His : of England) was apointed to be our Confessor. Nevertheless our R^d Dear Mo : Clementias care and vigilancy was ever y^e same, to helpe & assist y^e Comunity, for indeed to her great piety and wisdom assisted by y^e R^d Father Salvin who [after y^e said Father Cressy] was Confessor, & y^e rest of our R^d Mother-Beginners ; we may chiefly attribute the compileing of our constitutions out of those of Cambray & Valdigrace. W^{ch} were found so excellent a worke as to be confirmed by our very R. R. Fathers of the English Benedictin Congregation and Approved by his Eminence Cardinall de Retz Archbishop of paris. As may more at lardg be seen in y^e History of this house And also by her industry & power of her friends & acquaintance we obtained our Letters of Establishment. But these her great Talents & naturall parts were y^e least of her perfections. For her soule was adorned with much more excellent & higher gifts of grace; wherby she intensively regarded God in al she did & suffred, keeping herself united to him by a strict bande of love, whome she possessed in her superior wil & soule, in solitude, silence, and abstraction; W^{ch} caused her to have so great a disgust to unnecessary conversation with creatures y^t made her cude of frequent vissits & longe discourses at the grate. And for y^e space of thirty years used al possible means to promot prayer, Retirement and whatsoever was requised towards the gaining of Religious perfection; being so firme in y^e maintaning this intern and contemplative spirit y^t she would not varye from our Constitutions by admitting any to Religion that had not a true propention for it thõ: likely to conduce never so much to the Temporall good of the Monastery.

And to say some thing more in perticuler of these her interne vertues; And first of her prayer; she was much drawn by the attracts of divine Love, to w^{ch} she did faithfully correspond having a great propention for contemplative interne prayer, as appears by severall bookes of her owen collections besides her spirituall songs w^{ch} she composed for y^e solace of y^e sicke & infirme; The instructions she followed, & the mentall excises w^{ch} she practised were those of ven^{ble} Father Augustin Baker of happy Memory, and often saied she could never sufficiently esteeme or recomẽd them to others. For thõ: she read other bookes of mistike Divines conformable to his, yet she declared she found non more easie & plean to be understood then those of R^d Father Bakers; thus constantly pursuing her happy way of tendance towards God according to these words of y^e abovesaid divine Author viz: [In free will, is all the skill, use it rightly, & be happy, In desolation & temptation, consolation, or affliction, In confusion, or distraction, &c:] she advanced her soule in al vertues, & atained to an high & sublime degree of prayer and contemplation.

And her humility was so solid & profound, y^t she was an example to others in y^e contempte & disesteeme of herself, not only by refusing to be y^e very R^d Mother superioure as is beforesaid, but also in other offices of honor she was so disengaged of y^t related to her owen perticuler, that when she thought it would conduce to y^e future good she would preferr even y^e yong'st & Last of y^e house before herself; and upon other occations as well litle as great her humility was admirable & very edifieing.

Her obedience, & holy simplicity, wth the submission of her wil and judgment to y^t of her Superiours, thõ: never so contrary to her owen inclination, or sensible to her nature, was very exempler; The love & zeale she showed by her practis in keeping al good order & reguler disciplin, so farr as she was able according to her health & abilitys, did much exite & animate others; The confidence she had in God, & her dependance upon the divine providence, was very extraordinary, & she desired it might be Imprinted into y^e hearts of others, and cannot better be expressed then by her owne words upon y^e same subiect w^{ch} are as followeth.

“Let us oberve the Divine providance that all of us may adore it, and Learne to depend upon it; especially the Religious of this Monastery; who experienced it in such a wonderfull maner towards them; both in y^e spiritualls and temporalls; and Let us remember our Beginning-days, that we may ever persever in the same spirit. And never depart from it; to relie upon human hopes & temporall riches. How much soever we may have by the charitys of pious persons, or otherwise. But assure our selves if we doe; That it wil perish wth us & come to nothing, as it hath don with many others, who had great Foundations w^{ch} they-relied upon, & soon failed them; And like a broken reede fell to the ground; And if we follow their foot steeps we shal also doe. But this divine providence is a firme Foundation y^t can never faile. upon w^{ch} this Monastery is Founded.”

The many vissible markes of her great conformity to the adorable wil of God, in her interiour anguishes & probations, besides other crosses y^t his divine goodnes was pleased to send her for the increase of her merites, would be here to long to recount, only we may truly say she experienced in them the wonderfull favours & mercys of Almighty God. wherby it apeared he had perticularly designed her for his especiall Elected and Beloved spowse. And she perseverantly desiring to suffer for his sake & faithfully adhear to him; made her repeat these words of Bl: Mary of the Incarnation. viz: “prepare my harte Lord, prepare my harte, (but to what) to the crose, to anguish, to disdain, to afflictions, & to al y^t it shal please thee to send me; only prepare my heart &c:” And indeed she always seemed to us to be prepared; & certainly his infinit goodnes would not have sent her such probations had he not first prepared her harte to receive them; For she excelling in parts that rendred her capable of y^e most important affairs, as well spirituall as temporall of this community; made the R^d Mother Prior'ss (whom she much assisted) Judge non so proper to imploy then this our D^r Mother. perticularly very R^d Mother Justina Gascoigne, who always had a great & singuler esteeme & confidence in her, both before, & after she was prioresse. And they two joyntly together wth a divine descesion, & their good examples; upheld & maintained ven^{ble} Father Bakers Instructions and consarved & increased in the hearts of y^e Religious the true BENEDICTIN SPIRIT w^{ch} made them equally share in one anothers sufferances, as well on y^t account as divers others, thõ: Mo: Clementia in occations cheused rather to take y^e blame on herself then let any fall upon o^r V. R^d Mo: Prioresse.

She was much troubled wth headacks, defluctions, & other infirmitys, w^{ch} were such y^t she was not able to take rest in a bed, wth out being choked or sufficated so y^t al y^e repose she had both by night, or by day, was in a chair except in great sickneses, yet she suported it wth extraordinary cheefullnes, & peace of mind. About four years before her death it pleased God to vissit her wth a very dangerous sicknes, & at y^e same time also o^r V. R^d Mo: pri: Mother

Justina Gascoigne w^{ch} was a heavie blow to this o^r Comunity we fearing to be deprived of them both at once. But y^e Almgity Goodnes knowing we could not subsist wth out either of them spared them then; And they were Likewise very sensible of each others Lose & sent severall messages one to y^e other, R^d Mo: Clementia sayed she should be glad to dye, so it might pleas God to spar o^r V. R^d Mo: pri, who sent word to her againe y^t she should be glad, if it were Gods wil to dye, that she might Live for our support.

She was very compassionat of y^e sicke & infirme, & being selle-reire exactly acomplished y^t w^{ch} our holy Rule & Constitutions ordaines for them, & wth a Motherly tendernes most carefully provided what thay wanted or might solace them, so farr as could possibly be. Also strangers, but perticularly y^e poore experienced her great Charity to them, she not being able to refuse them an almes thõ: we had scarce any thing in y^e house, yet her confidence in y^e divine providence was such y^t of y^e litle they had, she would feerly aske permission to give them part, w^{ch} was granted her.

The true Resignation she atained to, in y^e exercise of her aforesaid sickly life, was not less then her other vertues, & may be an example to us. One day being in her usiall illnes, a young Religious goeing to see y^s o^r D^r Moth: asked her how she did, she answered in her acustomed maner "I am very ill I thanke God, y^e other saied are you not discouraged to see y^r self thus frequently ill & almost incapable of any thing, o noe, replied R^d Mo: Clem: if I were sure it would be athing pleasing to God, & y^t by my sicknes I could promot his honor thõ: never so litle I should wth great satisfaction desire to remaine in this my condistion even to y^e day of Judgment." She said no more then but remained in silence & y^e other much Edified. And it was her generall practise to offer up herself as a sacrificise & victim to God in her suffreings, & to dye to al things y^t concerned herself w^{ch} made her often say these words, viz: fiat voluntas tua, Deus meus & omnia; fiat voluntas tua.

Thus it pleased her divine spowse to continue the cours of her mortified, thõ: happy state of life, tell about y^e midle of Lent 71. when she fell into her last sicknes inperceptably to us, being a lingering fever wth increase of her other infirmitys w^{ch} she suffred with exceeding great patience the space of six weeks, in this time V. R^d Moth: pri: & the Comunity desiring she might be better accomodated proposed a removall to y^e infirmiry for more convenience, but she humbly desired to continue quietly in her cell, and R^d Moth: pri: wth the rest not thinking her so dangerously ill consented to it, then she wth much content kept in her cell, according to these her mottos. In nidulo meo moriar mundo ut vivam solus Deo. and Domine quamvis adagendum nequeam, cellulam tamen meam servandam valeam; Her greatest Comfort being spirituall & her soule so quiet & united to God y^t she seemed to be always in prayer.

During this sicknes she comūicated for her Easter and a Jubily that happened y^t year. then recovered so well, as to be at the first Conventuall Masse in y^e quire; on Sunday after S^t Marke. and seemed to be so much better, y^t the Comunity was extreemly consolated to see it, and hoped she would be as well as usually she was. And at y^t Masse, & al the morning before they perticularly observed she was more then in an ordinary maner in prayer and recollection; Masse being ended & al y^e Religious retired except Mother Agnes Temple who spoke french very well, (& since o^r very R^d Moth: prioress) stayed to assist her R^d Mo: Clementia being then Cellereire; & not able to goe to y^e parlour, desired leave; to speak at y^e quire grat wth Bro: Nicolay y^t did some affairs for us, to take from him y^e accounts of y^e Church & quire y^t had newly ben accomodated, w^{ch} having don, returning to her cell wth y^e above mentioned Mother &c: who saied to R^d Dear Mother Clemeñ: "I am very much comforted to see you so well, & goe so strongly". But y^s our great consolation was soon turned into dolore, for when she came to her cell she was seased wth such a violent illnes y^t she perceived in herself y^e sintums of her neer aproching death it being then about nine of y^e cloke in y^e morning.

And our very R^d Moth: pri: Mother Justina &c: & y^e Comunity being advertised of this sudene Change, sent wth al speed for our confessor y^e very R^d Father Joseph Shirburne [since presedent] & also y^e doctor wth y^e surgean who let her blood but wthout effect, & al y^e time of her extreemity she called upon the holy Name of Jesus; & S^{tr} Mary Tempest being then wth her sayed "now D^r Mother is y^e time for you to cast y^r self wth a strong confidence into y^e mercifull Armes of y^r sweet Jesus, w^{ch} you have in y^r life time so faithfully practised" & gave her y^e crucifixe to kise, w^{ch} she did most devoutly, & sayed "I desire nothing but God; nothing but God alone;" w^{ch} she severall times repeated; Then R^d Father Shirburne being come in asked her if she remembered any thing to confesse, she answered that noe perticuler came into her mind y^t troubled her consience, & was very quiet; resigning herself wholly to y^e wil of God; And most humbly desired to have all y^e Rites of our holy Mother y^e Church, then he gave her the Last Sacraments, and absolution, she not being able to swallow so as to coñmunicate; and seeing her in great paine one asked her if she would have any thing, she answered "nothing but God." w^{ch} were y^e last words she spooke. And in three hours time about 12 of y^e cloke she left this transitory life to praise God for Eternity in y^e next, as we have just reason to hope; she having here so ardently sought & aspired after him, & departed y^e 26. of April year 1671 in this our Monastery of our Bl: Lady of good Hope of y^e holy order of S^t Benedict, aux Champt de Alloütte in paris. the 57. of her age and 31. of her holy profession. Amid'st y^e prayers & tears of al y^e Comunity for y^e great & sensible loss of this our truly D^r and R^d Mother.

Therefore thinke it not a misse here to set downe y^e words of o^r very R^d Moth: Justina Gas: prioress to her Hon^d: Aunt at Cambray the worthy Lady Abbess, very R^d Moth: Cath: Gascoigne w^{ch} were viz: "non can esially Imagin y^e unspeakable Losse I have of D^r Mother Clementia for indeed she did so assist me in al occasions y^t she was my chief suport &c:" In answeere therto y^t Renowned Abbess writ as followeth; "It seemes to me your desolate case in y^e Losse of D^r Mother Clementia Cary, makes me remember mine, when ven^{ble} Father Baker, & Dame Gertrude More were both taken from me at the same time. But the Infinit goodnes of God wil, I hope supply by such means as he pleaseth we faithfully adhearing to him. In whome I am Dear Neice y^r unworthy sister & Aunt Catherine Gascoigne."

Yet least through human frailty there remaine any thing that may detaine her from the speedy possession of the Beatificall Vission of Almi^{ty} God; Let us as our gratitude and obligation requireth; offer up for her o^r prayers and resite y^e deprofundis this being her Anniversary day. Requiescat in pace. Amen.

VIII. 1678. Some Briefe Remarkes of our very Religious sister Sister Mary Tempest departed y^s life the 14 of August in the yeare 1678.

The very Religious Sister Mary Tempest of St John Evangelist was Born in Cambridgshire in England of English Parents, her Father was M^r Thomas Tempest, & her Mother M^{rs} Anne Lowne. Both of them of very good Antient Catholike familys. they had severall children. & this was there Eldest Daughter, who being prevented by y^e grace of Almighty God in the 15th of her age forsakeing the world & al its vanities came to this o^r Monastery of our Blessed Lady of Good Hope in Paris. & having fully accomplished with much fervour, & exactitude, the time of her trial, & Novishepe, she made her holy Profession the 2^d of July 1662.

This our Religious D^r Sister had al her life a great esteeme & zeale for all Regular observances. y^t she would never exempte herself from the exacte performance of any Religious Duty excepte, she was wholly disinabled by sickneses; obedience. or true nescessity. & she had a very good propention for an Internall life. & by her serious prosecution of internall prayer and following ven^{ble} Father Bakers instructions made such profit in vertues that our V R^d Mother Justina Gascoigne pri: judged her fit to be the Mistres of the Novices, Cellerere & also other offices of all w^{ch} she was very capable.

Some years before her death it pleased God to exercise her by much sicknes & infirmitys w^{ch} she suported wth great patience & Resignation, & in her last sicknes w^{ch} was violent she much edified all the com^unity by her submission & conformity to the holy will of God. she most devoutly received al the sacraments of y^e church, & had her perfect sences to her last, & being in her greatest extreemity she cast her eyes on al sides of the bedd, as if she wanted some thing; the Infirmarian asked if she would have any thing. she answered her with a stronge & shrile voice. Jesus Christ; & in the pronouncing those words presently rendered up her soule to him whom she so fervently invocaed; as we may truely hope about 6 of the cloke in y^e Morning on the eve of y^e Assumption of our Blessed Lady the foreteenth of August 1678. the 33 of her age; & 16th of her holy profession, in this our aforesayd Monastery aux champ^t D'Alouet; And to the end she may the speedierly Arrive to Inioy the company of y^e Blessed for all Eternity; let us say for her y^e deprofundis this being her Anniversary day. Requiescat in pace. Amen.

IX. 1685. Some Briefe Remarkes of Sister Margaret Greene, Lay Sister departed this Life the 22 of November in the yeare of our Lord 1685.

Sister Margaret Greene of St Peter and St Paule was Born in Sommersetshier in England of Englishe Thõ: Prodistant parents. But it pleased God mercifully to drawe her first into the Bosome of the catholike church & afterwards into the secure haven of an Religious Estate of life in this our Monastery of our Bls: Lady of good hope in Paris. she came to us soone after our first coming to Paris. & she had so great a vocation to serve God in this holy course of life y^t she was nether discouraged for the delaye of her profession by reason of o^r unsettled condition being made to stay about four years. nor tired out with y^e difficultys & labours of our freequent removalls from house to house. we having ben at five houses before we could get this of o^r owne. besides many other inconveniences in our Beginings. Yet she always remained constant (according to y^t of our holy Rule in the 4th degree of humility) never growing wery of her vocation &c: or ever spared her pious & painfull Labours for the servis of the co^munity Thõ: she was infirme & sickly: y^t in her many Employment of Martha. she did not omitted the chiefe affair of Mary. for she was very exact & carefull of her times of retirment & recolection & very serious at her prayer & devotions by w^{ch} she dayly refreshed her soule in the love of God & obtained strength to pase through al her difficultiys & pains both of body & minde.

Her Last sicknes continued about 3 months in w^{ch} time was seen the good habits she had gotten of all vertues. & three days before her death she lay as it were in atrance & in all that time never stured or moved any part of her body nor had any feeling or sence of what was don or sayd to her noe more then a dead body. Yet we found she had life By her breathing & pulce. & at the 3 days end, about y^e same time she feele into that letergie or trance being about three of the cloke in the morning she quietly rendred up her soule to him that had created it. She had received all the Rites of our holy Mother y^e church before she fell into the aforesayd maner. And also severall times in that sicknes co^municated very devoutly. She departed this life the 22 of November in the yeare 1685. in 62 of her age & 29 of her holy profession in this o^r above named Monastery aux champ D'Alouett. and was the first of all that was professed of our co^munity.

For the repose of whos soule Let us offer up our prayers for her resiting the deprofoundis, this being her Anniversary day. Requiescat in pace. Amen.

X. 1690. Some Briefe Remarkes of o^r V Religious Sister, Sister Mary Hawes departed this life the 27 of March in the yeare. 1690.

The very Religious Sister Mary Hawes of Jesus. was Born in y^e county of Darby in England of English Parents, her Father was M^r Henery Hawes. & her Mother M^{rs} Anne Vicque both Prodistant. Yet in her we may adore & prays the Infinet mercy & goodnes of Almighty God the true lover & seeker of soules who neuer despises any of a good will in what condition, or estate soever, as apears in this good soule of whom we now speake, who was engaged in y^e greatest perills & vanities of y^e world. being one of the actors or stage Players of King charles the 2^d of England where she continued three or four years. in w^{ch} nevertheles he still so preserved & prevented her by his diuine grace y^t she lived in great innocency & integrety of Life. And Thõ: not then a catholicke, she had a great & extreme horror of al vice, or anything y^t might displease God, & was an edification & example of vertue to al y^e Rest of her companions, as several of them did declare to some that knowe her.

Infine in the midst of this her greatest danger & impedements or mercifull Lord was pleased to lay open to her y^e way of salvation by inlighting her wth his true faith making her a member of his holy church & so powerfully touched her hart wth his diuine love; y^t she bid Aduē to those Intising pleasurs & alurments; & resolved to Espowse herselfe to God, in a Religious' state w^{ch} accordingly she did coming to this our Monastery of or Bls: Lady of good hope aux champt D'Alouett in paris, y^e 22 of her age. And having ben very exact & perseverant al the time of her probation; she made her holy profession y^e 26 of December, 1684 to y^e great satisfaction & comfort of her soule; And was afterwards so faithful in y^e practis of all her Religious dutys that she accomlishe much in few years; But perticularly her zeale, & devotion for al y^t concerned y^e diuine office was very edifieing in w^{ch} she used al her indeavors, & indurstry to have both the singing & Resiting performed in y^e most exactest & perfectest maner she could; she being very well Quallified for it having both a good voice & great skill; so y^t she was a great pillar of our quire; & one may truely say she breathed out her soule in singing the prayes of God in the quire.

For Althõ: she was very much indisposed al y^e Lent wth a violent paine in her head w^{ch} was thought to be an impostume; yet she assisted at al y^e office in holy weeke & being at y^e servis on good friday (y^e day or Blessed Saviour died for y^e salvation of y^e world). Just as she had finished y^e Hymne Vexilla Regis &c: at y^e returning of y^e Blessed Sacrament from the Sepulcher to y^e Alter she found herselfe strucke wth her aproching death; being so ill, y^t wth great difficulty she got to the Infirmary where she fell into a violent vomiting w^{ch} continued al that day, and the night following and not being perfectly herselfe she could nethere confesse, nor comunicat; But had done both, the day before; being Maunday Thursday; saying that she had a perticuler devotion to make her Easter that day, on w^{ch} our Blessed Saviour Instituted that diuine & admirable sacrament; she had also, a litle before made a general confession to R^d Father Corker who was then heere.

Infine on Easter Munday having received the holy oyles & generall absolution she happily departed this life to goe to singe eternally, the prayes of her celestiall spowse in the company of the Blessed; as we have good reason to hope; the 27 of March, in the yeare 1690 the 30th of her age, and 5th of her holy profession; in this our above sayd Monastery.

But to the end she may the sooner Arrive to the Happy Possion of God Let us offer up our prayers for her, and resite the deprofoundis this being her Annversary day. Requiescat in Pace. Amen.

XI. 1690. Some Briefe Remarkes of y^e Religious Mother Ursula Treuillian departed y^s life y^e 12 of May 1690.

The very Religious Mother Vrsula Treuillian of the most Blessed Trinity was Borne in Somersetshire in England of English and catholike Parents her Father was M^r John Treuillian & her Mother M^{rs} Catharine Risdon, both of Good familys; And this their Daughter finding in herselfe many touches from Almighty God to be Religious to w^{ch} her nature had great repugnance she therfore endeavored to devert those (as she esteemed them Mallencoly thoughts) by giving herselfe the more to recreations, devertisments & making of freequent vissist.

But our mercifull Lord so narrowly persued her, that she could finde noe repose in soule; tell she mett with R^d fathar Peter Salvin one of our holy order and had Ben our confessor (& some times at her fathers house) he gave her the Booke caled the kingdome of God in the soule; and put her into a course of mentall Prayer; by w^{ch} means, she renued her former good purposes of being Religious. and never desisted tell she obtained her desire.

Notwithstanding all the violence her father, & other Relations used to oppose & hinder her from undertaking that holy state; only her Brother, whom she had gained to consent, And also to be content to binde himselfe for the payment of her portion (w^{ch} was about three hundred Pistols) as he did. Thus having settled her affairs, she came to this our Monastery of our Blssed Lady of Good Hope aux Champt D'Allouet in Paris. in the 24 of her age, & having fully accomplished the time of her probation, she made her holy profession y^e 21 of November 1667.

And Althõ: she was always very Infirmē & sickly yet she supported it with great patience and quietnes keeping herself much retired eithere in her cell or in the church in prayer so that she much edified all and being farre gone in a consumption; after a life of long sufferance she was seased with her last sicknes (as she was praying at the foot of the Alter) being a fever w^{ch} continued only four days & in that time was very cheerful & she imbraced death not only with much content and satisfaction, but with so extraordinary transport of Joy to goe to see God, that it caused great consolation to those who were about her; she received al the holy Sacraments of the church and had her perfect sences to the last moment.

And being much devoted to the sacred Mistery of the Blessed Trinity she sayd with a cleere and shril voice; O holy Trenity, Father, Sonne, and holy Ghost. have mercy upon me. & just as she had pronounced, these Adorable names; she expired leaving this life to goe possesse for al eternity; the three most Blessed, and divine Persons, and one God. as we may wel hope, the 12 of May. 1690 the 49 of her age and 23 of her holy Profession in this our above sayd Monastery.

Yet least any thing may hinder her speedy arrivall to that Blessed vission; Let us offer up o^r prayers for her; resiting the deprofoundis. this being her Annversary day. Requiescat in Pace. Amen.

XII. 1690. Some Remarkes of o^r Most Dr & ven^{ble} Mother Prioress v Rd Mo: Justina Gascoigne departed this life y^e 17 of May. 1690 & of her Parants &c: who were great Benefactors to the comūity.

This our Most Deare & ven^{ble} Mother Prioress the very Rd Mother Justina Gascoigne de Sta Maria was Borne in Yorkshire, in England of Renowed Parents, her Father was Thomas Gascoigne of Lasingcrofte Baronet, Lord also, of the two Mannuers of Barnbow & Parleington. And not only Highly Esteemed for his being of the Antient Race of Knights, and Baronets (& desended from S^r William Gascoigne of Yorkshire, Lord cheife Justice of England whos great wisdome, & equite is Remared in the English Chronicles) But much more for his signal vertue; piety; and Heroicke couradge in suffering many difficultys & persecutions with great constancy for the catholicke faith. her Mother was Anne Simons A Lady of answerable Quallity and much Hon^{ed} in al that country for her exemplar vertue. She deceased in her above sayd house of Barnbow. But before we enter into the perticuler discourse of this our Very Rd Mother Prioress we can not but recount some passages of her father & other Relations. for the concerne o^r very Rd Mother had in them & our obligation. they having ben very considerable Benefactors to us either spirituall, or Temporall, as wil be seene in their proper places, & being also things of edification.

Her Father S^r Thomas, not having ben brought into the plote of Owtes & Bedlow, was soone after, by two of his owne sarvants, who following their evil examples & forgetting their dutys & y^e many received Benefits from their good Master. accused him with y^e cheife of his family, in the yeare 1680 to have conspired y^e death of his Maiesty King Charles y^e second of England & vpon this their false accusation; caused him being then neere y^e 88 of his Age. to be seassed vpon by souldgers & Gards & hurried vp to London a hundred Mills from his owne house and put prisner in the Towre. wher he remained four months after w^{ch} he was brought to his Trial. And when he came before the Judg and al the people he made upon himselfe y^e signe of the holy Crosse, with such devotion that it astonished all the assembly. saying in a high voice. In Nomini Patris & filii &c. and then remained standing bare headed 8 or 9 hours. wth a cheerfull countanace amidst al y^e violence exercised against him; but infine it pleased God to whos divine wil & providence he had wholly abandoned himselfe & al his concerns to cause y^e Judg to see his Innocency & set him at liberty beyond al expectation in y^t time w^{ch} was so perverse against catholikes, and S^r Thomas being by age become so deafe they could hardly make him heare any thing rightly. When his friends came to tell him y^t he was freed & set at liberty, he taking one thing for another thinking he was condemned, answered yes, yes, I did believe it, God forgive them. Let us pray for them so Resigned and prepared he was for death. and soone after he quited y^e world and went to the English Benedictin Abbay at Lamespring. wher his Brother the very Reverand Father Placidus Gascoigne, was then Lord Abbot, & who had ben presedent of the English Benedictin Congregation in the year, 1652 when we came to Paris. And did much helpe and assist us in our beginning & ordained that an abridgment should be made of al the workes of venerable Father Augustin Baker and put in print & is called sancta sophia &c: this worthy Prelate deceased this Life the 3^d of Aug: 1681. Sr Thomas Gas: continuing to live there Like A Religious man 6 years when it pleased God to call him also to himselfe the 12 of May 1686 and 94 of his Age—having survied his Brother the Lord Abbot five years.

And althō: her Father came of so wel as hath ben sayed. yet these Persecutors did not end ther; For her Brother Sr Thomas passed through a rigorus triall vpon y^e same acount, as also her eldest sister, y^e Lady Tempest, who was then a widdow, went through a very sever probation by means of those ungratfull creatures. One of w^{ch} she saved from death; for stealing from her a good some of mony. Yet now he did al that lay in him by his callumny to take away her life so that she was also brought from her father's house to London to apeare before y^e Kings Councell wher she was sent backe to be imprisoned in Yorke Cassell. & have her Triall in y^t Citty, where if found guilty, should be burned alive.

The Aprehention of w^{ch} was a very Marterdome to this good Lady, who was in her nature so fearfull y^t the very thought of death, was enough to make her dye. especially such a kinde of death; w^{ch} put al her friends into great anguish, & concerne; believing she would not be able to apeare at her triall; & if she did not; she would be condemned as guilty. besides the greatest familys in Yorkesheir, would have ben put to death, who wher brought in; as complices wth the Gascoigns. But Almighty God althō he is pleased to permit his faithful sarvants to suffer some thing for their merits. yet he never failes to assiste & helpe them when he sees, it's y^e best time. As he did this good Lady, now in her greatest necessity; by means of y^e Rd Father Maurus Corker, one of our holy order; whom she mett with at London. & after some discourse wth him. she was so strengthned, & incouradged, y^t she did not onely, come to her triall wth an undanted couradge, & alacrity, w^{ch} astonished al y^t knewe her. But sayd several times since; That she thought she could not only willingly, have suffered y^t buring. but ten times more, for God if he had so ordained. who was pleased to be satisfied wth this her good wil & desire to die for his sake, &; as to y^e rest he delivered her both from y^t torment, & the aspersion cast upon her, & cleered her by right of law, and Justice to the great consolation of al the Catholicks.

Thus al being happily concluded and she having no charge of children,—desiring to end the rest of her days in retirement; came over to her sister this our ven^{ble} Moth: Prioress. & humbly asked y^e scholers habit, to make a Trial in our Monastery. w^{ch} being grant'd her she remained in it according to o^r constitu^s sixe months; wth true content & satisfaction of soule; being fully resolved to live & die with us. for that intention went into England to sell her Joynter, & then to returne againe; But as soone as she had sould it.

God Almighty was pleased to call her to himselfe; to crowne in the other life this good desire; wth y^e rest of her Meritorious workes as we may wel hope. y^e 20 of September. 1684 & lefe us a considerable charity.

These probations of our Ven^{ble} Mother her nearest Relations; we may wel believe was a good exercise to her, & ascribe their deliverance to her faithful recourse to God in prayer; and humble confidence in his divine providence who [as she used to say] would turne al to y^e good of those that truely love him.

We cannot also pass over in silence without seeming forgetful of the spirituall obligation we owe to the very R^d Father Doctor Stapleton; Presedent Generall of y^e English Benedictin Congregation; & cossen Garman to o^r V R^d Mother Pri: who besides the many excellent good deeds & offices he hath done this Comunity did [by the request of the worthy Abbesse Ven^{ble} Moth: Catherin Gascoigne upon her death Bedd] give a new and very ample Reconfirmation of y^e workes of ven^{ble} Father Augustin Baker of happy memory; a cotype of w^{ch}, being imparted to us is to be seene in this Booke page the eleaventh. he was three times elected presedent; in w^{ch} charge he died the fourth of Aug: 1680 and held in generall esteeme for his eminent piety, Merits, and Learning. And now to persue the Relation principally intended of our very R^d Mother Justina Gascoigne. being the second Daughter, & recevied in Baptisme the name of Catherine. She was from her Infancy much inclined to devotion & reading of y^e saintes, lives w^{ch} made her desire to practise some mortifications; one was that she would deprive herselfe of y^e most delicatest sorte of meates at her Father's table. & give it secretly to y^e poore, w^{ch} being by her above named cossen Stapleton of the same age with her, found out. she was much afflicted y^t it was discovered & many years after when he was presedent & speaking with her at y^e grate of their lives passed before some of her Religious, asked her if she remembered it. otherwise we had not knowne it. she was so carefull to hid all things that might any way tende; to her owne prays or honnour.

These divine Atracts in her youth. were y^e presages of y^t eminent perfection she one day was to arive; & w^{ch} consisted not so much in those things y^t apeare great in y^e eyes of creatures, as in y^e hidden & intieme ways of Contemplation & dieing to nature. Thus finding herselfe powerfully drawne to an interne Course of life she knewe not how better to ataine to it then by the holy state of Religion. Therefore at the age of 15 bidding Aduē to her parentes & all y^e delights & satisfactions her quality furnished her with. she went to y^e Monastery of the English Benedictine Dames at Cambray where her much esteemed & Hon^{ed} Aunt Madame Catherine Gascoigne; was Abbesse, and being arrived there on S^t Barthomews day; before she could be taken in; she fell into so dangerous a sicknes (caused by the longe journey & heats of the wether) that it was thought she would have died.

But the Allseing wisdomē, who had designed her for an Instrument to advance his Love & servis in y^e soules of many. preserved her then, from death. & being recovered entered into the Monastery. where she diligently observed al y^e orders of y^e house, & made such progresse in the mortification & contradiction of her nature. that when R^d Mother Clementia Cary about fore months after came thether also, to be Religious, found such a change in her whom she had in y^e world observed to be of a little prompt hight disposition. Sayd to one of y^e Religious. is this M^{rs} Catherine Gascoigne that is become so hum = & patient. And y^e worthy Abbesse her Aunt, who was very careful to ground her wel in y^e holy vertue of humility. gave her y^e last place of her companions at the takeing y^e holy habit, w^{ch} was on y^e conversion of S^t Paule January 25 in y^e yeare 1639.

At her clouthing there happned avery remarable thing by w^{ch} y^e supreme goodnes was pleased to make apeare the constant & solid vocation of this his sarvant. for the night before she had a cold fit of an Ague with a great fever, but y^e love of God, & y^e desire she had to give herselfe wholly to him, was much greater. For she could not be perswaded to put it of, or deferre one day Longer. But surmonting this indisposion. went into y^e church with y^e rest, notwithstanding that cold season, & performed all those Longe cerimonys w^{ch} she did with such fervour & devotion as if she had not ben sicke. And as soon as she put on y^e holy habit, she was perfectly cured & never had y^e least sintume of it But was very heathful afterwards. w^{ch} manifested now gratfull a sacrefice this was, to her celestiall spowse. And she desireing more & more to become pleasing to him & faithfully correspond to y^e will of his divine Maiesty for this his mercy to her; often called to mind these words of S^t Barnard for why camest thou to undertake a Religious estate; was it not to mortifie, deny & forsake thy selfe & to practis al Regular & conventuall actes, as prayer, fasting, & rising to mattins at 12 of y^e cloke at night (acording the custome of y^t comunity) w^{ch} she did, in y^e extreeme cold of winter; as punctually as any of y^e Religious. not spareing or indulg'ing herselfe in anything. and with great humility, & obedience, exactly acomplished the yeare of her Novishipe she made her holy profession y^e 15 of Aprill 1640.

And now seeing she had happily atained to y^t she so ardently thursted after. w^{ch} was to be wholly consecrated to God. And being as hath ben before sayd; well grounde & established in y^e constant, & exacte practis of all regular & Religious Dutys. knoweing them to be y^e declared wil of God in y^e paths of w^{ch} & by the serious pursuit of internall prayer, mortification, & abstraction, she perseverantly walk'd from vertue, to vertue. And as our spirituall Master. ven^{ble} Father Baker teacheth; seekeing God puerly in all she did, and suffered. she made great progress in contemplation & union with him whom her soule loved. (according to the spowse in y^e Canticles. I have found him whom my soule loveth, I have found him &,—wil not let him go &c: And againe My beloved is mine & I am His) and by this stricte uinon of her soule wth God she recevied y^t devine light to finde out, & faithfully trace, those secret, & hidden ways of perfection. to w^{ch} she afterwards arrived; & constantly adheared to him; al her life, as wel in darkenes, as in light, in desolation; as consolation.

mite our Mother-house of Cambray to fall into y^t poverty, by great losses in their temporalls w^{ch} having patiently suport'd some years, were at last constrained, either to disperse; or seeke to begine some other house. as may be seene in y^e History of this o^r Monastery. And our very R^d Fathers (who imployed al their care & industry to remedy this their destres espeacially y^e V R^d Father Placidus Gascoigne her uncle then presedent. sent R^d Mo: Clementia Cary &c: in y^e month of october. 1651 to paris. to see w^t means could be found to begine a Monastery heere. wherein a little time haveing some hopes. her superiours sent 5 other Religious y^e 6th of Feburary following viz: 1652. who are al named in y^e Remarkes of R^d Mo: Clem: this condition, was a sencible Trial to them al. to see themselves as it were againe, exposed to y^e incertitude, trouble & distractions of y^e world. Yet since it was y^e wil of their superiours they submitted themselves to it reposing their whol confidence in y^e protection, & providence of God. One of whom, was this our R^d Mother, who notwithstanding; had a more perticuler resentment in y^e parting from so excellent a model of perfection as y^e V R^d & worthy Abbesse her Aunt was. Under whos descreet conduct, she experienced great helpes of soule, & consolation of mind, receiving from her; those first impresions, of a true Religious, Benedictine spirite.

And this Ven^{ble} Abbesse on y^e other side, disengaged herselfe; for the Benefit of our Com^munity. of y^e asured suporte, both spirituall, & Temporal, she expected from this her Deare Niece. who besides w^t she had at her profession; had also an yearly pention of 30 pound English, w^{ch} was duly, & exactly payed, al her life. & many times wth over pluse, w^{ch} always came opertunly for our comunity, perticulerly in its begining days. But this our R^d Mother; forgetting al, that might drawe to her any esteeme. for 7 or 8 years, put herselfe to y^e humble, & low offices, of y^e house, with as much vigilance; as if they had ben y^e greatest. Tel by the death of R^d Mo: Elezabeth Brent; she could noe longer refuse to accept of M^{rs} of Novices; for w^{ch} she was in al respectes, very wel qualified. & performed it wth much advantage & benefit of soules. haveing had many under her prudent education; tel y^e 6th of August 1665.

When she was by the votes of the Community elected the very R^d Mo: Priourisse being y^e seconde of this our Monastery; & was confirmed to y^e great consolation of the Religious, tho: much to her owne affliction who thought herselfe wholly unworthy & unfit for it; always haveing a deepe insight, of y^e charge and obligations, y^t belongs to superiours. Yet seeing she could not avoide it; without, resisting y^e will of God; she humbly submitted to his soveragne decies.

For the divine & paternall wisdom, haveing choysen her, for one; y^t was to laye y^e spirituall, as well as temporall, foundation of this Monastery, inriched her with Talents, & parts proper, for such an office. she being of a very solide Judgment, of a sweet & humble disposition, & of an equale Temper, w^{ch} made her proceed with much prudence & descretion in al her actions, not doing things rachly. And she could well Temper, sweetnes, with Rigour; she was also a faithful practiser of Custodia Cordis w^{ch} ven^{ble} Father Baker so much recomends "That y^e many occations & variety of affaires, w^{ch} arrived did not cause her distraction, or take up her affection. And so settled in God, y^t noe crosse or affliction, did alter her peace, But that she could be strictly united to him. And all the time of her superiority w^{ch} was tel her (death being 25 years; wanting aboute two months) the Luster of her vertues, & perfections, did apeare, as will be seen; by these perticulers followeing. w^{ch} for brevity, we rather diminishe, then enlarge."

She was so exemplar, & exacte; even in y^e least things; as if she had never lost, her Novical fervour; being most perseverantly constant, to y^e Quire. both night, & day, nor exempted herselfe from mentall prayer; w^t Busines, or affaires so ever; or was knowne to be absent in any other conventuall act; except in case, of very great sicknes, & weeknes. So that it may truely be sayd of her; she never exacted that of another, y^t she did not first practise herselfe. But that w^{ch} was most admirable; she seemed to doe al her actions in y^e spirit of Prayer, mortification, & y^e pure love of God. she regarded the bell or other signe, for conventuall actes; as y^e very voyce of God calling her; at w^{ch} she layed al, aside. to hasten with Religious gravity to y^e place where most constantly she was y^e first; & if it hapned, y^t she was at y^e grat; when the Bell runge to Quire, prayer, or silence; she presently tooke leave of those she was with; w^{ch} she did, wth so much sweetnes & sivilty that they remained much edified. And she would say, "we could not be faithful to God. if we were slow in performing our Religious observances. Since they were, his knowne & declared wil to us; (who sayd he y^t loves me; wil fulfill my will; & keepe my comandements) w^{ch} to doe, we must resolve to forsake & deny o^r owne wils, & inclinations, a thousande times a day. And y^t in this did lie hid, great perfection & fidelity to God. But when she perseved any to place their greatest, perfection in y^e exteriour observances, with a great esteeme of themselves for their Regularity. And despised others y^t could not be so Regular, she sayd; we must remember these other words; of [St Paul in margin] our Bless'd saviour viz: y^t when we have don al that is required of us, we may truely judg, our selves unprofitable sarvants, haveing but done our duty & w^t he comanded us.

"And y^t others, in their Infirmitys, & disabilitys, by their patience, in suffering; & y^e humiliation it's to them, to see they cannot keepe all observances; may be more pleasing to God & wth their prayers, doe more good; then if they performed al y^e Regularitys of y^e house. for as St Paule also saith, if we give o^r Bodys to burne &c: and have not charity it profit'h nothing. Charity is patient, is benigne. charity envieth not, dealeth not perversly, is not puffed up, is not ambisious, &c. Thus she in althings, saught; to ground us in y^e true, & solid vertues, of humility, & charity; to w^{ch} herselfe; by prayer, was arrived in an eminent degree. For prayer, contemplation, & union with God, was in a maner, her whole life. And she was so inflamed with his love; y^t al her content & satisfaction was, in y^e intire conformity of her wil, to his holy will, & pleasure; w^{ch} made her also, often say: O how faine, would I have you purely seeke God; in al things. For that in God nothing was neglected & y^t he is to covetous, whom God doth not suffice. From this charity, proceeded the great desire she had; to promot his honnour, in y^e true good, & perfection of soules; without any regarde to her owne interste; prays, or disprays; in-deavoring by al possible means; together with y^e exacte, performance of our holy Rule & constutions; to imprinte in y^e harts, of her Religious Daughtes. the true spirite of o^r holy Father S^t Benedict. That is to say; y^t by an intire conversion of our maners; we may become pure interne, contemplative livers; aspiring after such union with God; as may be attained to in this life. gained by prayer, &c: w^{ch} al spirituall Authors recommends, & S^t Barnard calls; y^e Busines, of Busin-esses, & likewise Ven^{ble} Father Baker, teaches us, in his instructions, That by the dayly, & serious, prosecution of mentall prayer; mortification; & abstraction of life. we are to arrive to perfection. Being the spirit, and end; of our holy Rule & profession. And to this purpose, is this Legacy left us by y^e sayd ven^{ble} Father Augustin Baker. viz: Follow your call, thats all in all. that is, the spirit of y^r vocation. must be the life; of all your actions. interiour, & exteriour, And all your actions; interiour; & exteriour. must be to conserve & increase the life of your vocation. Thus joying the Interiour with y^e exteriour. Therefore it was, that she most Religiously procured that y^e very R^d Benedictin Fathers should always, continue to be; our Confessours, & Directors, as those from whom we first, received our spirituall education, and the aforesayd divine Instructions; according to these words of our constitutions, viz: having a great obligation to it, w^{ch} we & our successours; shal always be obliged to acknowledg. since it is that: y^t hath begotten us In Jesus christ by the Ghosple] judging w^{thout} disparagment to any others; that they could y^e Best, teach & Maintain, that spirite, & Rule; who were of y^e same order, & profession. For w^{ch}, itis incredible; how much she did, & suffered; on that account; as divers others. God being pleased to manifest his love to her, by giving her a lardge portion of y^e saints; in crosses, afflictions, & exercises. w^{ch} by her sweetnes, Resignation, & charity. she passed through, & overcame; with such tranquility of minde; y^t we may truely say, in her patience, she possesed her soule; humbly confieding, y^t the eternal providence, would turne al to his owne prays; & y^e good of Religion w^{ch} was all she sawght after. And for y^e constant maintaining this contemplative spirite, according to our constitu^s she would not receive any to Religion y^t was not proper for o^r retired & solitary life, thō: it were to conduce never so much to y^e temporalls. Once a Lady of Quallity pressed her very much to take one to be Religious with whom she gave us for a fou^d five hundred pounds english, & also great promisses & probabilitys of being an extraordinary Benefactris to us. But having made a sufficient triall of the person she recomended, & o^r v R^d Moth: Prioress, with her councill, & whole comunity. finding her not fitt, she was dismissed; wherupon y^e Lady. being much exasperated; rased great troubles, & stormes, against y^e house.

“Altho: o^r ven^{ble} Mo: Pri: used all reasonable means, to satisfie her; & freely returned her the five hundred pounds. And the same person going to another Monastery after a triall there, was likewise dismissed. yet they did not repay backe the sayd mony. w^{ch} shews how little our ven^{ble} Moth: regarded human gaine when it was prejudicial to y^e spiritual.

“So y^t to her we may aply this Parable of the Ghosple; of the wis'man. y^t Built his house upon a Rocke, y^e raine fell: the fluddes came; the winds blew; & beat against that house, & it fell not; because it was founded upon a Rocke. So she, being firmly fixed on God; was not shaken; by the fluds; & stormes, of persecutions. And thõ: she governed, more by example; then by words; more by sweetnes; then by Rigor. Nevertheles she did, when she saw it necessary, severly reprehend, correcte, & penance; w^{ch} yet she did; in so moving a maner y^t it cleerly apear'd, she rather sawght; to touch their harts, wth sorrow & repentance; then to exercise her authority over them. Also to those, she knewe did misinterpret her actions, or conduct; she carried herselfe towards them; wth so much goodnes, & true charity; y^t therby they came to see themselves, & acknowledg to her their falts; & she always rec^d them, wth a Motherly tendernes, & compassion; freely & readily, pardoning them.”

Her zeale for y^e wel performing y^e divine office both for y^e re-siting, & singing; made her spare noe cost, either for bookes or Masters, for the orgains &c: having furnished each Quire Religious wth a noted Missall, & Antiphonary. in print sett out By M^r Nivers & approved by the Archbishop of Paris.

Her humility was such y^t she would not be treated in any thinge better then y^e other Religious, she always lay in y^e coñmon dortor, & her Cell was noe Lardger then the rest, onely she had a little closet into w^{ch} she retired, & there (she entred, as it were into y^e secreet cabinet of her Celestiall Spows) wher she sweetly conversed, & consulted wth him; in al necessitys, & concerns; And by her faithful recourse to him. she obtained (as we have often experienced) more good for ye Coñmunity, then many others could have don; with al their solitude, and great exteriour doeings; as wel for the temporall; as spirituall; as wil be seen in the prosses of this discourse. And when any of the Religious came to speake to her, she presently opened the dore, & with much affability, received even the last of the house, thõ: she were writting or otherways imployed. For the Coñmunity had so great, and Just; an esteeme of her, that they had recourse to her as to a truely Deare, and spirituall Mother, in their difficultys and troubles of minde; as well as the affairs of the house; And she did rather chuse, to incomode herselfe; then contristate, any of her Religious Daughters by sending them away; And they ever found great help, and advancement, in the way of vertue & perfection by her holy advices; for she had aperticuler gift, in moveing, and exciting, harts to God; But if it happened that she could not then; attende to them, she would apoint a time, or come herselfe to them; w^{ch} she never failed to doe. Thus she accomodated herselfe, to y^e humers & dispossistions of many, to gaine al to God; & according to o^r holy Rule, suporting their Infirmary, both Spiritual & temporal.

She was also tenderly compassionat of the sicke & infirme shewing her care & charity towards them, in often vissiting, comforting & seeing y^t they wanted nothing nether sparing Doctor, surgean, or any thing y^t might contribut to their solace, eitheir of Body or minde : & in their extreemity, providing y^t in good time they should be assisted, & strenghtned, with al y^e Rites, of o^r holy Moth : y^e Church.

This o^r Ven^{ble} Mo : prioress making it her principal care, to seeke & regard God, above al Temporal things ; tooke this sentance for her Motto viz : first, seeke the kingdome of God. And his Justice ; and all things ells ; shall be given you besides ; and accordingly she found ; his mercifull Goodnes did help, and assist her ; For when she entred into her Office y^e Comomuity was indebted, to y^e sume of thirte hundred, & threescore, pistols ; being chifely contract'd, for y^e purchas of this house we live in, aux champt d'allouet ; w^{ch} was bowght, the yeare before ; by the Ven^{ble} Moth : Briget More her predecessour ; who had used al descret means, to avoide unnecessary expences. But being deprived of y^e helpe of o^r cheife Benefactors, the Messuers of Port Royall, y^t then lay under sever persecutions, & we living in this retired place, having few acquaintance wth y^e french ; o^r V R^d Mo : prioress found things goe so very hard ; y^e first foure years. That we were forced to sell, & pawne, o^r plate, & linning ; w^{ch} made us sometimes fear w^t others sayd of us. viz : y^t they beli'ved we should be dispersed at last ; Yet al this, did not diminsh y^e hope, & confidence she had in God ; But often incuradged & comforted us, saying ; when she saw y^e least hopes, according to human aparance ; then it was, she had y^e most assurance in him, who could doe al things ; & would not faile to helpe us ; if we were faithfull on our parts. As God of his Infinet goodnes did ; In the great charitys procured us by our worthy freind and Benefactor Mon^r de S^t Mart one of the Messuers of port Royall in absconditum. Another especiall effect of y^e divine providence was ; y^t God Almighty inspired her vertues Niece Moth : Maria Appleby at y^e Age of 14 to be Religious wth us. who had a portion of twenty five hundred pounds starling of w^{ch} her Grandfather S^r Thomas Gascoigne had y^e whole manegment, and tooke a perticuler care, to have her conducted hether to y^e helpe & suport, of our Monastery ; as wel for y^t present, as futuer time. Thō : he might have sent her to his owne Sister, the worthy Abbesse of Cambray. where he had also, a Daughter ; & several other Relations (who al expected, & invited her) And after her profese : y^e sayd S^r Thomas, Father to o^r V R^d Mo : payed y^t her portion intirely, at y^e times we desired it. For w^{ch} charity of his, our Coñmunity owes a great obligation to him ; as also S^r Thom : her Brother, who hath given us, Lardgs & considerable charitys.

By these means, & the help of some pious persons of y^e french ; perticulerly the Marquis L'omaria ; y^t made o^r case knowne to her Maiesty the Queene of france, who was pleased for y^e remainder of her life to Make us yearly pertakers of her Royall charitys (w^{ch} she sent by a Lady called Madame De Vize, who was her Maiestys perticuler favorite) o^r V R^d Mo : did intierly free y^e Monastery from all Debtes ; And moreover, made Great Reparations, in the Church, Quire, Cells, Lodging for the Confessor, & a litle Cloyster, to pase more conveniently to y^e Infirmary, & parloys; Likewise she Bought, the house, & garden, adioying to y^e Infirmary; w^{ch} cost eight hundred, & forty, pistols; as may be seen in y^e account Bookes. She also got our letters of establishment confirmed, by the parlement; and by her descreet Managment, conserved w^t she could; of y^e litle portions of y^e Religious & other monys to y^e sume of three thousand, & four hundred, pistols; w^{ch} she with y^e advice of her Councill, set out to Rent; towards y^e begining of a foundation, for o^r future subsistance; wherein appears the great obligation we owe to her; & Honored family; for y^e many Benefits, rece^d from them. But more perticularly to herselfe; for y^e great Blessings of Almighty God w^{ch} she drewe upon this Comunity both spirituall, & Temporall, by her faithfull adhearing to him.

And her confidence in y^e divine providence made her take this other Motto; viz: It is good for me to adhear to God: And put my hope in him. And how acceptable this was, to his soveragne goodnes; he was pleased to manifest upon severall occations. Some of w^{ch} we shall heer mention. One time discoursing very seriously with R^d Mo: Clementia of the concerns of the Community. & perticularly about Byeing y^e house adioying to our Infirmary. of w^{ch} we had great need, & haveing some prospect to procure y^e sume required excepting one hundred pistols, at lenth, they sayd, one to the other, Let us not be two solisitous, God will provide. And y^e next day, there came an unknowne Benefactor, & brought Just y^t sume, to their great ioy. & confirmation of their dependance upon y^e divine providence; Altho: at y^t time they would not sell us y^e house.

She was generally so charitable to the poore y^t Tho: sometimes we had not more, then 20 sous in mony; yet she would freely give all, or part, of it. to those she saw in great necessity. humbly confiding y^t God would help us in ours. And one time, there came a very poore creature in great destresse, to Bege an allmes; and R^d Mo: Clementia who was then Celleraire, & of y^e same compassionat inclination; went to acquaint o^r V R^d Mo: Pri: of it, & desired her leave, to give him a charity telling her with all. that she had but 30 sous;—she kept to paye a workeman. the w^{ch} our V R^d Mo: freely gave her leave to give. And soone after y^e Cellerares Bell runge, & R^d Mo: Cle^m: thinkeing it to be y^e workeman went to see; & found it was one, y^t had brought us 30 livers. from an unknowne person.

Yet some Looked upon this her confidence in God; & his divine Providence, as presumption & rachnes. Once a person of Quality & a friend of ours. hearing of the extreeme poverty of our house & reported as ready to breake up & disperse. in great trouble, came & called for R^d Moth. Clementia, & by her reprehended us severly, for our Rachnes. saying we aught not to Tempt God, & expecte that he should miraculously provide y^t w^{ch} by a descreete prudence, we might helpe our selves in. If we would but doe as others doe (viz: take pensioners &c:) she answered pardon us S^r, if we followe not y^r advice. Altho: it's true, we are in alow condition. yet we have free accesse to y^e unexhaustable purse of Gods divine providence w^{ch} hath never yet failed us. And soone after, he heard Almighty God had provided for us at y^t time, in a very extraordinary maner. At w^{ch} he was so touched, y^t he came with al speede, to aske pardon. assuring us, That from thenceforward, he would never measure y^e divine providence with y^e ell of human prudence, and therefore exhorted us, to persever in this o^r holy Resolution.

But As all, the Glory of the Kings Daughter is within. so y^t, w^{ch} gives us a much higher Idea of this puer & holy soule. Is her comportment in Interiour obscuritys & derelictions. For it pleased her heavenly spowse, to send her two very longe & bitter desolations, w^{ch} lasted each time three years. y^e first was, about y^e 12th yeare of her superiority, the second was, three years before her death. In both, w^{ch} times, she leaft us admirable examples of patience, resignation, & conformity of wil to y^t of Gods with an intire abandonment of herselfe to his divine Justice, & adorable Judgments. It was heere, y^t he was pleased to prove her as gould in y^e furnace for to be the more strictly united to her, in y^e most intim part of her soule. where he takes his delights to remaine; whilst, at y^e same time he permitted y^e divell, so to paint her fancy & imagination with y^e Images of sinnes. even frō: y^e most Innocent, to the most holiest of her actions. That allthō: she had rather have suffered a thousand deaths, then wittingly commite y^e Least veniall sinne. yet in this estate, she did not onely finde no gust or satisfaction in prayer or other spirituall exercises. But allso it now seemed to her, she did nothing therein; nor in all her other actions, but sinne, & offend her beloved Jesus. And was she thought, become so displeasing in his eyes. That he had wholly lefte & forsaken her, so that y^e great greife, & Anguish she was in, for feare she should be unfaithfull or disloyall to him perced her to y^e hart; & consumed y^e marrow of her Boons, w^{ch} made her become a very Annotomy.

Notwithstanding it was cleere; & evident to all those, y^t knew y^e state of her soule. That this was a supernaturall exercise of God in her, & a Marterdume of love. And y^t she was thereby, much more firmly fixed and united to him by pure love, & naked faith in her superiour will, she not omitting any of her interiour, or exteriour, exercises or Religious dutys, nor seased to Adore the secreet judgments & designs of God upon soules sacrificeing to him, her Dearest Isaac. & to confesse y^t he was full of mercy how rigorously soever he was pleased to chastise her. she had sometimes recourse to her confes: & those y^t understoode her case, not with anxciou impetuossity to receive from them, sencible comfort, or consolation. But by their assistance y^e better to knowe & accomplish y^e divine will & faithfully to walke in the ways of perfection, in these obscuritys. And she exposed to them simply & plainely her difficultys, & followed their advices y^e most exactly that was possible notwithstanding all y^e repugnance w^{ch} her soule felt in this estate. And God who had prepared her before, by an estate of union, & contemplation to this of darknes & dereliction, prepared her allso, by this exercise to receive such an abundant graces w^{ch} afterwards did replenishe her soule as an aprobatation of her sollid love & sufferance for him. And as it were an assured testimony & foretast of her eternall happines. For when she came out of this first three years, of Interiour probation, she seemed to be extraordinarily inlightened by almighty God & so burning with his love, y^t her words were as fire coles, in y^e harts of her Religious; powerfully exciting them, to y^e faithful accomplishment of al their interiour, & exteriour dutys, & obligations.

The last three years we have good reason both to hope, & believe; served for the greatest part of her purgatory & ended with her life, in this vaile of miserry and y^e Begininge of A Blessed one, in y^e cleere vission of her celestially spowse; after whom she thirsted, as y^e thirsty hart; doth after y^e fountaine of fresh waters. he being y^e God of her hart, & portion for ever. And if we should say al we knew of this supernaturall, & intellectuall operation of God in her soule. perhaps some might thinke we tooke it out of Armelle or St Catherine of Boulogne, there being so great resemblance in these their Interiour probations. But we have made this relatiō; with al possible simpliscity, & truth; And can say, That this estate of paine & obscurity was by two; very spiritual & experienced persons. Esteemed to be in her, a supernatural worke of God. One was a Doctor of Divinity (to whom she had recourse for advice in these her difficultys about two years before her death) gave a cleere Testimony of it, under his hand in french. & is here extant. wth A cōpye in English w^{ch} is to be seen at y^e end of this relation. And in this time one of y^e Religious whom she reposed much confidence in these her troubles of mind; speaking to her a lone,—could not but take notis with astonishment; how extreemly she was waisted & consumed. Wherupon. o^r V R^d Moth: made her this answer. I cannot but have often in my memory these verses of our ven^{ble} Father Baker. Not in the Body that waisteh, & to corruption Hasteh. But in the soule y^t ever Lasteth my true happines consisteth. And that my hart recreat^h. w^{ch} shewed how litle concerne she had for the Body & that al her care was, that her soule which was created to live eternally might be found pleasing in the eyes of God.

Yet in the Midest of her greatest Interiour Anguishes & Dollours she ever retained such a sweetnes and tranquility in her countance convesation and affairs. That Generally (except two of y^e Religious in whom she had a perticuler confidence & recourse somtimes to in her troubles) did believe she was perfectly well. & would say to those two, suerly V R^d Mo: Pri: is quit wel of her difficultys; & indeed her exteriour comportment & aspect was so humble, pleasing & venerable. y^t all that saw her, was more then ordinarily edified & moved to devotion. And severall of y^e Religious have sayd, y^t sometimes it seemed to them, they perseved a certaine Luster or Clarity in her countenance w^{ch} they knewe not how to exprese. And many of our Benefactors & Acquaintance, had such a singuler veneration for her. That they generally called her a sainte. two perticuler persons, we cannot but heere mention.

One time A Lady entreing into the Monastery & as our venerable Mother Pri: aproched, the Lady sudanly started backe. At w^{ch} Mo: Agnes of y^e Infant Jesus, who was her interpreter (& succeeded her in ye office of Pri:) sayd. Madame, this is our very R^d Mo: superiour, ye Lady answered. I knowe it, I have seen many superiours, but I never found myselfe ceased with such respect & Reverance towards any; certainly there is something in her more then ordinary. I believe you are happie for that she is very holy.

There was also another; who from ye first time she had a sight of this our very R^d Mo: Pri: was so touched, with her countenance. That therupon, she caused her picture to be drawne. w^{ch} she keepes still, as a Relique. And retained so singuler devotion towards her. y^t the same person came evry newyears day as long as o^r R^d Moth: lived to obtaine her Blessing, & would never be content tel she had constraed her to give it. & hath often assured us, both then, & since. That herselfe & Family did finde A sensible effect of it. And Althõ: she could not speake french, yet they; & severall others declared, y^t the onely sight of her did appease & quiet their minds in their greatest troubles.

But The more to compleat this o^r V R^d Mothers spiritual Marterdom. Almighty God joynd to ye Last 3 years of her Interiour sufferance very great sicknesses & infirmitys. as freequent vomiting, coughs. spiting of blood, & fevers. So y^t a yeare before her death, she lived a continual dieing life. w^{ch} notwithstanding, she suported with such peace, & cheerfulness y^t she many times comforted her Religious (who were in great sorrow & affliction feering to be deprived of this their truly Deare & tender Mother) saying to them. That it was litle or nothing she suffer'd & y^t it would pass. And she was noe sooner as one may say, out of extreemity; but she put herselfe againe, to conventual observances. Yet these Infirmitys increcing upon her. The Religious importuned her with great earnestnes to remove from her cell to ye Infirmary, wher she remained 3 months. And desiring to conserve her, as long as was possible, in ye meane time, prepared a chamber y^t she might have ye comodity of fier &c; whilst she was in ye Infirmary she was extraordinarily il. Tho: afterwards she grew beter againe, to o^r great consolation. And removed to ye chamber then ready. But she had not ben there, pased fore days. when it pleased God to change this our consolation into great greife. For she fel into her Last sicknes on ye eight of May. Being ye Aparition of saint Michael, in the morning about 5, or 6 of the cloke seased, with afever; yet makeing nothing of it, assisted as she used to doe in the Quire at prime, mental prayer, and the first conventual Masse, at w^{ch} she comunicated. We not discerning any thing of this, her great indisposistion. Masse ended, she could noe longer conseale from us her extreeme illnes. For her fever was much increased. Wherupon the Doctor of ye house, was immediatly sent for. (whom she prefered before consults, having tried them without any effect.) he ordained severall things w^{ch} were exactly aplied, and came twice a day to see her. Her sicknes lasted onely ten days. And as she had always regarded ye honor of God & true good of soules, with an intire, abandonment to the divine conduct & providence. So his infinet goodnes, was pleased to shew his paternal care of her, & her concerns. Giving her the comfort, & satisfaction to see, she left the community in great peace, & union. And free from all Debtes. For in y^s time of her sicknes he sent her an unexpected charity of a hundred pistoles y^e onely sume she owed for provissions &c: Thus her Beloved spows acomplished her desires, & with al y^t, the time drew neer in w^{ch} he would call her to himselfe for her fever increasing she became dayly more weake, & spent. Yet she suffered all with an unalterable patience. Being continually in prayer & her minde fixed in God. She did not desire anything, nor refused any thing. But left herselfe to y^e care of those about her, & when they asked how she liked w^t was done, she, answer'd, she regarded al, as comeing from y^e hand of God. Once being asked how it was then; conc'ring her interiour diffi-cultys. She sayd they continued y^e same, But y^t she indeavored y^e best she could do adhear to God by faith & put her trust, & confidence in him. And sometime after this, she told me, she was very quiet & free from those her troubles, w^{ch} was as I remember. about two days, before she lost y^e use of her sences.

In this sicknes, she most devoutly com̃municated & also received her viaticome wth y^e last sacraments & absolution. her Agony was very strong & lasted neer 24 howres, after w^{ch} she expired. leaving this exile to goe to Inioy God. whom we have just reason to believe. she now possesseth, in y^e company of y^e Blessed having in this life passed through many tribulations. Multæ Tribulationes Justorum: et De omnibus his, liberabit eos Dominus. She departed y^s life in y^e office of priourese, having ben continued therein by Quadrianiall Elections of y^e com̃unity from y^e 6 of Aug: 1665 to y^s present day of her Decease y^e 17 of May 1690 the 67 of her age & 51 of holy profession amidst y^e prayers & tears of her desolate children in this o^r Monastery of y^e english Benedicⁿ Nunns of our Bls: Lady of good hope au champt d'Alloüette in Paris. Yet least through human frailty any thing should hinder her speedy arivall to eternall repose. Let us as our Duty & obligation to her requires. Resite y^e deprofoundis this being her Anniversary-day. Requiescat in pace. Amen.

XIII. 1690. Some Briefe Remarkes of o^r Religious Sister Scholastica Hodson Lay sister departed y^s life y^e 31 of May 1690.

Sister Scholastica Hodson of Jesus Maria was Borne in the Parish of Layland, in Lancastershier in England of vertous catholike & englishe parent (she was eldest sister to the afore sayd sister Gartrude Hodson) and forsakeing the vanities of the world went first over to the English Benedictine Dames of our Blessed Lady of consolation at Cambray o^r Mother house where she espoused herselfe to God by the holy voues of Religion the 24 of February 1642 the V R^d Father Clement Rayner Being then Presedent of the Englishe Benedictin congregation. And y^e R^d Mother Christina Brent Abbesse of the sayd Monastery.

This o^r Religious sister made so great progres & advancement in all vertue, & perfection y^t 9 yeeares after her Profession her superiours judged her fit to be sent with the R^d Mothers, Mother Clementia & Moth: Maria Carys, who were the first that by order of holy obedience came to begine this our Monastery of o^r Blessed Lady of Good hope in Paris (about al Saints in the yeare 1651). And she being very descreet & prudent, was a great comfort & helpe to our R^d Deare Mother Clementia who was very sickly; by most carefully attending & continually assisting her in their journey & lodgings procuring for her y^e best accomodations & solaces she could wthout any Regard to her owne sufferances & inconveniences w^{ch} are incident to happen in such occations. Thõ: she also was very tender & infirme, she was likewise, so exacte, & exemplar in her Religious dutys y^t it caused great edification to al y^t saw her. And being of an Interne & retired spirite, al y^e time she could by her vigilycy & care draw from her employments, she spent in Prayer, & recolection at y^e foot of y^e Alter. by w^{ch} she atained to so good a habit of recolection, y^t one may say, she performed al her obedences as it were in y^e Presence of God doeing al things with much peace & serenity of minde.

She was also, very considerat, compassionat, & carefull of y^e sicke & Infirme, not only when she assisted in y^e Infirmary, but in other offices &c: And when she did actually assist there both y^e sicke & dieing found much comfort & solace, as wel in mind as body by her sweet & humble carage towards them. And this in her, with her other vertous & Religious comportment was very resplendent & remarkable not onely to her companions y^e lay sisters but also to the Quir Relig: to whom she caried herselfe with so much respect & reverence even to the young'st, y^t it caused them to have a particuler regard & love to her, & al y^e Religious were extreemly animated & encouraged by her example. Her patience was admirable in bearing with y^e humers & rebukes of her sisters, w^{ch} she received as sent from God for her greater profit & humiliation & indeed it was y^e divine pleasure that this his sarvant should passe through many great exercises, both Interiour and exterior in w^{ch} she most faithfully adhered to God.

Our ven^{ble} Mother Pri: Mo: Justina Gascoigne, had a very great esteeme of this o^r Religious Sister, & in her last sicknes they had a long & serious discourse toge[ther] in w^{ch} our ven^{ble} Moth: tould her it would not be long before she should follow her, & acordingly it happened; for this o^r Deare sister, fell sicke seven days after y^e decease of o^r sayd ven^{ble} Moth: Pri: of whom she had a high esteeme, & veneration; & was observed to pray one time longer then ordinary at her grave, from whence she came wth a certaine transport, & also a fever; & she being lead to y^e Infirmary; her sicknes continued y^e space of seven days in al w^{ch} time, she was very cheeful & in great peace, y^t contrary to her usuall dispossession not aprehensive of death.

And one of y^e Religious goeing to see her, not Imageing she was so neer her death; sayd to her, sister scholastica, are you contented to goe see o^r V R^d & Most Deare, Mother Prioress, she answered; yes wth al my hart, then y^e other sayd againe, pray when you doe, desire her to pray for us al, but particulerly for me her poore child who have most need of her prayers, to w^{ch} she answered smiling she knoweth best, who hath most need; her sicknes much increasing she received with great devotion al the holy sacraments of y^e church, her Agony lasted neer 20 hours and she happily departed this life y^e 15th day after our ven^{ble} Mother Pri: in the same month, the same day of y^e weeke; at the same hour of the day, & lastly the same year, being 1690 the 31 of May (and the 68 of her age & 48 of her Profession) in this o^r Monastery of o^r Blessed of good hope aux Champt D'Allouet in Paris. Yet least through human frailty there should remaine any spots or imperfections to be purified in the other Life; lett us asist her with our prayers, that she May with the more speede come to that Filicity which lasteth for ever resiting for her the deprofoundis this being her Anniversay day. Requiescat in Pace. Amen.

XIV. 1692. Some Briefe Remarkes of our Ven^{ble} Mother, Mo: Briget More, who was the first Prioress of this o^r Monastery & Deceased this life the 12 of Otober the yeare 1692.

The ven^{ble} Mother, Mo: Briget More, of St Peter & St Paule was Borne In London In England of Hon^{ed} and Ronow^{ed} Parents, who suffered much with great constancy for the catholike faith. her Father was the fourth liniall decent from y^e Noble Family of the Illustrious Marter Sr Thomas More Lord High Chancellor of England. her Mother was Daughter to Sr Edward Gage of thurl, and her Grand Mother on her Mothers side, was the Right Honorable Lady Penellipy Savage Daughter to y^e Earle of Rivers, & Marring Sr Edward, was called y^e Lady Penellipy Gage. her Mother died yong, & left her father one son, & two Daughters, who for his tendernes to them, would not Marry againe. his eldest Daughter was Dame Gartrude More, Religious at Cambray, and compossed those Pious devotions called the confessions of a loveing soule. & died in opinion of santity, w^{ch} made her confessour Ven^{ble} Father Baker of happy Memory to writt her life. This our R^d Mother was endowed with great advantages, both of Grace, and Nature w^{ch} made her much esteemed by all. & more Dearer to her Father, who had a great resentment to part with her. But she seeing her sister take heaven; & leave the world to her; was resolved to follow as soon as possible. Thõ: it pleased God by severall obsticules & crosses to prove her true & reall vocation, some of w^{ch} we shal heere mention viz:

Her Father did fully designe she should Marry & settle in the world to the end he might live & dye with her she being the greatest comfort he had, & on the other side she earnestly desired to espowse herselfe intirely to God. And that w^{ch} increased her trouble was, how to propose it to her Father. Therefore made use of her confessour & other powerfull friends to prepare & move him to it, & he being a very vertous person, was in conclusion resigned to give her to God: & deprive himselfe of that consolation. on condition she should stay till her Brother was Maryed w^{ch} he procured with al speed for her content & satisfaction.

But heere she mett with A new difficulty. For on her Brothers wedding day all things being prepared & Just in the chapple to be Married, he sliped away to this his D^r sister (who was retired in the towne not to apeare at the wedding) & tould her that he would goe

& be a Monke. w^{ch} put her into such a fright the she thought she was then wholly undone, But most seriously recommend her selfe, & him to Almighty God sheeding many tears Beged & prayed him to returne to his Bride. At last wth much difficulty prevailed. & they Married, she the next Morning tooke her Journy. Generously quitting all the vaine & faiding pleasurs of the world the 19th of her age. And went to the Monastery of the English Benedictine Dames of our Lady of consolation at Cambray o^r Mother house.

This so good a call to Religion, was seconded with her zealous & exacte performance of all her Noviciall dutys, w^{ch} being finished to her owne great comfort & the honor of God, she consecrated herselfe to him by the holy voues of Religion the 24 of September 1630. Thus having attained to that w^{ch} she had so much desired, she set herselfe assidiously to the practis of al vertues & the gaining perfection. & how great a profitience she made towards it, we may Judge, in that some years after, she was chosen for a person capable to assiste the Lady Abbesse Gascoigne, in the reformation of the Religious Dames of St Lazars at Cambray. a worke enioyned By his grace the Lord Arch-bishoppe Vanderburg of Pious Memory. w^{ch} the sayd Lady Abbesse discharged to the spirituall profet of those Religious reducing them to the happy estate of inclosure with the stricte observance of our holy Rule & al Regular discipline &c.

The Next undertaking for the divine servis was, of more difficulty, & longer continuance, for in the yeare 1652 the R^d Lord Abbot Gascoigne then Presedent of the English Benedictin congregation. & Superiour of our Mother house of Cambray, ordained that this o^r R^d D^r Mother, with three other Religious viz: R^d Mother Elezabeth Brent, R^d Mother Justina Gascoigne & A lay sister called sister Gartrude Hodson (sister to sister scholastia) should forthwith repaire to Paris to assist R^d Mother Clementia Cary in the Beginning of this our Monastery of o^r Blessed Lady of Good hope in Paris. w^{ch} accordingly they did. And arrived heere the 6th of February in the above sayd year. & the 20 of the same month was, by the consent of the rest made superiour. so that we may say she was the fundamentall stone of our litle Edifice.

Thõ: this our V R^d Mother had some difficulty to accept of that charge, as wel out of her humility, as also, in regard of o^r extreeme poverty & those hard & troublesome times. by reason of the sivill warres when al was in a strange consternation & Paris, being chi'fely ingaged therin. w^{ch} made the most Judicious Persons, looke upon it, not onely as indiscretion, but even an impossible thing to thinke of Establishe a new beginning Monastery heere at that time; especially, we having noe Prospect of any othere foundation then the pure dependance of the divine Prouidence of God.

Yet her firme Confidence in his Infinet goodnes, & her zeale for the promoting Religion. made her with a generous mind surmont the many difficulties that dayly happened encouraging others to doe the same, & tooke such prudent measures as procured for us reasonable suplys of al our necessarys, besides the Legacy left us of two hundred pounds English by this our Ven^{ble} Mothers two Newphys,

M^r Crissacre, & M^r William Mores. & God so Blessed her indeavours, that we obtained from his christian Maiesty Lewis the 14 our first letters of establishment.

She was also a perfect Practiser of Regular observances, following the Rule as her Mistres, prefering nothing before the worke of God viz: that is the office of the Quire, for w^{ch} she had a perticuler zeale, as likewise to silence, Prayer, & recolection; confirming by her owne example, what she taught in words; being a Modell of Regular discipline. & suported her interiour, & exteriour crosses, & afflictions, w^{ch} it pleased Almighty God to send her with much resignation & conformity to his holy will.

Her humility likewise was very remarkable. For Altho: she was Prioress she did not disdaine to draw water, dige & weed in the garding & other inferior workes & her descreet, Regular & Religious government made the comunity have such an esteeme of her that they continued her in the office of the V R^d Mother Prioress by Quadriennial Elections 12 years besides the yeare & halfe, she underwent that charge in our unsettlements. Thus haveing aquited herselfe therin so long. she then obtained the most desirable happines in this life w^{ch} is, being freed from those cares &c: for to inioy God, in solitude & retirement the 6th of August 1665, when the R^d Mother Justina Gascoigne was elected prioress. who had a very tender affectionat respecte for this o^r Ven^{ble} Mother, & therefore made her sub-prioress Mistris of Novices, Juniors, & continued her many years in the Councill. & in the time she was Mistres of the Novices one of her Novices being in very great Interiour difficulty, & trouble, contrary to y^t she used to be, found an especiall effect of this our R^d Mothers good advice, who sayd to the Novice amongst other things, I thought your consolation was to great, to last long. then sending her about some affairs—as this our D^r Mother went away, the Novi: who was afterwards professed, goeing out of the cell, fell downe, with trouble; but getting up againe upon her knees, it seem'd to her, her Mistres R^d Mo Bri: Lookeing backe put her hand on her head. & she was so freed from that trouble, that she never since hath ben in that difficulty. this is what the sayd Religious desired me as I was writting to set downe w^{ch} I have done, as she expresse it.

[In margin.—We did not intend to write Miracles. but onely shewe the good example & solide vertues of our ven^{ble} Beginners wth y^e divine providence and conduct of Almig: God towards them & this litle Commūnit. but by importunity of Moth: Wenefride Curtis who was y^e Novis here mentioned & to whom it hapned. made us put in the say'd passage.]

Thus our ven^{ble} Mother being to her greatest age perseverantly very exact & zealous in Regular observances, & other holy & Religious exercises. soon after the decease of V R^d Mother Prioress M^o Justina Gascoigne it pleased God to ioyne to her age greater Infirmitys y^t let us see we should not also. long inioy this our ven^{ble} Mother. Thõ: she aspired after nothing more then to posses her celestially spowse in Sion. And survived v. R^d Moth: Justina Pri: two years & five Months.

For at y^e first vespers of y^e Assomption of o^r Blessed Lady she was seassed with an unusial ilnes. yet staid till y^e end of the office and then, was conducted to the Infirmary: wher she remained about 2 months. her sicknes increasing with a fever, & flux; w^{ch} was extreemly painfull. Thõ: she suffered all, wth great cheerfullnes, & exemplar Patience. & had al y^e remedys, y^e Doctors Judged most proper to helpe her. But nothing availed. she was much in prayer, & tooke great satisfaction to see others pray by her. & with extraordinary devotion received not onely all the Rits of the holy church. but also, in y^t time of her sicknes often cõmunicated. & had several times, y^e generall absolution. she humbly asked pardon of y^e Religious for any disedification she had given, having her perfecte sences to her Last. & frequently resited these verses. "Domine ante te, omne desiderium meum; et gemitus meus, a te non est absconditus." And this other. "In te Domine spiravi: not confunder in æternum." She happily departed this life, leaving this vaile of Missery, to enter into the ioyes of the Blessed. as we have good reason to hope. the 12 of October y^e yeare 1692. in the 83 of her age, & 62 of her holy Profession, in our Monastery of our Blessed Lady of good hope aux Champt DAllouet in Paris. Yet least through human frailty any thing should hinder her more speedy arrivall to y^e eternall fruition of God. Let us according to our obligation to her, offer up o^r prayers. resiting the deprofoundis. this being her Anniversary day. This our ven^{ble} Mother died the Last of all that holy Company. w^{ch} came from our Mother house, of Cambray. Requiescat in Pace. Amen.

XV. 1695. Some Briefe Remarques of o^r very Religious Sister, Str Placida Coesneau departed this life the 4th of February 1695.

The very Religious Sister Placida Coesneau of All Saintes, was Born in London, in England. her Father was M^r Stephen Coesneau a french man & a very devout catholike, and her Mother was M^{rs} Margaret Shirburne English & of a good catho: family; & neerly related to y^e V R^d Father Joseph Shirburn then Presedent Generall of the English Benedictin congregation, who knoweing of the desire this his Relation had, to be Religious. acquainted o^r Ven^{ble} Mo: Pri: Mo: Justina Gascoigne with it. saying she was then at the felles de St Marys at Somurs, but had no minde to be with y^e french; & therefore he desired to knowe. if we would admite of her. y^e w^{ch} being wel liked of, she came to us about the sixtinth of her age. & entred into her triall, & Novishpe shewing therein great fervour, & perseverance, in her desire; & was very puntuall & exact, in all things. & performed her obediences, with much humility & submision. so y^t the year of Novishpe ended. she made her holy Profession upon y^e 14th of October 1683 And Althõ: she continued very diligent, in keeping conventuall actes & Regular obsevances. yet 2 or 3 years after her profession being of an lively active nature & having good parts & capacitys for externall doeings, was caried more to extrovertions then recoletion.

grace to enter into herselfe & so powerfully drew her to him by prayer of actes & asperations, y^t in a short time. she made such good progresse therein as may be seen, by her collections, & y^e devotions, of her owne compassing, wherein she laments her neglect of persueing mortification & dieing to nature (without w^{ch}, ther is no profiting in a spirituall course) And therefore she set herselfe more seriously to y^e practis of an internal life, by abstraction, & disingagment of her affections. But having a weaknes in her breast, & much inclined to a consumption. about two years before her death she had a continuall cough w^{ch} brought her to a spitting of Bloode, & not wthstanding several remedys were used yet it increased wth a lingaring fever; w^{ch} she sufred wth great courage. But on y^e conversion of S^t Paule; she was sudenly taken with a vomiting of Bloode; wherupon [or V. R^d Mo: Pri: viz: Mo: Agnes Temple] ordained her to keepe y^e Infirmary, & y^e Doctor to be sent for; w^{ch} accordingly was don, & his remedy carefully observed: But letle hopes of recovery seeing she frequently vomited in y^e same maner; one time finding herselfe much tired, & spent, desiring to sleepe she sayd; I am so tired I cannot pray as I would: But give me my crucifix; give me my belov'd; & they giving it to her; she layed it on her brest wth her arms across, & then sayd I shal now, goe to reposs; her sicknes lasted 10 days in w^{ch} time, she seemed to be very quiet, & cheerful; she devoutly rece^d y^e holy viaticome & extremuntion; fearing she might goe in one of those vomiting fits, as she did; changing this life for a better, to live eternally wth al the saintes; as we have good reason to hope; y^e 4th of Feb: 1695 in y^e 29 of her age. & 12th of her holy profes: But to y^e end she may the sooner Arrive to y^t Bl: vission, Let us resit for her, y^e deprofundis this being her Anniuersary day. Requiescat in Pace; Amen.

XVI. 1699. Some Briefe Remarkes of y^e R^d Mother Clare Newport departed this life the sixth of January. 1696.

The R^d Mother Clare Newport of or Bl: Lady, & S^t John Evangelist. was borne in hartfortshire in England of English, & Catho: parents; her Father was M^r John Newport, & her Mother Mrs Mary Silliard both of very good familys & estates; she was y^e yongest of 19 children y^t lived to be men & women, and were al settled in y^e world, to w^{ch} she also found herselfe inclined. But coming to London to her sister Allonson whose first husbands Mother, being M^{rs} Watson (wth whom, Ven^{ble} Father Baker of happy memory died) the sayd M^{rs} Watson speaking to her of Fath: Baker, shewed her his Booke D.; & she by reading it, was so much touched y^t in a litle time after, she resolved to be Religious in the Monastery where y^e sayd Ven^{ble} Fathers Bookes & Instructions were kept & practised w^{ch} she knew was then, only at cambray or here; wherfore in y^e 22 of her age desiring to be with us; she came to or Monas: & wth great fervour, perseverance, & exactnes, she accomplished y^e time of her triall & Novishipe and made her holy Profession upon the feast of our Blessed Ladys Assumption y^e year of our Lord 1665.

This Religious Mother was very zealous in y^e performance of the divine office, coming constantly to the Quire night, & day, rarly resting a night from Matins being very punctual also at other continual acts, & keeping of all good order.

She seriously applied herself to recollection, & mental prayer, according to the Instructions of the above said divine Author; & thereby made such advancement of soul in the love of God, & perfection; the venerable Mother: Justina Gascoigne, made her councillor, & afterwards subprioress, & she was above 20 years the librarian in which she took great care, & pains, to preserve all the Books, but particularly those precious treasures, of our house, venerable Father: Bakers Manuscripts; & her sister Allonson at her death having given her 2 hundred pistols; she obtained of our venerable Mother: Prioress & the community a Requiem Mass every year, to be said for the repose of the soul of her said sister, & a new library for the better conserving the afore said Treasures, likewise her portion being 3 hundred pound English came very opportunely to help us to buy this house aux champs D'Alouett, without which we knew not how to do it, & was paid before her Profession.

This our Religious Mother: was all her life, much troubled with scruples, which caused in her great disquiet of conscience; & from this ground did arise, many sensible mortifications to her nature, which she supported with an invincible courage; though sometimes she was so overwhelmed with her sad state, that it seemed all hope of comfort was wholly blocked up for her; either from God, or men. And it pleased his divine Majesty, for her greater purification to exercise her with many interior troubles, & temptations; two years before her death she being more then ever oppressed with an extreme anguish of mind—finding no light, nor solace: from any person, she could think of, she found herself so intirely destitute of all human assistance, the she knew not whom to have recourse. But our Merciful Lord did not abandon her in this her extreme affliction, for as she was very pensive, & thoughtful, what course to take, it pleased God to press her so strongly that she cried out with St. Paule Lord what wilt thou have me to do, & presently she felt herself comforted, believing she should receive solace & satisfaction by a servant of God.

And at the instant (the Reverend Mother: Prioress Mother: Agnes Temple, Our Venerable Mother: Justina Gas: being dead) entered into her cell, & speaking to her of her suffering condition, told her, she could not think of any person in the world the she was more capable to help & comfort her then the Reverend Father Corker, to which she answered that is the man, the she is the man; but how can it be; since there is no possibility of having him to come into these parts, to which the Reverend Mother: Prioress: (who gives the Relation of these her troubles) answered, nothing is impossible to God, therefore be of good comfort, I trust in Jesus, you will have the she satisfaction, & indeed it was not long before the sweet Providence of Almighty God, did so dispose the she, that the Reverend Father, contrary to all expectation came to this Monastery & by his good counsellors & rules which he gave her she was so settled in peace & quiet of conscience the she never to her death ever fell into the like disquiet but persevered faithful in the she practice of his advices. She was much subject to Agues, & other indispositions w^{ch} her scrupulosity & fervour, caused her many times to hid. her Last sicknes was a feavour & dropsy. that kept her in y^e infirmiry about five weekes. She had al the remedies the Doctor ordained for her recovery. But she being spent & wasted nothing availed, thõ: she suffered it very quietly being free from her former fears & troubles, & offered herselfe up with great conformity to the holy wil & pleasure of God both for this present Life, & that to come; she very devoutly received al the holy sacraments of y^e church 3 days before her death. & had her perfect sences to the last moment; for her confessour R^d Father James Nelson came from St Edmonds to see her askeing her how she did, & if she had anything more to say to him, this Religious Moth: answered—she was much in y^e same maner & desired him to pray by her, & he had no sooner taken up y^e Rituall to say some pray'rs over her but she turning her head a litle aside peaciably passed out of this life, he having iust time to give her y^e last absolution, And happily departed to goe to repose in God; as we have good reason to hope—on y^e day of y^e Epiphany of o^r Blessed Lord, about 9 of y^e cloke in the morning y^e 6 of January. 1696 the 55 of her age & 31 of her holy Profession in this our Monastery of our Bs: Lady of good hope aux Champt D'Allouet in Paris.

And y^t she may the more speedily Arrive to the company of y^e Blessed; Let us say for her y^e deprofoundis. This being her Anniversary day. Requiescat in Pace. Amen.

XVII. 1699. Some Briefe Remarkes of y^e Religious Sister Benedicta Pease, Lay Sister departed this life y^e 5th of March 1699.

Sister Benedicta Pease of St Amando Martier whose sacred Reliques we have in this o^r Monastery was Borne in Yorkshire in England of English Parents. her Father was william Pease & her Mother Joane chillet who having ben both Prodistant were by the mercy of Almighty God reconciled & made true members of our holy Mother y^e catho: church & brough up their children also in y^e way of salvation*: this their daughter, always lived in catho: houses; And some years before her coming hether, with y^e widdow cotton with whom v R^d Father corker then also lived, & he knowing she had a desire to be Religious propossed her coming to us; w^{ch} being liked of, she came to this o^r Monastery about y^e 22 of her Age & entred into her triall & Novishpe wherin she proseeded with so great fervour & constancy y^t she obtained her Profession w^{ch} she made on the day of saint Genoufe Patrones of paris being the 3^d of January 1670.

This Religious sister, was very diligent & observant in y^e keeping al y^e times & Regularitys y^t belonged to her state; perticularly for her prayer & devotions as much as her obediences would permit & when she could not performe it at y^e time apoynted w^{ch}

* Jane Pease, widow, with Mary and Anne, spinsters, of Normanton, appear as convicted recusants in 1667, less than three years before Sister Benedicta's profession at the age of 22 (Cath. Rec. Soc., vi., 286). Jane Pease, widow, of Snyderall (in Normanton parish) was a "popish recusant" in 1680 (J. H. Turner's Nonconformist, 128); and William and Thomas, similarly described, in 1691 (Ibid. 163).

rarely happined, she would be sure to doe it at another ; she was not of a strong & healthful constitution & therefore could not undergoe the laborious offices, so y^t for the g[r]eatest part of her life she was imployed in y^e care of y^e cellers & turnes, y^e w^{ch} she did very Religiously & wth great fidelity to God & superiours never giv'ing things out, or takeing things in, without their expresse leave, & orders ; And it was very edifieing to see, y^t she did not in all that time ; being above 20 years at y^e turnes ; draw to herselfe perticuler amitys, or seeke acquaintances ; but always carried herselfe in a good & retired way.

And thõ : some years before her death she grew Infirmes wth a stifnes in her legges & other indispossions ; yet she would never complaine of her ilnes, or exempt herselfe from y^e performance of her imployments, & obediences ; except she was in extreimity. But these infirmitys more increasing on her, & about a year before she died, having also straned one of her legges ; she suffered much, wth great patience ; & when she was a litle bēter ; she would helpe in w^t she was able. But it pleased God, by these kind of Infirmitys y^e more to prepare her for her last sicknes w^{ch} was a fluxe, fever, & vomitting : y^t lasted a month, wth litle, or noe mitigation : she suffering great torments ; yet suported them, wth much quietnes & Resignation,—saying she comitted herselfe into y^e hands of God for time & eternity ; then being spent wth y^e continuance of her sicknes & noe hopes of recovery she was Armed with al y^e rites of our holy Moth : y^e church ; she had her perfect sences to y^e last ; And having at her Profession taken for Patron ; our above sayd St Amando ; Beged leave to have a candle Burne at his shrine in the time of her Agony tel she expired ; w^{ch} was about 4 days after ; when she happily departed. being the 5th of March 1699 y^e 52 of her age. & 29 of her holy Profession.

But to y^e end ; she may the sooner arrive to the repose of y^e Blessed, Let us say for her y^e deprofoundis. this being her Anniversary day. Requiescat in pace. Amen.

XIX. 1701. Some briefe remarkes of y^e R^d Mother Gertrude Hanne departed this life y^e ii of August Anno Domini 1701.

The R^de Mother Gertrude Hanne of Jesus Maria was borne in Cornwell of English and Catholicke parents her father was Mr John Hanne & her mother M^{rs} Mary Victor both of very good familys ; her father suffered much for his Religion & Loyallty to King Charles y^e first ; her mother had only one son, and y^s Daughter who was nam'd in Baptisme Anne & in Religion she took y^e name of Gertrud having a singular devotion to y^t great Sainte. She lost her Mother when she was very young ; & her father Marieng againe & being much occupied in y^e warrs, a very vertuous Aunt of hers Sister to her owne mother took this child and brought her upp with much care & tenderness, she was very carefull to inprint in y^e mind of y^s little neece al christian vertues ; making her have a great sense of al vice particularly of telling of tailes or speaking ile of others ; her good Aunt brought her up in y^e fear of God : and a very great zeal for y^e exact observance of all y^e dutys of Catholick Religion ; being strickt in making her Brother and she to keep all y^e fasts of y^e holy Church ; and made them keep y^e lents without egges, unless they were sick, this their aunts exactnes and zeal for complying with their christian dutys was of great good effect to our dear Mother who al her life after profited much by y^e good impressions she had received in her tender years ; which stood her much in stead, when after y^e death of her vertuous Aunt she was forc'd by reason her father had lost all his estate for his Loyallty to his King ; & for his Religion to serve as woman to several Ladys of quality ; the last with whom she lived was the Honorable M^{rs} Fairfax y^e Lord Viz : Compt Fairfaxes Daughter who after-wards married y^e Lord Widdrington ; this lady was so extreemly taken with this o^r good Mother y^t she would never have parted with her upon any other account, but for her ardent desire to be Religious having a high esteeme of her vertue ; she being always very vertuous and lived as much retyred from y^e vanitys of y^e world, as her present condistion would possibly permitt ; y^e Lady Fairfaxe Mother to y^s young Lady wth whom M^{rs} Hanne was, took a great kindness for her ; and as y^s honorable Lady gave herselfe much to interne prayre & retirement she lent Dame Gertrude Moores Book and S^{ta} Sophia to our good Mother who found unspeakable comfort to her soul in reeding and following those instructions ; it renewed in her mind fresh and ardent desir's to give herselfe intirely to god and to this end she layd out all ways she could to be received into some Religious house where they follow'd those heavenly instructions, for she found more & more y^t nothing in y^e world Could truly sattisfie or content y^e ardent desires of her soul ; therfore having pass'd some years in these thoughts She att last found herselfe so press'd interiorly to complay wth y^e holy inspirations of God y^t she thought she should offend y^e divine Majesty highly if she^r deffered any longer to put in execution what she soe clearly saw was y^e will of god for her to doe ; wherfore she declared her desire to her Lady who being very vertuous would not hinder her good intentions t'ho she often say'd it was very sensible, to her to parte with her, having alwayes had a very great esteeme and kindness for her, & more over she was pleas'd to promise to give tenn pounds a year for tenn years for part of her portion w^{ch} she exactly perform'd, besides many other favours she did her.

And also my Lady Fairfax and M^{rs} Appolonia Yates were extreem gracious and oblidging to her, and gave part of her portion, and did send severall times whilst this o^r Dear Mother liu'd great charitys to o^r Com̄unity, Now y^s R^d Mother having happily finish'd her affairs and obtain'd to be admitted into y^s Community by means of very R^d Father Corker to whom she adressed herselfe. She Entred y^e Monastery on y^e 27th of May in y^e year of o^r Lord 1676 and of her age about 40^{ty}. t'ho She was advance in years when she came her fervour & zeal for all Religious observances was so great that she abundantly supplied for y^e time she had losst (as she call'd it) in y^e world; She underwent wth great fervour and courage y^e tryalls of her novishipe; being very exact and punctuall to al regular dutys; so y^t in y^e year 1677 on y^e 21th day of November: y^e feast of y^e presentation of our Bll: Lady she made her holy profession to y^e great content of her soul. she prou'd a very serviceable member to y^s holy com̄unity, for being fervorous and enjoying good health for y^e most part; She never spared herselfe in all y^t was most laborious in our Religious state, having offten in her mind and mouth this saying y^t it behooveth her to be y^e more exact since she came late to y^e service of God, and supplie in a short time what her sisters had labored for many years; and indeed she was most examplar in her zeal and fervour; for y^e divine office in y^e quire being always y^e first att Mattins; and al y^e rest of y^e day quire. She was very exact in al her other Religious dutys: never would she admitt of any dispensation for diet but in case of sickness, yet she was tender and compationate of those y^t were weake and infirme; and could not support that any should murmure and find fault wth y^e dispensations w^{ch} superieurs iudg'd fitt to give some, saying it was hard to judge. She was imployd in several of y^e chiefe offices in the house as subcellerere; M^{rs} of Novices, Conseler, and ward-robe, in y^s last office as well as conseler she continued above sixteen years and dyed in them; she behaved herselfe wth so much charity & motherly affection to every owne, y^t she supply'd their wants with all sisterly love and charity; and those y^t she found either through buissness or y^t were not well able; to mend or make their clothes she would doe it for them; and in this charitable manner She supplied every ones necessitys; she never would admit of any to help her tho' for a year or two before her death she was much decayed; yet follow'd y^e dutys of her vocation wth the same fervour and exactitude as when she first entered into holy Religion.

She was also examplar in observing exactly y^t precept of o^r Bll: Savior; judg not and you shal not be judg'd; and y^s; as you meete it shal be meeted to you again; She always excused her sisters; & if ther was any y^t seem'd to blame them: she would ever take y^e parte: of y^e absent; and interpret al to y^e best; saying they had: a good meaning and things was not always as they appear'd. it was even insupportable to her to hear any find fault wth y^e doings of superiours; saying t'was impossible for subjects to penetrate rightly into y^e reasons they had for what they sayd, or did;—therefore it was our duty to pray for them; but not to sensure their actions; t'ho they should appeare blamworthy in o^r opinion; for sayd she superiours; must consider and waygh every ones temper and disposition; and accordingly they are oblidge to proceed; she ever had a great respect and shew'd in all occations much submission; & defferance to y^e sentiments of her superiours, which made her have a great confidence and relyance on their words; and to consult R^d Mother Prioress in her interier difficultys; she had also a great veneration and respect for o^r holy order; and never made use of any other from her coming into Religion. She shewed her Charity in her assiduous visiting y^e sick ; for no sooner was any of y^e Religious indispos'd but she was y^e first to take notice of it, and to inquire after them ; and if they were so ill as to be putt in y^e infirmary she imediatly would goe to vizitt them ; and this wthout any exception of person for all were equally alike to her charity ; for whether it were y^e superiour or even y^e last laysister t'was al on she having in vewe our blessed Saviour whome she visited in his sick and infirme members, being ready to help & assist them in what she could ; this her charitable dispositian extended itselfe to y^e poor in generall : so y^t when she hear'd of any poor person in misery her heart was sensibly touch'd ; and she would often say to R^d Mother Prioress y^t wee should never be y^e poorer for being charitable. This o^r good Mother had al her life a great devotion to our Blessed Lady and never fail'd dayly y^e first thing after Mattins to goe into y^e Garden to doe her devotions att o^r ladys Chaple y^e same she did y^e last thing att night ; besids she made her vizitts thether also att Several hours in y^e day and y^t even to y^e moment she was sease'd by death. She had also a singular devotion for y^e hearing of holy Mass soe y^t she was never missing att y^e two conventual Massess unless detain'd from them by sickness (in her bedd) and : her devotion was so great towards y^t devine Mistery y^t t'ho there happened sometimes to be severall Massess ; she would hear y^m all wth (leave of superieurs) and they knowing her zeal and : devotion did willingly yeald to her pious request. so y^t she spent y^e most part of y^e morning in y^e Quire. It pleased God about six months before her death to try this o^r Dear Mother with some interior difficultys w^{ch} were very sharp and sensible to her. She being naturally of a very apprehensive & fearfull disposition w^{ch} made her often have recourse to very Reverend Mother Prioress for consell and help in those her pains and sufferances w^{ch} she kept to herselfe ; y^t non but god & her superior knew what she suffer'd, y^e w^{ch} she bore wth great patience wholly resigning herselfe to allmighty God ; & wth great simplicity and submission followed y^e advice given her. For a year before her death she was much retyer'd and gave herselfe more then ever to prayr ; She shun'd al unnecessary conversation wth creaturs as much as she could ; and found great comfort to be alone, w^{ch} did not proceed out of a Malencolly humer : but out of a more serious application of her mind to God by interne prayr ; our blessed Lord having prepared her with many afflicting tryalls interiorly and exteriorly ; as painful ilenesses etc. & y^t particularly in her backe so y^t often she would say she thought she had an ulcer in her raines : but notwithstanding she ever continued her accustomed fervour ; and followed her regular dutys as if she had enjoy'd good health : till it pleas'd y^e divine Majesty finding her ripe for heaven as wee have just reason to hope ; she was strucke wth a sudding illness on y^e eve of St Laurence y^e 9th of August when she complain'd of a very great pain in her stomack wth a violent sickness : She sayd it seemed to her she felt there somthing like a stone and most violent shewtings in her back ; and notwithstanding her illness she swept y^e workhouse and put things belonging to y^t office in order ; and then say'd she could doe no more ; yet att vespers she would have gon to y^e quire wth y^e rest of y^e Religious but o^r R^d Mother seeing her look very ill & more fitt for bedd would by no means lett her, but desir'd her to goe and repose on y^e bedd w^{ch} she did ; y^e night following she pass'd very ille and restlessly ; & in y^e morning came to R^d Mother Prioresses chamber and tould her she must now yeald ; for she was extrem sick and could doe no more. She desir'd to be lett bloud beleiving y^t woul'd give her some ease but it prouved quit contrary for imēdiatly after her bleeding she was ceased wth a great coldness al over. and continuall dispositians to vomiting ; w^{ch} lasted till two in y^e afternoon when she fell into an appoplexy her speech and senses being wholly taken from her ; wee sent for y^e doctor and y^e confessor who came soon but her senses never return'd ; t'ho al humain remedys were us'd to bring her to herselfe but in vain ; she continued in this condition till y^e next day about seven att night suffering great conultions wth a most violent agony to y^e great affliction of all y^e comūnity who were all y^s time by turnes praying att her beddside. She had y^e holy oyles and last absolution and then after some hours in y^s state rendred up her happy soul into ye hands of her Creatore to enjoy him eternaly as wee may wth Justice beleive & hope—her life having been a true patrone of all Christian and religious vertues. She dyed on y^e 11th of August in y^e yeare 1701 y^e sixty fourth of her age and 24th of her holy profession in this our Monastery of o^r Blessed Lady of good hope of y^e holy order of S^t Benedict au Champ de L'allouette in paris ; but to y^e end she may soon arive to the Beatificall Vission of God lett us pray for her saying the Depfoundis this being her Anniversary day. Requiescat in Pace. Amen.

XX. 1703. Some Remarks of Rev^d Mother Catherine Conyers of y^e holy Cross who departed this life y^e second of Jan : 1703.

Rev^d Mother Catherine of y^e holy Cross was born in England at y^e Lord Eures his hous at Malton in Yorkshire. She receiv'd in Bapisme y^e Name of Elizabeth, and in Religion took that of S^{tr} Catherine of y^e holy Cross ; Her Mother was y^e sixt and youngest Daughter to y^e Lord Eures of Malton whose Hon^d Family were very pious Catholiks ; As was also that of her Father who was cal'd Cuthbert Conyers Esq^r (Son and Heir to Sir Ralph Conyers of Laton) who after haveing rais'd for his Souverain. (King Charls y^e first) a Company, was himself slaine in y^e Field ; leaving his Lady only this one Daughter (that had not then fully attain'd y^e age of fower years) and with-Child of a second who came to preceed her Sister in Religion ; For haveing from her tender years a great desire to dedicate herself to God in y^t state of life, she was by R. F. Salvin (a Monk of y^e Congregation of our English Benedictin Fathers) sent over unto us. And she being his Relation, and he haveing likewise a particular kindnes for our Monastery (as may be seen in our Book of Remarks upon his Aniversary day y^e 19 of Jan :) was pleas'd to take y^e pains to come over on purpose (after we had advertis'd him of her admittance) to give her y^e Habit with his own hands ; the which when Mother Catherine came to heare of and how much her Sister was to her content and satisfaction, it made her enter into some serious thoughts of following her footsteps, but as she was naturally of an active humer and withal so addicted to variety of divertisments and conversation of friends ; T'is probable (and that not without reason) that she was apprehensive of undertaking such a course of life, w^{ch} was (in al respects, so entirely opposit to that her then present disposition ; and therefore as not willing to appeare in't herself, she got a friend to writ to R. F. Salvin (whilst he was actually wth us) to desire him, to inform himself before he left Paris, if we would be wiling to admit her in case it shou'd please God to give her a vocation, and then at his return to acquaint her with our answer together with al particulars concerning her sister, The which he accordingly did, and that so much to her satisfaction that she thereupon immediatly resolv'd to put in execution her good desires, without further delay, and understanding, that y^e Abbess of y^e English Conception Nuñs heere in Paris (who was then in England upon some busines) was upon returning back to her Monastery, she took y^e occasson of coming over with her ; But after her arrival to Paris, (before she came to our Monastery) she was assault'd with such a terrible apprehension of entering in amongst us, that she even began to repent her having made so long a Journey ; which partly proceeded from y^e great invitations and oblidging civilityes she had receiv'd from y^e Abbess, and from y^e English Augustin Nuñs heere in Paris, where she had been to make a visit to some Relations ; as likewise from a fals idea she had at that time of us ; In so much that at her very first comeing to y^e Grate (which happen'd to be upon y^e same day y^t her Sister (Moth : Lucy) had made her first asking in y^e Chapter in order to her Profession) she was in that toss and carry'd herself in y^t strang high disdainful mañer, that we were al in amaze not knowing what to make on't. But however Very Rev^d Moth : Bridgit More (who was yⁿ Prioress) ask'd her whether or no she had any thoughts of l'ying that night in our Inclosure (we not having as then conveniency of Lodging without) to which she reply'd, yes Madam to night I shal come in but design to go out again to morrow, the Abbess having promiss'd to carry me about to see y^e town ; But soon after her coming in (contrary to her expectation) she found that heavy weight wherewith a little before she had been so soarly opprest, to fal off, and then she presently became so easy and sociable, that afterwards being alone with her sister in her Celle (where she very nicely & curiously examin'd everything) she spoak unto her with much freedom & candor of several things (she had in that little time remark'd) which were she said, very much to her satisfaction ; seeming extremly to admire, to find things so different to what they had been represent'd unto her ; And thus was that great tempest & storme wherwith her mind had been so agitated, in a mañer wholly blown over, as presently appear'd by y^e cheerfulness and serenity w^{ch} shew'd it self in her countenance, so that after some few days past amongst us, she began so much to relish our solitary retir'd life, that when y^e Abbess came another day to fetch her out to a Clothing or Profession (I cannot wel tel which) that was to be at her Monastery, she stood at y^e gate (after that t'was open) a pritty whil, as seeming more willing to have stay'd within then to have gone out ; the which her Ladys^p perceiving (and being ignorant of y^e chang she found in herself) gave her a pul ; saying she saw her affection to her Sister made her unwilling to part, to which Moth : Cath : presently reply'd, nay Madam I'le be forc'd to nothing, if you go that way to work with me, the Religious may if they please shut y^e dore for I'le not go, at which y^e Abbess being no less offended then surpris'd immediatly depart'd ; thô afterwards at our request & perswasion Moth Catherine went with our Confessor to see y^e Ceremony. From this time forward she enjoyd so perfect a peace & tranquillity of mind, that she never seem'd any more to doubt of her vocation, but with great instance. humbly beg'd to be admitted to a tryal, and haveing pass'd over some months in y^e scholars Habitt she with great humility desir'd to be receiv'd to that of y^e Novices, and accordingly had y^e holy Habit given her upon St Laurence's day y^e 10 of Aug : 1664. And upon y^e feast of our Bl^d Lady's Assumption y^e year following she made her holy Profession, haveing past her year of probation wth extraordinary fervour and devotion much to her own & Communityes satisfaction. But as we were at that time but few in number, she was not long after put into employes of Extroversion (as that of Sub-Cellerere &c.) which soon awaken again her natural activity, in so much that afterwards she did not wel know, how to spend her time without some such thing ; And as Religion endeavours to accomodate it self to y^e capacity & profit of each one ; Superiors who also judgd it necessary for her at that time, continu'd her in y^e like Employes for several years, particularly in that of Cellerere and Infirmarian, she having good parts for either, as being both very handy, and of a tender charitable compasionat nature. And she was likewise Chantress for several years together, whatever other Office or Employ she had.

In 1680. she went to Ipers with y^e Lady Beaument first Abbess thereof : For her Ladys^p happening to have been many years in her Monastery without having profess'd any (excepting one Lay-Sister) and y^e hous being also ready to fal on their heads, and they in so great poverty of friends & money, that they were in an impossibility of repairing it : The grand Vicairs of y^e place, by y^e long experience they had had of her conduct, dispareing of her ever bringing it to any-thing, threaten'd to give it to y^e French if she did not very soon get a supply from some Monastery of her own Nation : The which occasion'd her Ladys^{ps} addressing herself unto us ; to y^e great astonishment & surprise of y^e whol community, we being as then totally ignorant, not only of y^e state & concerns of her Monastery but even of her own person & designs upon us, not having had y^e least intelligence or information from herself or any other, when al on y^e sudden she came and cast herself at y^e feet of our Very Rev^d Mother Prioress (who was then Rev^d Moth : Justina Gascoign) laying open unto her y^e great distress & affliction she was in for want of Religious, making most humble supplication to her Rⁿce to grant her some of us, for that otherwise she shou'd for certain (she said) have her hous taken from her & given to y^e french; And withal making great protestations how that it shou'd be ours after her death, if that we wou'd but then assist her in y^e pressing straits & necessity wherein she was, as she truly beleev'd (she said) we were oblig'd in consciens being (as we were of y^e same order & nation) and shou'd have it to answer to God if we refus'd her, and much more to this effect she was daily & almost continually battering our ears with, either by letters, friends or coming herself in person, leaving nothing unattempt'd w^{ch} she thought might possibly procure our consent; The which had such influence upon Mother Catherine that she offer'd herself (with leave of superiors) to go along with her, Ladys^p the same did also Moth: Lucy (her sister) and Moth: Ursula Trevillian, taking with them S^{tr} Amanda a Lay-Sister, at which y^e Abbess exceedingly rejoyc'd willing them before their departure to make a form of obedience to her in presence of us al in y^e Quire; and then she constituted Mother Cath: her Prioress.

But they were strangely surprised when being arriv'd at her Monastery to find things in y^e condition they were in, and at first were in some suspence what to do or resolve on, but after having recommended y^e matter to God (being conscious of their own good-meaning & intention in what they had done) they concluded to wade thrô, (by God's assisting grace) y^e best they could y^e difficultyes which general do attend such enterprisses;

And therupon Mother Catherine, set herself hartily to y^e work (which she then look'd upon as y^e known wil of God for her) immediately casting about, how to get & procure charityes towards y^e repairing and building of y^e Monastery; and within y^e compass of tow years space that they remain'd there, she got (together wth what y^e Abbess gave her) sufficient for y^e building, of a work-hous, Chapter-hous & double Dormitory, y^e which she entirly finish'd and had also got several Pensioners as wel English as Duch (two or three of y^e said English having come over with design of Professing amongst them, and had moreover lay'd her design for y^e building of a Church & Quir having likewise al materials for y^e building of another Dormitory over that she had already built;—when it pleas'd Almt^y God to put a stop to her further proceeding by y^e Death of her Abbess: For they not having as yet profess'd any of y^e hous. The Religious of Gant, Dunkerk & Pontoise who had endeavour'd (tho: unknown to us) before our Religious went to Ipers to have got it for y^e Irish Dames Profess'd at their Monasteryes, and had been (as we understood afterwards) actually treating with y^e Abbess about it when she came & made her addresses to us; now set upon y^e effecting that after her death which they found they could not do during her life: And thô: we at y^e first did use al y^e means we could to help & assist Mother Catherine by supplicating & pleading y^e justice of her cause; and y^e right our Monastery had to lay clame to it, as wel in regard of y^e Donation y^e Abbess had made thereof to us, as for our having been at y^e charges of their Journey thither, and several other expences; and had likewise been at no small trouble in soliciting their affairs & procuring them charities; yet w^m we perceiv'd that things were like to grow to a great height on both sides, we chose rather peaceably & quietly to render it up, then by further arguing and disputing to hazard y^e causing discentions, animosities and difficultyes betwixt their Monasteryes and ours to y^e disedification & scandal of seculars; and accordingly we writ to Moth: Catherine (together wth some other friends to advice her to do y^e same, to which she presently acquiesc, And as thô. she had done nothing at al, shew'd herself most ready & willing to have left y^e place at y^e same instant, but that t'was our sentiment to have her remaine til she had made some reasonable agreement with y^e Religious that were come to take possession of y^e hous to reimbours her so much of what she had lay'd out in the building, as might beare their charges back; y^e which after her haveing amiably concluded, she with y^e rest of her Company return'd home, bringing with them fower of their English Pensioners, whom we (contrary to our custome) got leave to take into our Monastery, til such time they might be otherwise provided for, or dispos'd of; but soon after M^{rs} Haws & M^{rs} Ritchison (who had come over with intention of being Religious at Ipers) took y^e scholars habit amongst us; tho: M^{rs} Ritchison after some little time haveing declar'd that her desire & vocation was rather to be amongst strangers than those of her own nation; Our Very Rev^d Mother Prioress, Moth: Catherine and some others did use such endeavours with those who had y^e charity to promiss to give them Portions, in case they Profess'd amongst us, that with some difficulty they obtain'd their consent to give that which they design'd (had she settled with us) to place her in a french Monastery of Benedictines.

Mother Catherine looking upon y^e overthrô of her designes as permitt'd by Almy God for her greater good, was so far from complaining of y^e Injury she might think to have been done her, or bearing y^e least difficulty or grudg with those who went to take possession of that w^{ch} had cost her so great pains and labour; That when about 9. or 10. years after her having left Ipers that Rev^d Dame Mary Butler went thither to be Abbess; & she being pleas'd in her way thither to honour us with a visit and at y^e same time telling us of y^e great loss they had had there, of their Church-stuf for that some of y^e Dames who were then gone to begin a Monastery in Irland had (she said) carry'd away with them y^e very best suits that our Religious had left And her Ladys^p seem'd withal to be in that concern and trouble, as not knowing what to do for want of chang: that it did so extremely move Mother Catherine, and this our present Rev^d Moth: Prioress to Compassion (it happening to be a little after her R^{nce} first Election) as also some others y^t had y^e honour to entertain her, that they al unanimously agreed of making her Ladys^p a present of three Suits of Church-stuf, of different coulours, y^e which she was pleas'd to accept wth grateful acknowledgments, owing that they had not receiv'd so much from any of their own convents.

It having pleas'd God out of his tender mercy & goodnes in this maner to free Moth: Catherine from y^e many encombrances & troublesome affaires wherein she was involv'd, to place her again in y^e secure haven of solitude and retirement; our very Rev^d Mother in conpliance wth y^e divine conduct upon her, wou'd not to suddenly put her again into any office of Charge; that so al occasion of solicitous concerns being entirely remov'd she might with more freedom wholly attend unto herself by a serious continu'd Exercise of regular duties & faithful practise of Prayer. So that in these years of vacancy from y^e like Employes, She writ out y^e Epistles & Gospels for the principal Feasts of y^e year, to save us y^e trouble of having them to seek when we were to read them at y^e Table; (The w^{ch} does us good service). She also writ another Book for y^e Infermary of y^e Episles & Gospels for Lent, And in this time she made likewise a great many Reliquaryes & Flowers as wel to make presents off as to adorne our little Chapel of our Bl^d Lady in which there are at present some very faire large Reliquaryes of hers & her Sister's making, as also Bouqués of Flowers of al sorts & sizes. And after having in this sort past over some years, She was made Cellerare in w^{ch} she remain'd two years.

Her zeal for y^e Quire was so great, that she seem'd to take a particular satisfaction to teach y^e scholers & Novices to sing, (thô: she had naturally but a weak Breast) and wou'd also encourage those that had not good voyces to do y^e best they could.

At y^e second Election of Rev^d Mother Agnes Temple (our present very Rev^d Mother Prioress); her R^{nce} made Moth: Catherine Subprioress in w^{ch} she shew'd so much fevour and exactness ffor y^e Divine Office & al other Conventual Acts, that she was continu'd two Quadrarians; that is til y^e Election w^{ch} was made y^e Aug: before her Death, she being then by reason of a cancer in her Breast wholly incapable of anything, having for some months before us'd a kind of violence upon herself to come (as she did) to y^e Quir & other Religious duties, as thô: she had ail'd nothing; And not only that; but she conceal'd her ilnes til t'was too far gone for a cure, out of y^e apprehension she had, that if she shou'd discover it, Doctors wou'd presently be for having her dispenced withal, both from Regular Fasts and those of y^e Church, & not apprehending it to be what it prou'd, & knowing herself to be of a healthful strong constitution, she could not perswade herself y^t such dispensations, were at al necessary for her. And she was likewise particularly devoted to those Saints in whose lives mention is made of their having chose rather to hazard y^e prejudiceing their healths and even shortening their days, then to break y^e Fasts & Abstinesses of our holy Mother y^e Church: But no sooner did she make it known to our very Rev^d Mother, then that Rev^{nce} got several of y^e most able & skilful Phisitians she could hear off, who al concluded that had she spoak of it at y^e first, it might easily have been cur'd but then t'was too late, as being come to be a form'd cancer & by consequence incurable. The which sentence of theirs thô harsh and bitter to nature she nevertheless receiv'd with an undanted courage and peace of mind, which plainly made appeare her interior disposition for sufferance, being otherways of her own nature very sensible and timerous.

Her patience in y^e long and grievous pains she endured was indeed admirable; For a Woman who pretended to have done wonderful cures of that kind, having by y^e application of some Remedies she us'd to her Breast, struck, y^e cancerous humer inwardly) out of a pretence of curing it without its ever coming to break (w^{ch} Mother Catherine had always a very great dread off) it had so infected her whol body that from y^e time y^e woman undertook y^e cure (w^{ch} was about y^e middle of may) til her death, she was night and day as upon a continual rack and it seem'd to her that wⁿ she undrest herself to go to bed as thô her body was wholly disjoyntd and ready to drop in peeces. And as she happen'd one day to be extremly oppress'd, finding that not only her inward pains but likewise that of her Breast daily to encrease, and greatly apprehending their long durance; she said to one of our Religious (who was then with her in her Celle) that she had a strong dread least she shou'd not be able to support and beare with that patience & conformity to God's wil (as she ought) the long violent bitter sharp pains and tortures w^{ch} she expected she shou'd suffer before they bereav'd her of life; for said she I am sensible that I being of a strong constitution & not having had any sicknes to pul me down, I shal no doubt on't hold out y^e longer. The w^{ch} having said, she remain'd a little whil in silence, as t'were attentive to what y^e Religious spoak to her by way of comfort & encouragement; And then as awak'd out of a little slumber she suddenly break furth into these words (as in a transport of love) Wel (said she) I do now humbly trust & confide in y^e sweet Goodnes & Mercy of Alm^{ty} God; That as He hath been pleas'd to enable me to undergo and endure what I have hitherto done; He wil also give me strength & courage patiently to suffer to y^e very last whatsoever his Divine Majesty shal inflict upon me or permit to befall me; and I furthermore faithfully assure you, that I wou'd not chang this my present condition (in view of y^e good will and pleasure of God to have it so) to enjoy again my former health. And by these & y^e like reiterated Acts she became y^e better dispos'd for a greater exercise w^{ch} succeeded this. For y^e Woman seeing her Breast come to that pass, that she could no longer pretend a cure without applying things to break it, took her opportunity to tel Mother Catherine as much, saying y^t y^e difficulty she had on al occasions exprest against it had made her defer much longer then otherwise she shou'd have done, and therefore shou'd beforced (y^e humer was so fixed and grown to that hardnes) to apply Remedies w^{ch} would prove very nausious and therefore wish'd her to get leave to have y^e hous at y^e corner of our low Garden to themselves, for that of necessity they must have a place distant from y^e Community, assuring her withal, y^t if she wou'd be content to comply with her desire in this, she was as certain of a cure as one can be of any-thing in this life; Mother Catherine being extremly struck at such her proposal and unwilling to speak of it to any til she had brought herself to a greater indifferency, wou'd sometimes (to divert y^e anguish & trouble of mind she was in about it) walk in y^e garden; where, whilst she wou'd be making Acts of Resignation & imploring y^e Divine assistance that she might in al, do that which was most pleasing and agreable unto him; she shou'd find herself (as she tould us afterwards) al of a sudden seas'd with new fears & apprehensions if she did but chance to cast an eye towards y^e hous where y^e operation was to be made; But in fine at last by perseverance in prayer, and holy Comunion, which of late years she often frequented with much profit of soul, she became so perfectly resign'd to God's holy wil; that she wth al cheerfulness of mind consent'd to whatever y^e woman seem'd to think, or pretended wou'd contribut to her cure. And now I may truly say t'was, that y^e courage, patience & other vertues w^{ch} Moth: Catherine had hitherto made appeare began to shine forth with a new luster; For her pains, were not only redoubled by y^e vehement drawing of y^e Remedies apply'd to her Breast, but they had moreover that insupportable stench, that it's certaine no carron could be worse; and yet notwithstanding y^e great weaknes wherin she then was, she bore it al, as if she had been insensible; and it was even charming to see with what easines and cheerfulness she would at al times make us welcome; for let us go when we wou'd, we were sure to find her in y^e same sweet disposition and serenity of countenance. And thò: she was about three weeks in y^e said hous at end of our low garden, yet (so great was her devotion), that neither y^e violence of y^e pains, want of repose, nor y^e cold season (we were then in of frost & snow) could hinder her coming up daily to y^e Infirmary to hear Mass, at which she also did frequently Communicate, And when that her Sister (Moth: Lucy) wou'd sometimes beg her to use a little moderation & not force herself in that maner beyond her strength, she wou'd answer, Oh: pray let me alone to do something for my God.

One of our Servants, who had been often eye wittnes of y^e extraordinary affability and cheerful countenance wherewith she spoak and convers'd with every one, asking & enquiring about their little concerns and ailments as one in perfect health, and not being able to comprehend or beleve t'was possible she could be in such continual pain & torture as we wou'd make appeare; soon chang'd oppinion after haveing once had a view of her Breast, w^{ch} thò t'was enough to strick horror into one, yet was it not y^e greatest of her pains.

Some little time after all Saints (haveing left off those nauseous Remedyes) she came to Lye in y^e Infirmary, where one might have hoped she wou'd have enjoy'd some little respit of repose, but it fel out very contrary, for that y^e matter which ran out of her ulcerated Breast caus'd as bad a sent to y^e ful, as that w^{ch} before had been apply'd thereto; And as she was naturally extreme nice in her smel; she wou'd sometime merrily say, God Almighty has fitted me now; as seeming wel pleas'd she suffer'd so much in that sense wherein she might particularly feare to have offended.

The joy and alacrity wherewith she accepted her own sufferance did not in y^e least diminish y^e tender concerne, she ever had for those of others; on y^e contrary, her then present weak condition wherin she was, render'd them far more sensible, as she upon an occasion one day acknowledg'd, saying that they did more add to her sufferances by y^e deep impression they made upon her spirits then she design'd ever to make known to any creature; And it pleas'd God to exercise her in this kind to y^e very last. For it happen'd at y^s time that a poor woman who had a cancer in her Breast (w^{ch} rotted off, by peacemeals much in y^e same maner Mother Catherins did) came to lodg in our Quarters, for whom she shew'd herself so solicitously careful, that besides, her sending y^e poor Creature part of whatever she had for her own Breast which she thought might be proper or useful for hers, and that we also daily gave her vitals, she also endeavour'd to procure her what charityes she could from others. Whilst she was at Ipers there happen'd to come to y^e Monastery a poor Creature who with much importunity beg'd an Almes, as being ready to starve with pinching cold & hungar; but there not being either vitals or other thing she could give, and her charity & natural compassion not permitting her to let any poor body depart without something, she went & pul'd of one of her Peticoots and gave that. She who was thus charitable & compassionat to Externes did not fail in occasions to make us also sensibly resent y^e effects thereof, as her Sister (Moth: Lucy) in a particular mañer experienced, to whom she not only cary'd herself as an affectionat Sister, but likewise shew'd y^e tendernes of a Mother ordering her (in y^e time of her Superiority by reason of her frequent and almost continual infirmityes) to give her daily an account how she found herself, as wel to y^e end she might thereby, be y^e better able to give a guess what was most proper for her then present indisposition; as by some little discours to render them y^e more sweet and easy to beare; And this charitable office to her Sister, she continu'd in y^e greatest height of her ilnes til such time as she found her end to be near approaching, for then she carry'd her-self wth more reservednes towards her; The which she did on purpose (as she tould one of our Religious) that her death might prove y^e less sensible & afflicting unto her. And indeed her charity to y^e woman who had (for at least six Months space) amus'd her with y^e hopes of a cure, was very particular; For when after, by dear bought experience she was convinc'd of her not having y^e skil she pretended; she nevertheless, (without any shew of trouble) look'd upon her wth y^e same easiness as before, and desir'd that after her death our very Rev'd Mother wou'd please to permit, that some little things she had in her Celle, w^{ch} she knew she had a mind to, might be given to her; And also that one of our Religious might make her a little peece of work; w^{ch} she herself had design'd her, had she effected her pretended cure.

There was a certain Person (a great Servant of God for whom she had a very particular respect & esteeme) that was very urgent wth her to suffer her Breast to be cut off, as haveing been inform'd by Persons of much skil & experience, that there was no other Remedy or cure for it; but she not consenting thereto; The said Person seem'd afterwards not to shew y^t concern for her. as before; and as one day we happen'd to be discoursing about it in her hearing; She said, and I do also very wel perceive it; But God's Wil be done, who knows what is best for us al; for I wel know y^t it proceeds from my not yealding to have my Breast cut off; Indeed t'is true, I have an humble confidence that God of his infinit goodness, wil enable me to beare, whatsoever He shal please to inflict upon me, or permit to befal me ; but must own, that I do not find in myself any such hope or confidence in that which I by my own choyce and election shou'd draw upon myself.

When y^e Sister Infermary wou'd sometimes say unto her, wth much concerne, that she fear'd her vitals were not dress'd to her liking ; she wou'd bid her not to be in any pain for that, since t'was always very wel done, and that we were not to eat for pleasure and to satisfy sensuallity but meerly to sustain nature.

Her whol comportment in this time of her ilnes was most edifying, and there appear'd something so extraordinary sweet & saintly in her countenance (above what we had ever seen before), that we could not but take notice of it.

In measure as her pains encreas'd, so did likewise y^e patience and courage with which it pleas'd God to strengthen and fortify her.

She desired for her greater support and comfort to have daily something red unto her, out of y^e most pious sweet Entertainments (de R. P. Thomas de Jesus) upon y^e sufferances of Jesus Christ ; in w^{ch} her soul took so great delight and satisfaction that she wou'd remaine an entire half howre with that application of mind and devout attention, as thô. during that time she had been wholly insensible or forgetful of her own, which notwithstanding were so great, that set aside y^e time of Mass & this half hower of reading, she was scarce from y^e time she rise, til y^e time she went to bed, one Miserere-space in y^e same posture, being thrô. y^e violence of y^e pains almost in a continual motion ; And yet tis not to be thought y^e industry she us'd, that nothing might appeare, either by her words, actions, or countenance w^{ch} might draw from us expressions of tendernes & compassion. And when it happen'd that we seeing her in such torture & excessive pain (as thô. she were in a very agony) could not forbear sometimes to shew our concerne, she wou'd then immediatly smil upon us, as thô. with y^e breath of our Mouths her pains had vanish'd, or to say better ; As who having placed her comfort in God wou'd not admit of human Consolations. In fine y^e 18 of Dec: about six of y^e clock at night, she enter'd into her Agony, and y^e next day betwixt 10. & 11. receiv'd her holy viaticum we al beleeving she could not pass 24 howers thô. to admiration she held out a whol fortnight ; Two or three days before Christ Mass she said ; That seeing it had pleas'd God beyound al expectation to prolong her life, she very much wish'd she could have y^e happynes to Communicate on Christ Mass night, and that if t'were God's wil ; she shou'd rather choose to remain in y^e suffering condition she was in, til y^e end of y^e holy days: then that her death shou'd be an occasion of interrupting those great mysteries we were about to Celebrate: And his Divine Majesty was pleas'd to give her not only y^e consolation of receiveing him in y^e Most Adorable Sacrament of y^e Alter on Christ Mass night according to her desire, but also for y^e greater encrease of her merit to accept of her offering. She now more frequently then before, desir'd us, to read by her, or recite some prayers, especially those of Preparation for a happy Death now & then intermixing them with some little short Acts of love.

After having passed over 4. or 5. days in this maner, she then began to signify unto us y^e longing desire she had to receive upon new years day her Beloved Jesus for her new-years Gift; but she was then reduced to that extremity of weaknes that we had little hopes of her being able to comunicate that day notwithstanding t'was so near; yet however it pleas'd her Divine Spouse to whom nothing's impossible to conserve her in life and perfect senses to give her that Pledg of his Love, who but some few days before, had made him so generous & wel-pleasing a Sacrifice of herself. And accordingly with al humility, Reverence and Devotion she receiv'd that day about two of y^e clock in y^e morning that most Signal Blessing and Prescious New-years Gift.

After y^e Comūitye Mass, one of our Religious Congratulating her, for y^e great favour and Mercy it had pleas'd God to do her; she presently took up y^e word; And in a great transport of joy said, He has indeed been above measure wonderfully good to me, for He seemes to me to do al himself to prepare me for my last Pasage, and that there's nothing now for me to do, but only to expect in peace & quietnes y^e moment wherein it shal please him to take me out of this miserable life.

Our Very Rev^d Mother Prioress having given her that afternoon three little wax-books, she desir'd to have them lighted at her departure in honour of y^e Bl^d Trinity, and to keep continually one burning in y^e mean time to be in readines to light y^e others. About six of y^e clock at night, w^{ch} was y^e day fortnight, she began her first Agony, At y^e very same hower, & moment (as near as we could guess) she enter'd into her last; and we being then several of us about her & she desir'd to have Rev^d Fa: Confessor, come in, that together wth his R^{nce} we might pray by her til Compline; After our having said some Prayers, she casting her eyes upon a Picture of our Bl^d Lady w^{ch} was at her Bed's feet, most devoutly addressed herself unto her and with al y^e force and strength she had left, cal'd upon her by those sweet and comfortable Titles of Mother of Mercy. Mother of Pity & Compassion, beging she wou'd be unto her a Mother in that her greatest necessity & last extremity.

She had her Senses perfect to y^e very last, and a little before she expir'd embras'd and kissed her Crucifix, and afterwards said wth a dying voyce two, two, the w^{ch} those that were about her not understanding, Rev^d Fa: Confessor happening to turn towards y^e Table where y^e little wax-book was burning, said, that he beleev'd t'was to put them in mind to light y^e other two, y^e which having done she a little time after render'd up her soul into y^e hands of her Creator about two of y^e clock in y^e morning. y^e second day of Jan: 1703.

No sooner was y^e Breath out of her Mouth but that y^e nauscious sent wholly vanish'd, in so much that there was not y^e least offensive smel either in y^e Bed or Roome where she dy'd nor even so much as about her Corps: The which we y^e more admir'd and blessed God for, in regard we had been seriously advis'd, as wel by Phisitians, as other persons of skil and experience in y^e like distempers, to have a Coffin in readines, to nail her up in, as soon as y^e breath was out of her Body, assuring us that she wou'd smel to that degree that t'wou'd be enough to infect y^e whol hous: And whether or no this their advice had come to Mother Catherin's knowledg, or that t'was only her own apprehension that we shou'd not be able to expose her, after her death, I cannot tel; But whatever t'was; Some few dayes before she made great instance to Rev^d Mother Prioress to use al y^e means and art she could possible for to remove y^e bad sent w^{ch} might chance to anoy us after her Death, and for that end, desir'd she wou'd consult y^e Surgeant, and if he found it necessary to have her Breast cut off: She wou'd please to permit him to do it, that so her Body (according to our custome) might be expos'd in y^e Quire, for which she said she had a particular devotion: This her request put our very Rev^d Mother into some concerne and supence what to do in y^e case, being both willing and desirous to comply with her desire and yet extremly apprehensive of indangering y^e Co^munity, but it pleas'd God to take from her Rⁿce y^e solicitous care & concern she was in about it, by her proving as sweet a Corps as any to our thinking we had ever had, and very probable, t'was, what she herself had beg'd of Almighty God before her Death, for she wou'd sometimes speak with great feeling and gratitude of y^e obligation she had to al y^e Co^munity for y^e real affection and Charity wherwith we visited and tended her; saying that she hoped in sweet Jesus that y^e harm wou'd only be to herself; and accordingly it prov'd, for both al y^e time of her ilnes and several months after her death we enjoy'd better health yⁿ y^e Co^munity had done of some years before together with much comfort and satisfaction of mind for the happynes, we have just cause to beleeve she already enjoyes and wil now more than ever be a powerful Soliciter for us unto Almighty God, that we may al happily arrive where I trust in sweet Jesus, she is arrived. But as y^e judgments of God are secret and that many are detain'd much longer then we think, from enjoying His Beatifical vision: let us say for her a Deprofundis.

XXI. 1704. Some brief Remarks of Rev^d Mother Maria Apleby of y^e Bl^d Sacrament who departd y^s life y^e 9 of Jan: 1704.

Rev^d Mother Maria Apleby of the most Bl^d Sacrament was born at Linton in Yorkshire of Catholick Parents, her Father was M^r Thomas Apleby of Linton, and her Mother M^{rs} Helen Gascoigne, Daughter to Sir Thomas Gascoigne and Sister to our venerable Mother Justina Gascoigne of happy memory. It happen'd one day (that being with Child of Mother Maria) M^r Apleby her Husband in some little hate or passion threw a glass of red wine at her which lighting upon her hand and arme, the child when she was born had the very marks of ye wine al over its little hand and arme and so remain'd al her life, which I here mention for that the said accident prov'd in length of time (as you'l see) to have so fallen out by a special providence for us. Her Mother dyed in Child-bed of another Daughter named Helen after herself, Mother Maria being then but about fowre years old; And then my Lady Gascoigne their Grand-Mother took care of them, but surviveing their Mother but about six years, her eldest Daughter who was marry'd to Sir Stephen Tempest and had no Child of her own, took her two little neeces to herself and brought them up with al the care and affection of a tender Mother in piety and devotion to which Mother Maria naturally inclin'd and had also a great compassion and charity for the poor, yet nevertheless being very forward for her years, as she grew in age, she likewise grew more and more vaine, and to love and affect y^e world and was wel pleas'd to hear talk of marrying her to some rich gentleman of a good Estate &c: til it pleas'd Almighty God (who wou'd that she shou'd make choice of him alone for her spouse) that being about 12, or 13 year old, she was, one night taken very suddenly most dangerously il and lay'd some howrs without sence or speech, but being again come to herself, She found her heart so entirely chang'd from al love and affection to the world that she began to have rather a disgust and aversion from it. And at y^e same time was so penetrated with the thoughts and consideration of God's infinit mercy to her, in not taking her out of this life in the dispossition she was then in that her soul seem'd to be wholly replenish'd with affections, of love, admiration and acknowledgments, wishing she could make some return for so great and unspeakable goodnes and mercy. And there upon she took the resolution of dedicating herself to the service of Almighty God in the state of holy Religion; And not many years before her Death, she tould one of our Religious, that from that time she had had as always present before her eyes, the infinit bounty and mercy of God to her. However she never recover'd so perfectly wel of that accident but that there remain'd some reliques of it which made her subject to convulsion fits, having sometimes two or three in a day and sometimes again wou'd be two or three days free, but was troubled with them more or less al her life.

She had three Aunts at Cambray, one was Daughter to Sir Thomas Gascoigne her Grandfather and younger Sister to our Venerable Mother Justina Gas: The other two were his Sisters, one of which being Abbess gave her several invitations by letters. And notwithstanding she had none at al from her Aunt, Very Reverend Mother Justina, she found nevertheless in herself such pressing desires of being with her, that nothing could divert or put her of from it. Wherefore her Grandfather seeing her so fix'd upon coming to us, and believing her to young (as being but between 13, and 14.) to enter upon a tryal in order to religion, and knowing we took no Pentioners, had thoughts of sending her for some time into a french monastery to learn the languish, but the ardent desire she had of consecrating herself to God by the holy vows of Religion could suffer no delay, and therefore ceas'd not importuning til she obtain'd his consent to come straight to us, and Sir Thomas her Grandfather being willing that her maid Mrs Bridgit Swales shou'd have the advantage of being admitted to religion upon her Portion, sent her over with her, as wel upon that account as to take care of her, and accordingly they were both taken into the monastery the 25. of June 1665. Very Rev^d Mother Justina her Aunt being then novice Mistress. She had very fortunatly the happines and consolation at her very first entry to come under her conduct ; The sixt of August following she was elected Prioress in which charge she remain'd til her Death which was 25. years : our Convent haveing not been at that time but few years begun they stil owed much for this hous we are now in, and had no prospect of geting wherewith to pay it, which made her Reverence and the rest of our Reverend Mothers Beginers to look upon it as a singular providence of God, that her Neece who was like to have a great fortune and seemed to be of a fine Religious Spirit, should make choice of our poor monastery preferable to any other, and that which stil augmented their comfort was to find her so firmly settled in such her resolution that it could not be shaken even by her maid who in other things had great power with her, for she had not been long in y^e hous but perceiving the Religious to be in a low condition had a mind to go to some other Monastery, and for that reason endeavor'd al she could to insinuate the same into Mother Maria, but not withstanding she was so very young, she was not in that able to prevaile any thing upon her, which gave our said Reverend Mothers to confide that as Almighty God had directed her to us, he would conduct al to a happy end, and so wholly casting al their care and concerns into the hands of divine providence they proceeded with her in the same mañer as with other Novices, without permitting her either dispensations or exemptions from any regular duties belonging to them, most particularly exercising her wel in works of mortification and humiliation, the better to try her spirit, if her vocation was truly from God (according as our holy Father ordains in the Chapter of his Rule about admittance of Novices) And the event made appeare how agreable to his divine Majesty such their dependance on his Paternall Providence was unto him, as wel by his sending a sicknes to Sister Bridgit Swales which in three weaks space carry'd her away ; as in giveing to Mother Maria so great a fervor as carryed her on thro' al difficulties and made her embrace al obediences with admirable cheerfulness, promptitude and submission, the which she continued to do the whole time of her probation, to the true content of her own soul and no less satisfaction to the Coñmunity.

As soon as she was attain'd to y^e age of 16. she made her holy Profession on the feast of the Presentation of our Blessed Lady. (21 of November) to whom al her life she bore a singular devotion, yet was notwithstanding afterwards forced to go into England to get her Portion, For thro' her Grandfather after the death of her Mother had prevail'd with her Father to settle upon her and her Sister each of them 2000 pound starling a piece yet he haveing marry'd a second Wife by whom he had five or six children Sons and Daughters, and that not only she herself but likewise his own Relations represented to him, as a thing very unreasonable that his two Daughters by his first Lady shou'd have fortunes so much greater then what the state could furnish the others, that they put it into law, not much doubting but to succeed according to their wish since they understood that Mother Maria was Professed, wel knowing that the Laws of England are in no sort favorable to Religious, however the better to proceed upon good grounds and the more firmly to make sure their pretensions, they were at the expence of sending over a near Relation of hers to discover if possible whether or no she was profess'd, But as her Aunt our Very Reverend Mother Prioress was inform'd of their stratagemes, she wou'd not permit him to see her, but only speak to her. After that Sir Thomas her Grandfather perceiv'ing her presence wou'd be absolutely necessary, writ to have her sent into England with al possible secrecy, and accordingly she went (sending with her S^r Scholastica Hodson a lay Sister who came from Cambray with Reverend Mother Clementia Cary), she changing her name and was in privat lodgings in London in expectation of being advertis'd to make her appearance. The day then appointed being arriv'd they went together with her Sister to the Court—where being placed, they heard their cause a long time hotly disputed on both sides, their Adversaries Counsel afferming, that as for M^{rs} Mary Apleby she was a profess'd Nun in Paris, and their Counsell as hotly on the other side pleaded that both she and her sister were in England and that they could produce them. Then the adverse Party gave them the defy, whereupon those of Mother Maria's Counsell calling them by their names, said, M^{rs} Mary and M^{rs} Helen Apleby come forward, Then adresing themselves to M^r Apleby their Father, asked him, whether or no he did not know that those were his Daughters to which he holding his peace and making no semblance to know them (as perhaps he might not, he haveing not seen them of several years) The advers party took from thence occasion to cry out, that they were a couple of young idle creatures which they had hired out of some hous or other, for said they, repeating againe, that they knew very wel M^{rs} Mary Apleby was a profest Nun in Paris, then some of her Counsel said, Madam draw of your glove and let us see your hand, the which having pul'd off, she held up her hand, they thereupon said to her Father, what do you say Sir, wil you deny your Daughters or own them; the which infine put al to silence, and to be brief, it was those marks in her hand and arme that gain'd the law suit.

And besides the said 2000 pound, we also got 500. more (by Sir Thomas her Grandfather's solicitation) of [6 or 8]00 pound starling given or left her as a legacy, I cannot wel tel which, nor by whom, but was in such hands that we might have run risk to have lost it, or at least got very little thereof had not Sir Thomas her Grandfather very much interested himself therein for us; but by his means she brought to the hous 2500. pound starling clear, he being very desirous to make his Grandaughter as a foundress haveing a great love and affection for our hous as in al occasions he was pleas'd to testify.

Reverend Mother Maria was of a most sweet charitable compassionate nature and of a solide judgment, haveing an extraordinary capacity for learning, she got by her own industry to understand perfectly wel both french and latin, taking great delight in reading spiritual Books, and was scarce ever without her Breverary or some good Book about her, haveing in a mañer the whol Psalter by heart, on which she meditated day and night finding therein great comfort and consolation, as wel appear'd by what she said one day to a Sister in whom she had a great confidence, for she tould her, that there was nothing in this world so deare to her, as her Breverary.

She was also extreemly humble, desireing to be as an abject in the hous of God, endeavouring to hide the talents with which she was endow'd and not to be known to the world, that she might have the more time and leasure to attend to that one thing which our Blessed Saviour himself said to be only necessary ; however she had something so very good and sweet in her countenance which drew a respect and esteeme for her person.

One may truly say that she practis'd holy poverty to the letter, never appropriating any thing to herself no not so much as a Book but wou'd have al in common, and when she could, she wou'd get the poorest and oldest Brevaryes &c: which she wou'd make use of preferable to new ones, neither had she in her cell, or cloathing &c: any thing particular from the rest, and if it might have stood with good order she wou'd certainly not so much as have had a Cell, or Bed to have lay'd on that she could look upon as particularly belonging to her, And when my Lady Tempest her Aunt came over and found that notwithstanding the Portion her Neece brought with her there had been no provission made for her by settlement of a yearly Pention which she lookd upon as not only reasonable but just since (as she said) none knew what might befall the hous, or whether it might not come to fail, and therefore desired y^t at least then something shou'd be drawn up for the settlement of a yearly Pention upon her, to which the Religious most willingly consenting, Mother Maria said to some of them, Let my Aunt do what she pleases for her own satisfaction, but she may assure herself I shal make no use thereof, for hap what hap wil I wil share with you and faire as the rest do's. Her great patience and conformity to God's wil in her long and continual souffrances was admirable, for haveing an il digestion, she had not been many years in Religion, when her stoamack grew to that pass of weaknes, that after her repasts she wou'd be in that strif and conultions, as in a very agony and so continu'd for several howres, wholly uncapable of any thing haveing enough to do to support herself, and thô her fervor carry'd her to a great exactnes in performance of regular dutyes, and most expecially to the Divine Service haveing a great zeal for the Quire & as much as possible wou'd be at the night and day office, yet many times it happen'd that not being able to get two howres rest in bed she wou'd be forced to rise and wander about, til being tir'd and decoction wrought in her stomake she wou'd in some uneasy posture get a little repose as either sitting, kneeling or leaning against something, and more often upon the Bed then in bed, which rendred her uncapable of following the Cōmunity according to her desire, and inclination of Superiors, who finding no corporal remedies to do her any good but that she stil remain'd the same, and being much concern'd at such her singular mañer of liveing, fearing least in great part it might proceed from a strong imagination of greater perfection by her getting thereby more time for privat Devotions, and so neglect y^e common, and therefore in danger al her life to go on in y^e same way, thought it their obligation from time to time to try what severity would do, pritty sharply reprehending her singularity, representing to her y^e disedification she might wel feare to give to the Comunity, seeming to think she might help herself and do other ways if she wou'd: al which wou'd afflict her above measure, knowing by the many assays and experience she had made in herself that she did her uttermost & neither wanted good wil or esteeme for regular duties, yet however it always put her into so great anguish of mind as wholly disconsolate and dejected, till by Prayer, (which was her ordinary and sole remedy in al pressures and difficulties) she had a little calm'd and pacify'd her mind, for she was of so tender a conscience, and had always the fear of God so before her eyes, that even the very shadow of sin was insupportable to her, apprehending nothing so much in this world as where there might be the least appearance of offence to God; which made one of her Confesors say, speaking of her; that she was an Angel in purity,— And that which rendred her corporal infirmities the harder to bear, was, that they were 'accompagn'd with almost continual troubles of mind caus'd by scrupulosities which never fails to furnish sufficient matter to those who are tormented therewith.

She heard Mass wth that attention to those sacred Mysteries of our Redemption as if she had had her body only upon earth and according to her devotion would have had Masses al the morning long in our Church, she was most especially devoted to the Blessed Sacrament of the Alter, and t'was from that celestial food (which she did frequent as often as her infirmities of body and obscurities of mind wou'd permit) and her fidelity in prayer, that she got strength and courage to go thrô such long continued sharp exercises and tryals without ever being heard to complain or sought to be bemoan'd and always to the exterior easy and affable, thò. such her sufferances last'd to the end of her life, and after her Death we found that she had writ upon several bits of papers and little pictures this following vers of the Royal Prophet Psal: 93. Secundum multitudinem dolorum meorum in corde meo, consolationes tuæ lætificaverunt animam meam.

In her last sicknes she desired to have her Matlace or beding to be layd upon y^e ground before the little grate in the Infirmary that looks upon the Alter, which shews the devotion she had to be as near her Beloved in Bl^d Sacram^t as was possible even in y^e time of her repose which was always but short not being able to ly many howres in bed but was forc'd to rise every day to the very last, she was al that time so continually in prayer, that even when she took some little sustinance, she was observ'd, every morsel she put in her mouth to lift up her eyes toward heaven where her heart already was, and whither her pure soul was shortly to take it's flight. The night of y^e feast of y^e Ephiphani she receiv'd Extream unction and ye next morning most devoutly upon her kneese she receiv'd her holy Viaticum haveing her senses perfect to y^e last moment y^t she gave up her spirit into y^e hands of her Creator, y^e 9. of Jan: 1704 about two o'clock in y^e morning. in y^e 53. year of her age and 37 of her Profession.

Yet least thrò: human frailty anything shou'd hinder her speedy arrival to the eternal fruition of God, Let us according to our obligation to her, offer up our prayers in reciting a Deprofundis. this being her Aniversary Day.

She was a most useful, and edifying Religious, and remarkable for her perfect Submission to the wishes and orders of Superiors. Being endowed with great Prudence she was capable of discharging the duties of any office, and when Rev^d Mother Prioress suggested any new one to her, her only answer ever was, "Do with me whatever your Reverence pleases". When Infirmarian she watched over the sick with the most tender attention, and performed herself the little services most repugnant to nature with the greatest sweetness, LXXI. 1784. Anno Domini 1784 June 13th Departed this life our dear religious Mother, R^d Mother Mary Magdalen Johnson. of the holy Cross. She was Prioress 18 years being until her death.

This Venerable Religious very much resembled her Saintly Predecessor our most honored Rev^d Mother Justina Gascoigne. Mother Mary Benedict Hardwidge was the Mistress of Novices when the writer of this (M.T.C. McDonald) was in the Noviceship, who was a young Religious when Mother Mary Magdalen filled the office of Prioress; and she has often heard her speak of her many virtues, her Spirit of Mortification, and Prayer, her calmness and union with God amidst her sufferings, and pains. She was subject to very severe head-achs, which often disabled her from lying down when in Bed, and this time she spent in Prayer, resting her head at the side of her Bed—She communicated her sweet Spirit to her religious Daughters, who found in her a solace under their trials, as well as a guide in their Path to Perfection—To their deep regret God called her pure Soul to her everlasting reward in the 19th year of her superiority. LXXII. 1789. Anno Domini 1789 January 17th departed this life our dear religious Mother, Mother Xaveria Simmes.

Rev^d Mother (Prioress) Xavier Simmes came to our Community from that in Pontoise of the same order, these Religious being dispersed by agreement, some time before the Revolution commenced in France. She was a venerable, and respectable Religious, but did not undertake the Observance of the Constitutions which she wished to have done at her entrance being too infirm and advanced in years, and soon became so sickly, that after three years had elapsed it pleased Almighty God to call her to himself, and she received all the last Sacraments and had her senses to the last. She edified all by her Requiescat in Pace.

LXXIII. 1789. Anno Domini 1789 November 22^d Departed this life our dear religious Mother, R^d Mother Mary Clare Bond of Jesus. She was Prioress five years being until her death.

It was found that this dear Rev^d Mother Mary Clare Bond of Jesus, had a Cancer in her Breast which she had never discovered during her life. It was her earnest wish to have had the Comfort of the Perpetual Adoration of the most blessed Sacrament introduced into the Community before she died, as it was also that of her Daughters. But the Revolution then coming on in France, she made the entire Abandonment and Sacrifice of that; and every other holy desire into the divine hands, still hoping that in time God would grant that happiness to this Community. She lived thirty three or four y^{rs} in religion, and died at the age of fifty five. Most of the Clothes which had been given to her at her Profession were still good, when she departed this life.

One of the first who departed this life in our Convent in Paris known to me, was the dear, and ever to be lamented Rev^d Mother Mary Clare Bond Prioress. She had endeavored like S^t Teresa to attach herself to her beloved Jesus, by her constant, and earnest pursuit of the Cross, which having found, she gave full convincing proofs to all of it by her courageous Patience in supporting many trials, and afflicting sufferings, which only terminated with her Death. Her life was passed in the utmost fidelity to the strong Vocation with which she entered Religion, of seeking God in the interior of her soul, and therefore she found how truly it is said viz. "Taste and see how sweet is [our or the †] Lord."

She fulfilled several important offices in the Community such as Subprioress, Mistress of Novices, and Cellerere, and near the end of her life that of Superior, in which office she ended her life having been Prioress only five years. During that short space of time she gave so much satisfaction in the whole course of her conduct; and especially with regard to the Spirituals, as to leave an impression which can never be effaced but by Death.

Mother Mary Clare Bond was ordered the year before her Death or thereabouts, to commit to writing the state of her interior which she did, but as she had no opportunity of writing such private things but by stealth, she took the time in which she could be most spared,

* Joseph Milburn Semmes (gd-son of Marmaduke S.) of Charles co., Maryland, had by his wife, Rachel Prat(h)er, three daus. sent to the Benedictine school at Pontoise, 1754-64—Rachel, Mary Anne and Clare. Rachel (Xaveria of the text) prof. 11 Sept. 1758 at Pontoise, at the dissolution of that abbey in 1786 joined the English Sepulchrines at Liège (where the last of four other sisters was a nun), but a few months later went to the English Benedictines in Paris. Clare, a novice at Pontoise in 1765, was not professed there. See also LXVII. and XCVI. Only one dau., Eleanor, married, whilst the only son, Joseph, became a Jesuit. The family is represented on our Roll by Mr. Raphael T. Semmes of Savannah, Georgia. From 1862-64 the name of another was on all tongues—the redoutable confederate Captain Raphael Semmes (later Admiral) of the Alabama. Both descend from James, bro. of Joseph Milburn S. † In the original it is how.

and alone, which was generally at Night. The Weather being extremely cold as she stood at her Window she was overtaken with the sciatic Gout in her thigh which became contracted, so as to cause her violent anguish which encreased on her till her Decease Nov^{br} 22^d 1789. These writings it is thought she finished, but they were never exposed to the view of the Community. One or two Persons only read them. Rev^d Mr Edgeworth to whom they were given took them away—he was afterwards if not at that time the extraordinary of the Community. They contained many events, and the description of a Soul led by God quite above the ordinary way—

She was a great admirer of the Instructions of Rev^d Father Baker, and of S^t John of the Cross. She was not singular, but constantly followed regularity. Rising to the divine office &c &c—She was a great lover of holy Poverty, and was ever thirsting after the divine Union of the Soul with God, the sight of her when she was preparing for the holy Communion, or going to receive, was sufficient to recollect and inflame those who beheld her. She told me that she has found her soul so inflamed with Ardor when she had obtained leave to communicate, that if she had had a fire to pass through in going up to the Choir Grate, she should not have considered the difficulty. Almighty God inspired into Mother Mary Clare Bond such strong and ardent desires for the Conversion of Souls, and in particular for that of England that her Prayers were continual for that purpose, and she became as a suffering Victim before the throne of God for the good of her fellow Creatures. In every Community of Women as well as Men there are divers spirits, so there were some very good Religious who not understanding the ways of an interior life by their own experience, did not therefore altogether appear satisfied with this dear Mother, and on that account were not so free with her as those who were better acquainted. Those who freely communicated their spiritual concerns ever found much satisfaction, & encouragement in their Interior.

In her Person she was venerable, sweet, and agreeable, of middle stature; rather full in habit, and ever pleasant and joyful, and although she was confined so long in the same posture on account of her surprising and acute sufferings, she retained to the last moments the same disposition of mind, and departed with a countenance which appeared to shine with a beautiful ray and left an assurance in the minds of those who surrounded her Bed, of her happy state. She was in a very particular manner devoted to the most adorable Trinity and she requested some of them to recite that Litany whilst she was in her Agony which was done; and she died when it was finished, on Sunday about four o'clock in the Afternoon, also to S^t Joseph. Mother Mary Clare Bond was about fifty-two years of age or thereabouts. On account of a report that the people intended to steal the Body in the Night, the Nuns had the Grave opened again about eight days after her Death, and transported it to another part of the Cemetery at the foot of a Mount which they named Mount Calvary near to the Chapel of our b^d Lady. Requiescat in Pace.

LXXIV. 1792. Anno Domini 1792. March 30th Departed this life our dear religious Sister Anne Benedict Jones of our Lady of Mercy.

Mother Anne Benedict Jones was admitted into our Community at a very early age, and had lived a most religious life about forty years. She had fulfilled the office of Cellerere above twenty years, and departed this life in that of Infirmarian when she was about fifty three years of age. She was an example of every virtue, most pious & exact in all religious observance, had lived in religion n^r 40 y^{rs} aged 57—Requiescat in Pace.

LXXV. 1792. Anno Domini 1792 Sep^{br} 30th Sr Mary Elizabeth Kirby of the Nativity.

The next Deceased was Sister Mary Elizabeth Kirby, who ever had a fervent zeal for all religious duties, but not good health, although she fulfilled all regularities until a short time before her death. She retained her senses till a few weeks before, when she was deprived of them by a Fever which flew to the Brain, but they returned so as to enable her to receive the last Sacraments. She was Infirmarian & very charitable to the sick. Requiescat in Pace.

LXXVI. 1793. Anno Domini 1793 January 7th Departed this life our d^r religious Sister, Sister Agnes Norris of our Lady of Mercy. Lay Sister, had lived about thirty years in the religious State, and was about sixty when she departed this life. She retained all her senses to the last, and devoutly received all the Last Sacraments. She was a very pious religious sister—but rather delicate. Requiescat in Pace.

LXXVII. 1793. Anno Domini 1793 April 1st Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Sister Martina Bibby of the blessed Sacrament—Lay Sister. Jubilarian.

The next who departed this life was Sister Martina Bibby Lay Sister, who lived to the advanced age of 84. She retained all her senses to the last day of her life, which had been spent in a continual observance of the Rule and Constitutions, and the sweet and peaceful dispositions in which she lived and died, although she had been bed ridden for several years, convinced all that she made a most happy end. Requiescat in Pace.

LXXVIII. 1794. Anno Domini 1794 October 13th Departed this life our dear religious Sister Sister Lucy Parkinson of the most blessed Sacrament.

Sister Mary Lucy Parkinson the next who departed this life, came with the last to Religion, and was professed with the last mentioned also the one lived in our Community about seven years, and the latter about eight. They were both young, six or seven and twenty when they departed this life. This dear sister died when the Community were in Prison. She was ever a most regular, and devout Soul, and appeared to be very much favoured by heaven. She died under the care of the good Nuns of Hotel Dieu—as she could not have proper care taken of her in the Tower of Vincennes, she was removed there, & died about 2 months after. Requiescat in Pace.

LXXIX. 1795. Anno Domini 1795 October 10th Departed this life our dear religious Sister Sr Mary Knight of the sacred hearts of Jesus and Mary Lay Sister.

Sister Mary Knight was the next who departed this life. She came over from Paris in a sickly condition, and only lived three Months after the arrival of the Community in London. She had given every satisfaction by the regularity of her life, was very religious & pious, & died most happily having rec^d the last Sacraments. She was buried at Marylebone and 3 of our good Fathers attended her to the Grave, with a french Priest. Requiescat in Pace.

LXXX. 1799. Anno Domini 1799 March 24th Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Sr Mary Gertrude Parkinson of the holy Ghost.

This dear Sister wished to enter our Community when she was about 15 years of age, and as she was considered too young, was placed for some time in a french School to learn french. She was admitted to the habit about sixteen, and made her Profession before she was full eighteen. She had been drawn to the service of Almighty God by very strong desires from her Infancy, and she told the Infirmarian when she was near her end, that she never remembered any others from five years old. Sister Mary Gertrude Parkinson was very much advanced in an Interior life, and enlightened by God in the knowledge, and value of his Gifts and Graces, and experienced in her soul much of what is written in the description of the Paths of an Interior life, and of true and real Contemplation. She was Grave, sweet, and agreeable, rather delicate, but of so fervent a spirit that she followed all regularity except when compelled to any dispensation from it; either through Infirmary, or Obedience. She had a weak Chest and was unable to recite the divine office in a loud Tone; therefore was taught to play on the Organ, and in that office of Organist she died. Her Death was answerable to her life attended with much peace; she had been long suffering in a Consumption which she suffered with joyful resignation retaining the use of her senses until she had received all the Sacraments with great devotion, and edification.

Sister Mary Gertrude was interred in a Cemetery which was made at Nash-house Marnhull Dorset, but when the Community had resolved under the Obedience, and with the permission of the R^t Rev^d Bishop Sharrock to remove to Cannington, they thought proper also to remove the remains of the Body, and carry them there. Accordingly with his Lordship's consent, the Nuns had the Grave opened it being full 8 years since their Interment, and they were enclosed in a Case, and brought to Cannington by the first Members of the Community who arrived at Court house in the beginning of Feby 1807. This Case was always kept privately in the Library until the first Death, and then it was put into the same Grave placed on the Coffin of dear Mother Placid Brindle, April the 27th or 28th the same year.

Sister Mary Gertrude was rather under the common size and of a very religious appearance, and the last professed at Champ d'Alouette in Paris. Aged 29. Professed 10. Requiescat in pace.

LXXXI. 1807. Anno Domini 1807 April 25th Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Mother Mary Placid Brindle of the most blessed Trinity.

She was a truly pious and respectable Mother, very much endowed with the Spirit of our holy Rule. She had filled several offices, and the last was Mistress of Novices in which she gave real satisfaction to her Superiors. This dear Mother had bad health, and had been in a suffering state most part of her religious life, but was very remarkable for her constant attendance at Choir duties &c and within a week of her Death was found in the Morning on the Ground trying to dress herself, and in the utmost fear that she should not arrive in time at the Choir for Mattins.

She was much devoted to our blessed Lady. She retained all her senses until she had received the last Sacraments of the Church in a most devout manner, and although she suffered much when asked how she found herself gave this answer—Not amiss. Mother Mary Placid Brindle was the first Religious buried at Cannington, and interred in the Cave under the Chapel. She departed in great peace and apparent comfort—was about 68 years of age and 40 of Profession. Requiescat in Pace.

LXXXII. 1807. Anno Domini 1807 August 31st Departed this life our dear religious Mother, Rev^d Mother Teresa Johnson of the holy Ghost.

This dear Mother was elected at the death of dear Mother Mary Clare Bond, and in the year after the commencement of the french Revolution. She therefore had, it must be allowed, the largest share of sufferings and afflictions of any who had Governed before her, and it was evident that Almighty God had prepared such a soul as hers, to uphold the Community under the pressure of those particular severe trials which he thought best in his Wisdom, and Goodness to send at that time.

Being yet but young when she was charged with the Office of Superior, she found herself bereft of all the advantages which former Prioress's had had with regard to the state of regularity, and support of the authority of Superiors, for very soon after her Election the Convent was seized, broken open, and stripped of all, converted into a Prison, and filled with Prisoners of both sexes. The worthy Confessor of the Community Rev^d Mr Nayler forced away even before he was recovered from a fit of sickness, (* with Blisters on his legs). Thus things became worse, and worse, until at length the Community were transferred from Paris to the Castle of Vincennes the account of which transactions are written elsewhere.

* This is in the original, but something has been written over it, but illegible.

The Good Hope Cunningham

Then it pleased God to cast her down by a violent Illness which began by bleeding at the Nose, and this continued a long time until it deprived her of her senses and her skin turned quite yellow. No necessary assistance could be had in such a place as they confined the Nuns, in which were four Rooms on one floor locked up, and at the top of the Tower, her Illness proceeded from fatigue and affliction. The Religious could only hope and pray which they did, and to their great comfort God spared this dear Mother at that time of such great need, as they were deprived of every Spiritual help from without, and in expectation of being put to death without any previous notice. The great Goodness of Almighty God supported this d^r Superior and the Community by a singular Grace during that dreadful time, and at length restored her to her senses. The sweet peace and joy which was painted on her Countenance infused itself into all around her. In fact this disposition of mind was habitual to her, and was her support through all her afflictions and sufferings until her death.

Mother Teresa Joseph was niece to our Saintly Mother Mary Magdalen Johnson. She had received from God an excellent capacity, so that when she undertook a religious state, she made by her fidelity to her good Vocation great progress in an Interior life, and was an example to all who knew her for regularity and zeal. She was of a most peaceful, cheerful temper, the life and soul of the Community, and filled with burning ardor and love for our holy Institute, Intern Prayer, and Contemplation ever seeking the union of the Soul with God, and saying with Father Baker—“Mind your call that's all in all”.

This dear Rev^d Mother passed herself through the ways which she inculcated to others whom she instructed and advised, and she had good experience in those heavenly Paths, her total confidence in God enabled her to fulfil the office of Superior in very difficult circumstances, until she had gained an establishment for the Community in Dorsetshire—when transferred to Somersetshire and after their arrival at Cannington she had still greater fatigue to endure—the house being in a very unfinished state as little had been done before she arrived with the Community. Soon after when our Confessor Rev^d Abbé Premord was speaking with her & he observed that she was in tears and on asking her the cause she replied “Oh! I was thinking on the happiness of death when I shall be united to My God”—Rev^d Mother Teresa Joseph Johnson when in Paris had been under the Spiritual direction of the Saintly Abbé Edgeworth who was extraordinary Confessor to our Community, and had from that time kept up an occasional correspondence with that enlightened Director on the affairs of her soul—he recommended the works of S^t John of the Cross as her Guide in the obscure Path of Prayer into which God had then led her. Her Spirit of discernment and Prudence were admirable; indeed she was highly Gifted both by Nature and Grace, her Countenance expressed a mixture of dignity, sweetness, good sense, and endearing sanctity.

But God in his unerring Wisdom deprived the Community of this our worthy Mother, at a time when to all human appearance she was most wanted. She had long wished to establish the great Rule of our holy Father in our Community with perfect Enclosure, which our unsettled state since quitting France had interrupted. On our arrival at Cannington she hoped to effect both these objects—The fatigue annexed to the new settlement of the Community in all appearance brought on her last Illness—she suffered great pains which were supposed to proceed from an obstruction caused by the Stone, which terminated in Jaundice—but still preserved in her soul a constant peaceful application to the divine presence. With humble hope she resigned her Soul into the hands of God whom she had so faithfully served, having a sweet smile upon her face, about 4 Months after the removal of the Community to Cannington. Aged 55—Professed 33—

This dear Mother appeared to help us even after death, for those who had to lift her Body into the Coffin found it so heavy that they could scarcely move it, entreating therefore that she would assist them and renewing their efforts the Body seemed to be quite light, and was placed in the Coffin without any further difficulty—A little before she expired whilst the Religious were surrounding her Bed & the Confessor Abbé Premord reading the Agonising Prayers her countenance brightened, & she exclaimed as if she beheld some beautiful object—Stop! Stop! Requiescat in Pace.

LXXXIII. 1809. Anno Domini 1809 March 13th Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Sr Amandus Cooper of the Nativity—Lay Sister.

This dear Sister was a very good Religious, but Almighty God was pleased to permit that she should suffer from derangement of her reason, notwithstanding she retained a great love for the holy religious State, and performed her duties in the very best manner she was able—Apparently this was the manner in which God was pleased to purify her soul—She died very peacefully and devoutly after receiving Extreme Unction—Aged 84 and 60 of Profession. Requiescat in Pace.

LXXXIV. 1809. Anno Domini 1809 March 17th Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Sr Mary Agnes Towsey of the holy Ghost.

She was not very healthy, but very fervent and useful to the Community especially at the divine Office, and in attending the sick being Infirmarian—Her Strength was however not equal to her good Will, and she was seized with a Cold by rising in the Night to wait on the Sick, which was so severe, that it threw her into a Decline soon after she arrived at Cannington. She received all the last Sacraments with great presence of mind, and died in much peace—although she suffered a strong Agony. Sister Mary Agnes was 36 years of age 6 Professed. Requiescat in Pace.

LXXXV. 1809. Anno Domini 1809 October 3^d Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Mother Mary Scholastica Greenway of the sacred hearts of Jesus & Mary.

This dear Mother came from Marnhull to Cannington in a poor state of health. She was considered recovered of many Infirmities which she had labored under some years, but the change of air did not agree with her. She soon fell back, and had many inward Complaints which at length brought on a Decline. She was a most fervent and useful Member of the Community, and had a very strong voice for the Choir. Æt: 49. Requiescat in Pace.

LXXXVI. 1811. Anno Domini 1811 Feby 17th Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Sr Mary Magdalen Glynn of the holy Cross.

This dear Sister came to Religion in the year 1791 at the end of that year, and about two years before the Com^{ty} was sent away from their Convent in Paris, at the Revolution. On account of the disturbances in France she was not admitted to her Clothing, but having a strong desire to become a Member of our Community she would not quit, but resolved to share in whatever God should permit the Nuns to suffer—She remained in Prison accordingly with them, & when they were set at liberty accompanied them to England, and was clothed the year after the establishment of the Community at Marn-hull.

Sister Mary Magdalen had very bad health, and suffered much with great courage and edification until her death—During the Period in which she exercised the office of Infirmarian, a Cancer in her breast made its appearance, & after consultation she was advised to have it cut out—She submitted to the Operation with heroic patience and as they spoke of holding her she said "No my dear, there is no need Nothing holds so fast as the love of God". In fact she sat in her chair erect, with a Crucifix in one hand, & a bag of Relics in the other—She fainted during the operation from excruciating pain but soon revived—She lived some time after, but the Complaint in her system remained, and the Cancer broke out again of which she died, aged 49—Professed 14-23—Requiescat in pace.

LXXXVII. 1812. Anno Domini 1812 June 23^d Departed this life our dear religious Sister—Mother Anna Maria Thickness.

This dear Sister came from Pontoise, and had made her Profession in that Benedictine Convent. About eight or nine years after, the Religious were to be dispersed and go to other houses—and she wished to join our Community. She was admitted with the intention both on the side of the Committee and her own, to engage to our observances and Constitutions. But finding upon trial that she was unequal on account of her bad state of health, she was permitted to remain and follow Regularity as far as she was able. Mother Anna Maria had only a short Illness previous to her Death, received all the last Sacraments with great devotion, and died very happily—Aged 59—Professed about 34.

LXXXVIII. 1813. Anno Domini 1813 April 26th Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Rev^d Mother Mary Bernard Frost of the holy Ghost. She was Prioress four years or near, being until her Death—

This dear Mother was favored by Almighty God with an early

Vocation to the Religious State, and came to the Convent at Marnhull when she was not yet seventeen—she was of a very mild and sweet disposition, and of a grave turn, but had very poor health excepting the two first years. When she went to Cannington it soon appeared that the air was too sharp for her Constitution for her health grew worse, and therefore she fell gradually into a Decline of which she died— She received all the Sacraments of the Church in great sentiments of Piety. Her care and attention to promote the Observance of Regularity &c rendered her very dear to the Community, and her character was the love of God, and her Neighbour. Requiescat in Pace.

LXXXIX. 1815. Anno Domini 1815 March the 1st Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Sister Mary Bridget Strawbridge of the sacred hearts of Jesus & Mary—Lay Sister—

She was very young when she came to Religion, and was a very good and faithful Lay Sister, and it may be said of her that she fulfilled much in a short time. She fell into a Decline under which she labored near two years, and after receiving the last Sacraments of the Church died very happily. Requiescat in Pace.

XC. 1816. Anno Domini 1816 October 28th Departed this life our dear religious sister—Rev^d Mother Teresa Hagan of the sacred hearts of Jesus & Mary—Subprioress and Jubilarian. This dear Mother was a Native of Maryland.

She exercised the office of Subprioress during twenty or thirty years, and with great zeal in every way that her weak health enabled her to do. She was a most venerable saintly Religious, exact to the very moment in all her duties; her spirit of Prayer, and constant union of her soul with God, was the divine source from which she drew all her strength, hence she was always serene, and the bright example of every virtue. She exercised the Office of Mistress of Juniors for many years until her happy death which took place in the 80th year of her Age. Requiescat in Pace.

XCI. 1816. Anno Domini 1816 November 27th Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Mother Anne Joseph Gee of the holy family—Jubilarian.

This dear Mother came to Religion when she was about 14 years of age, and was admitted, and remained in the Postulant Habit until she was of age to be Clothed, and Professed which was about 18. She was a remarkable innocent suffering soul, quite a Martyr to the most painful sort of Gout which she bore with exemplary patience. Though delicate she was exceeding fervent, and became very serviceable especially in all Choir duties. She had been Portress and Librarian many years, and gave great satisfaction to Superiors in these Offices. Mother Ann Joseph labored under long suffering from a violent Cough which occasioned the rupture of a blood Vessel, and she could only receive the holy Oils before her death. She had long been making a special preparation for her last moment, and although too weak to walk to Mass was daily carried to the Choir in a Chair, and she had received the holy Communion if not the day of her death, at least a day or two before—

She was favored by Almighty God with many interior Graces, and also endured many interior Crosses throughout her religious Career. She was much devoted to our blessed Lady and Saint Joseph. Requiescat in Pace.

XCII. 1820. Anno Domini 1820 January 21st Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Sr Anne Teresa Bagnal of the blessed Trinity. Lay Sister—Jubilarian.

She was a good religious Sister, and served the Community above twenty years in the office of Cook—She had good health until near the end of her life, received all the Sacraments of the Church, and died happily at the advanced age of 80. Requiescat in Pace.

XCIII. 1821. Anno Domini 1821 April the 30th, Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Mother Mary Joseph Worsley of the most blessed Sacrament.

This dear Mother came to religion rather advanced in years, (about forty)—Notwithstanding she was enabled to render service many years to the Community. She was very humble in her comportment, and she fulfilled the office of the Wardrobe almost until her death. Requiescat in Pace.

XCIV. 1823. Anno Domini 1823 March 21st, Departed this life our dear religious sister, Rev^d Mother Mary Benedict Hardwidge of the Sacred hearts of Jesus & Mary.

This dear Mother was a peaceful, mild, and tender soul, and in these dispositions passed through her religious Career. She was very delicate, and never able to undergo great fatigue. She fulfilled the office of Touriere many years in Paris and after she came to England, and in the latter part of her life that of Prioress which office she held about five years—

She was singular for her universal Charity towards all—She died of an Apoplectic stroke on the day of her feast our holy Father Saint Benedict, having received all the last Sacraments. Aged 64—Professed 42. Requiescat in Pace.

XCV. 1823. Anno Domini 1823 August 24th Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Sister Mary Magdalen Knight of the most blessed Sacrament.

She was from her Infancy remarkably innocent in her manners, and of a very sweet mild disposition. Having also a solid judgement, she made great progress during the years of her education in the different branches of useful learning, but particularly in the most important of all, that of the science of the Saints. Her two elder sisters being Pensioners in the Convent of the Austin Nuns, she was sent by her virtuous Parents to join them, and thence with a younger sister to finish her education with the Franciscan Nuns. On her return home she was a Model of Piety to her family, and exact to all that duty demanded of her. She never seemed to neglect her private devotions, and approached frequently to the holy Sacraments. Some few years after she left the Convent, her two elder Sisters entered this our Monastery to take the holy habit of religion; this separation cost her a severe trial, but the Sovereign Master called them, and she was perfectly submissive. She did not then shew any inclination to follow their example, but continued to live an edifying life in the bosom of her family by whom she was tenderly, and justly beloved. Though her Paternal house was then situated very near our Convent she never importuned the Nuns with visits, but constantly exhibited a discreet, wise, prudent, and amiable conduct towards all, and on all occasions. She seemed to increase in Piety as she advanced in Years. By the affliction of losing her excellent Mother in the 27th Year of her Age, the chief direction of the family devolved upon her, but this did not prevent her from giving herself much to Prayer.

When she was about 30 years of age she conceived a strong desire of consecrating the remainder of her life in the most perfect manner to her Creator: these pious inclinations greatly augmented after holy Communion, but created great alarm amongst all who knew the delicacy of her Constitution. Her desires were too ardent to be restrained by these fears, and after mature deliberation she trusted entirely in the assistance of God, whom alone she considered in this important step. Our Community was at that time reduced to so small a number by the rapid decease of many of the most able Members, that we apprehended being obliged to join some other Community or return to France, but the tender Providence of God ordained otherwise, and inspired several young Persons of good Vocations to prefer our poor Convent to many more flourishing Monasteries; of this number was the youngest Sister of our d^r Sister Mary Magdalen—who entered with her on the 24th October 1818. She was then in the 32^d year of her age, took the habit the 29th, and began her religious Career with the utmost fervor. All who knew her extreme delicacy of Constitution were surprised at her courageous resolution, indeed her very weakly appearance seemed to prognosticate that she would never have strength to persevere, however her fervor which never relented carried her through all the duties of her Noviceship with surprising fervor, and ease. She was a Model of the most perfect exactitude in every religious duty—mild, humble, and docile to all, and her health apparently improved though we never expected that she would be otherwise than extremely delicate, and require some exemptions with regard to diet in Lent and Advent, as she could not fast without difficulty, but stood in need of animal food. The excellent Vocation which God had given S^r Mary Magdalen supplied for the debility of her Constitution, and she was unanimously admitted to her Clothing which took place the 29th of April 6 months from her reception of the habit. She began her strict Noviceship with increased fervor, embraced little abject employments which did not require much strength with cheerful alacrity, and was scrupulously exact to the least, as well as the most important of her duties, always inclined to do more than her strength would permit, which required a watchful eye to keep pace with her fervent inclinations—The time of her Probation being nearly expired, she was unanimously admitted to her holy Profession by the Community. About this time Almighty God was pleased to let her experience the weakness of her Constitution by sending her a serious Indisposition which mostly proceeded from debility, but this did not cool the ardor of her desires to consummate her sacrifice, and having recovered her usual state of health, and calmed her fears with regard to the undertaking being above her strength, she settled everything with our Superior who was then the R^t Rev^d D^r Collingridge (a Man of the greatest Prudence, and extreme Propagator of religious discipline). With our Father Confessor a very holy Man she likewise consulted. Both being satisfied as to the solidity of her Vocation, she commenced her Retreat animated with those heroic dispositions calculated to render her a pleasing, and acceptable Victim to God. She pronounced her solemn Vows on the 13th of June 1820 in the 34th year of her age, and we may justly hope that the entire sacrifice of herself was ratified in heaven. When the usual time of Retreat was expired, the Com^{ty} assembled in the Workroom after Dinner according to our custom to take her out of her silence, and then in embracing one of the Nuns she was so transported with joy at the thought of what God had done for her, that it was too much for her weak frame to bear, and she was obliged to take something to revive her. S^r Mary Magdalen continued to edify the Nuns as much as she had done her Companions in the Noviceship by the greatest fidelity in every duty, never meddling with things which did not concern her, extremely prudent and discreet in all her actions, most sparing in her words, always composed in her exterior, preserving the same religious Modesty, gravity, and equanimity of temper. She bore the Cold and other hardships of our holy state with surprising alacrity and courage, and never made complaints whatever her weak & delicate frame might feel. She was employed in the Noviceship as a sort of second Mistress. She won the hearts of the Novices by her mild, sweet, compassionate conduct towards them, and in her they had a model of every religious virtue. Though unable to undergo many vigorous exertions, she made herself however useful to the Community by working writing & painting all which she did well. She had some severe interior trials and supported them with peace & fortitude, still the favorite occupation of her heart was in the heavenly exercise of Prayer. In the discharge of this great duty she was most exact and fervent, retiring to her Cell when Obedience did not call her out of it there to entertain herself alone with her heavenly Spouse—The time of Prayer was indeed that of Spiritual harvest, she appeared to pray with the greatest fervor—Her religious comportment; her Countenance, and her eyes modestly cast down evinced the recollection of her heart in all places of Silence, but particularly before she entered the Choir to recite the divine Office—& when sickness prevented her attendance, she performed this great duty privately with the utmost respect & devotion and as much as possible at the same time as the Choir. She frequently read our holy Rule and endeavored to conform herself to it's Spirit. Almighty God having lent us this Model of virtue for a short time, was pleased to send her her last Illness and prepare her more perfectly for the entire possession of himself—About two years and half after her holy Profession Nov^{br} 1822 she was obliged to leave the Noviceship, and take entirely to the Infirmary and here she displayed if possible an encrease of every virtue—An entire abandonment of herself into the hands of her divine Spouse, and to the will of her Superiors either for life or death. She never uttered the least word of Complaint, or evinced the least sign of impatience, feeling and compassionate for all—always extremely exact to her present duties, spending most of her time in Prayer, holy recollection, & sweet union of her soul with God. She made herself a little Corner in the Infirmary which she screened off by her Bed Curtain, and there she retired in times of recollection as she would do in her Cell—When a little recovered she made herself as useful as she could by working, copying Books, making flowers &c.—always composed, and perfectly resigned to whatever it pleased God to do with her, receiving the Nuns with much sweetness when they wished to visit her, and quite contented to be left alone—Her debilitated state was such that she could not even walk to the Choir, and being very little, extremely thin, & consequently very light, she was carried in arms like an Infant. She would stand at the Infirmary door in hopes of hearing some one pass who would perform this charitable office, for which she was always most grateful. She said her only wish was to have sufficient strength to enable her to get to the Choir but she contrived in general to go there twice every day excepting when by obedience she did not go to Mass, at which she was always most desirous of assisting. She was still, as frequently before, her Illness very earnest with Mother Prioress to let her do some Penance, always thinking herself the most unworthy Creature living, who neither did good to herself, or any one else. These sentiments of profound humility appeared to encrease as she drew nearer her end, her words breathed the most sincere & lively conviction of her own nothingness, the deepest regret for her past miserable life as she really thought it, and the little profit which she had made of the inestimable grace of her vocation to Religion—These were the real & genuine sentiments of her contrite and innocent heart which God will never despise, but this was joined to the most tender hope & confidence in the infinite merits, and mercies of our divine Redeemer.

It cannot be said whether she really had a Presentiment of her near approaching happy Death, but about a fortnight or three weeks before, she collected all her little things (which were truly very little) and gave up to Mother Prioress what she no longer needed. Her principal care was to prepare her heart to meet it's heavenly Bridegroom by the greatest diligence in purifying her Conscience, and removing the smallest doubt or stain which might appear in the pure and sacred eyes of God. She was still anxious to expiate these her miseries as she thought them by some voluntary Mortifications naming some little things which she thought would not hurt her health—She continued receiving the holy Communion twice, & sometimes three or four times every week, except when she was prevented by an unusual degree of weakness—On the 12th of June 1823 Sister Mary Magdalen was taken more seriously ill but revived sufficiently to hear Mass & communicate with the Nuns on the feast of the Assumption—She had been anxious to finish for this great day four Bouquets of Lilies and had been helping another young Nun with them who was then in the Infirmary. The following day being Sunday she was so much oppressed that we sent for the Doctor who had been in the habit of calling upon her occasionally. He ordered a Blister which revived her a little but her weakness encreased, and we feared much that she would not last long. She evinced the same tranquillity of mind, sweetness of temper, and perfect resignation to God's holy will in all things. On the Saturday Morning when the Infirmary called upon her earlier than usual she found her much changed, but in such saintly dispositions that it softened the sorrow we felt at the prospect of losing so soon our beloved Sister—On coming to her she said—“Oh! I am too happy I have never deserved to be so”. When Mother Prioress came to the Infirmary she found by her death-like Countenance that no time was to be lost, and desired the Confessor might be called, and the last Sacraments administered to her immediately. She received the awful Summons with the most perfect sentiments of peace, & composure of mind. On the Confessor's asking her if she was willing to receive the holy Oils she answered “that she desired to do what her Superiors thought proper for her”. When she enquired if anything gave her pain she said Nothing, but spoke a few words in private to the Confessor. She received the last Sacraments with a heart penetrated with holy Compunction from the most sincere conviction of her own great unworthiness joined to a tender confidence in the merits of her Redeemer, and animated by ardent love. She answered all the Prayers herself with the utmost fervor, and was continually pouring forth her pure contrite heart before God by the most tender ejaculations, devoutly kissing her crucifix, and lifting up her eyes frequently to those Mansions of bliss whither she was soon (as we hope) going to wing her happy flight. She had the most perfect use of all her faculties, and put Mother Prioress in mind of some Memorandums about the Directory of which she had the care, in order to prevent any Mistakes—A heavenly smile frequently appeared in her Countenance, and the most perfect peace reigned in her heart. She spoke of death with great cheerfulness and composure of mind, and continued apparently in an almost uninterrupted sweet union of her Soul with God. When Night came on she said that she wanted no one to sit up with her saying that she would call if she grew worse—and passed it in great peace & quietness, excepting once something appeared to disturb her a little. She desired the Sister who watched by her to sprinkle her with holy water, and was quite satisfied. She continued in the same sentiments of peace, joy, & love attentive even to the least things which she knew to be our custom, and expressed that something was wanting being without her Night Girdle. When Father Confessor begged her to pray for him—“I base Creature,”

she replied (flipping her finger & thumb) "I have never done that much good in all my life". Rev^d Mother desired her to put all her trust in the mercies & merits of her Redeemer. "O! yes" (she answered) "there is my only hope". A joy appeared in her Countenance when she was told by M^o Prioress that the holy Sacrifice had been offered for her, and that she was going to hear Mass for the same intention as she could not do so herself. Sr M. Magdalen then requested Mother Prioress to make the intention to her, and it cannot be doubted that she united hers, as well as she could. She had had before a sort of Agony, from the great difficulty she experienced in breathing, but was then revived. Before the Confessor left her to say Mass he gave her the last Absolution which again she received with the most lively compunction and fervor possible, and put him in mind to give her a Penance—She had three sisters in the Community to whom she carried herself always as to the rest of her religious Sisters, and not the slightest mark of natural affection ever appeared in these her last moments. When the youngest who had entered the Convent with her, was weeping near her, she sweetly checked her and said, "It was quite Nonsense to cry"—On Mother Prioress's recommending her to renew the solemn Consecration she had made of herself to God, and to tell him that had she a thousand lives she would dedicate them all to his service she continued repeating in a kind of transport of fervor—" O! yes that I would, that I would, that I would!" . . . On Sunday afternoon her Countenance appeared unusually pleasant, her heart remained in perfect peace, and breathing the most fervent Aspirations to her divine Spouse. About two o'clock in the afternoon she sent to Mother Prioress to know if she was to make her Mental Prayer as usual, neglecting nothing to the last which she thought herself capable of doing. Soon after this she fell into a gentle calm agony but her heart appeared still to pray; the difficulty of breathing still gradually increased till she breathed her last, and resigned her pure soul into the hands of her merciful Redeemer, about four o'clock on Sunday the 24th of August the feast of S^t Bartholomew 1823 in the 37th year of her Age and fourth of her religious Profession. A sweet smile appeared on her countenance after her death, and her hands which at first grew stiff became perfectly flexible, and remained so till her Burial which was performed on the 28th. Our worthy Superior and Bishop felt severely the loss of our dear little Sister, and said publicly that he had never known so many virtues centered in the same Person as he had witnessed in her, and this observation was made by a Bishop of eminent Piety and great experience.

XCVI. 1824. Anno Domini 1824 June 11th Departed this life, our dear religious Sister, Mother Mary Frances Simmes, Of our blessed Lady of Mercy. Jubilarian. Requiescat in pace.

XCVII. 1829. Anno Domini 1829 November 17th Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Sister Lucy Magdalen Whitechurch of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus & Mary. Requiescat in Pace.

XCVIII. 1831. Anno Domini 1831 November 29th Departed this

St. Wendelin's Convent, Colmar

life our dear religious Mother, Mother Teresa Catherine Macdonald of the Blessed Sacrament. Subprioress.

Mother Teresa Catherine Macdonald was a very interior holy soul known to God, but not much by Creatures. Of a mortified Spirit, but full of Charity for others. She filled the Office of Infirmarian with great comfort to the Community for several years, and worked much in making little useful, and ornamental articles for sale after our arrival in England, to contribute to the support of the Community. On our arrival at Cannington she was made Cellere, and on the death of Rev^d Mother Teresa Joseph Johnson was elected Prioress.

These distracting Offices at the period of our new Building and establishment of Court house was too much for this dear Mother and she sunk under it, but recovered, and survived some years, spending most of her time in Prayer which had always been her element; and in copying and translating Books from french and Italian into English for our Library, and writing Records for the History of our House relative to the french Revolution &c.

She was seized with Pleurisy, and after a few days Illness devoutly receiving the last Sacraments, rendered up her pious Soul to God who had been the sole object of her love on earth. Requiescat in Pace.

XCIX. 1850. Anno Domini December 31st 1850 Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Sister Benedict Roe—Of the sacred Hearts of Jesus & Mary—Lay Sister. Requiescat in Pace.

C. 1845. Anno Domini October 28th 1845 Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Sister Mary Gonzaga Pickering having made her religious Vows on her Death-bed. Requiescat in Pace.

CI. 1853. Anno Domini 1853 January 18th Departed this life our dear religious Sister, Sister Teresa Gertrude Tempest of the holy Names of Jesus & Mary. Requiescat in Pace.

This dear Sister was of the ancient Catholic family of the Tempests; her Father was Stephen Tempest, Broughton Hall in Yorkshire, her Mother Elizabeth Blundell of Ince.

The religious principles of the family were so well known that in consequence, a curious incident occurred during the Period when Catholics were under severe Persecution in England. An unknown Person came to Broughton in the Night-time with a horse and Cart laden with Church-Plate; requesting that the family would receive it, and keep it until demanded. This was never done, and it still remains at Broughton—Sister Teresa Gertrude was remarkable when living in the World for her tender Charity towards the Poor, and though she had not as fully the means after entering the religious state of following her pious attraction, she contrived by making little sacrifices, and requesting her religious Sisters to do the same, to procure them all the comforts she could in addition to the daily charities given at the Turn.

Her Parents lived in a manner suitable to their station in life & large fortune, but always evinced their attachment to our holy Religion, & gave their numerous family which consisted of ten Children every advantage for the first education in our Colleges, and Convents. Our dear Sister finished her education at the Fossé St Victor Convent Paris. The World presented itself to her view in all its charms, but it did not appear to suit her inclination, she determined to quit it to enter the religious state; and wished to make a trial in our Community. She was naturally delicate, quite an interior hidden soul, and so addicted to Prayer & mortification, that the authority of a vigilant, and discreet Superior was always requisite to make her take necessary relaxation, and prevent her from injuring her health. Her spirit of Prayer was indeed so well known in the Community that if any desired some special Prayers should be offered for themselves or others, they had recourse to their dear Sister Teresa Gertrude; who always entered into their views, and took a pious interest in them. The Lay Sister who baked the Bread for the Community especially found (as she said herself) in her a great friend and helpmate before God. She would seek for her when she found that any extra work would trespass upon her usual hours of Prayer, and she was always ready to supply her place before the Altar, and pray in her stead, and for her. She was devoted to our b^d Lady and for many years it had been her practice to keep a little Print taken from a miraculous Picture of her, pinned to her bed Pillow, which she often kissed in the night to remind her of her blessed Mother, and beg her Prayers. She was most laborious and diligent in all duties appointed by holy Obedience, always ready for abject employments, and having a great facility in languages she was most useful to the Community by translating Books from french and Italian, working for the Altar &c. Her love for holy Poverty was admirably conspicuous. Sister Teresa Gertrude was especially attracted to our Community by the Perpetual Adoration, and she became a Model of fervor in the discharge of all its sacred obligations—Almighty God appeared to reward her fidelity in his service by granting her the favor of fulfilling these duties so dear to her heart almost to the last moment, as shall be now related.

During the Christmas holidays she was observed to enter with particular cheerfulness into the little recreations customary at that Season of the year. A short time before her Illness she painted an Emblem for Rev^d Mother Prioress with peculiar Interest expressing to one of the Nuns her great affection for the Subject. It was a Lamb Sacrificed on the Cross. She also assured three or four of the Nuns with an air of conviction that she should not be long in this world, as if she had had quite a presentiment of her approaching death. Our dear Sister spent the last three days of her life almost entirely in the Choir. She took her turn for the Night Adoration, Thursday was as usual a day of special Prayer being Exposition of the most b^d Sacrament, Friday she performed the sacred duty of Victim, Saturday was also Exposition being the feast of St Maurus. She assisted that Evening at Mattins, (the eve of the holy Name) a feast to which she was much devoted, and exerted herself wonderfully, though she did not then feel very well, several of the Religious being at that time ill. She then retired as usual to her Cell. The next Morning she was called by an ancient Nun who had been her Mistress of Novices & Juniors and had taken particular care of her health. She heard her moan and upon enquiry, found that our dear sister had passed a suffering Night but disturbed no one. She acknowledged that she had occupied her mind during the Night with some edifying details which our venerated Bishop (who had just made us a visit) gave us relative to a holy Soul abroad who was a perfect Victim, and always prayed for Patience. Her Illness was an attack of Pleurisy but no danger was apprehended. Being unable to see our dear Superior who was herself very Ill, on Monday she expressed her hope to the Infirmarian that she would take care of her receiving the last Sacraments which she promised to do. That same day she was moved to the Infirmary a great change then took place, she became insensible. Neither Medical Advice or remedies availed, & having rec^d Extreme Unction she expired before the Conventual Mass Tuesday with a sweet smile on her face. Her death though deplored by the Com^{ty} left a most happy impression on the minds of all, & sweet hope of her happiness. R.I.P.

CII. 1857. Anno Domini 1857 March 16th Departed this life our dear Religious Sister—Mother Aloysia Joseph Halloran of the Adorable Sacrament.

This dear Mother was born of respectable Parents. She had long desired when in the world to enter Religion, but circumstances long prevented the accomplishment of her desires. When she was at liberty to follow her pious inclinations, she entered the Noviceship with great fervor, happily persevered, and made her holy Profession in due time. She was much devoted to the Adorable Sacrament of the Altar, but the Sacred Institute of the Perpetual Adoration was not then established amongst us, though it had been for forty years the object of the ardent wishes of the Community. This dear Mother after her Profession suffered from a violent attack of Illness from which she recovered though she often had bad health during her religious Career and was Infirm. In the year 1828 Mother Aloysia Joseph was taken most seriously Ill during Advent, & continued in a very alarming state. She was a holy ; Interior, humble Soul, truly a Child of the Cross, was quite resigned to Death, and even ardently desired it. She had received all the last Sacraments, and no expectation was entertained of her recovery. During this attack of Illness however she conceived a great desire of being cured if such was the divine Will in order that she might devote herself entirely to the adoration of our divine Lord in the Adorable Sacrament of the Altar. A private Novena was made in honor of the most holy Name of Jesus to which Mystery she was exceedingly devoted and she was wonderfully restored to health. There is a full detail of the particulars of her Cure kept in Depositum. Mother Aloysia Joseph lived about 29 years afterwards. During her last Illness she received all the last Sacraments and expired in great peace and tranquillity of mind. Æ. 69.

CIII. 1857. Anno Domini 1857 March 19th Departed this life our dear Religious Sister—Sister Teresa Chantal Weld of the S^d Heart of Jesus.

This our beloved Sister was Daughter of Charles Lord Clifford who had been a great Benefactor to our Community.

She was placed for education (with an elder Sister who died at the age of 17) with the Com^{ty} of Sepulchrine Nuns from Liege; settled at New Hall Essex, to whom she was much attached, and married young, Humphry Weld Esq^r of Chedioc Dorset. Our dear Sister from early youth had had a strong predilection for the religious state, and ever retained an affection, & esteem for it during the years she spent in the World, fulfilling with great perfection the duties of Wife, & Mother. As soon as she became at liberty by her Widowhood to give herself entirely to God, the most ardent wish of her heart was to quit all for his sake and retire into the solitude of the Cloister, appreciating the advantage of living under holy Obedience, before any mode of life however pious elsewhere: although she feared her advanced age of 61. would be an obstacle to her admission into any Noviceship. Her first application on the subject was received with great pleasure by Rev^d Mother Mary Clare Knight, who was well acquainted with her, and knew what a favored soul she was, but in her answer she placed before her all the consequences of such a step, & the difficulties she might expect. Also that our Order being strictly contemplative it was essential that the mind should have nothing to disturb its peace; nor the heart to divide its affections; that she had still as a Mother many tender ties in the World, and altho' her five d^r Daughters were happily given to God, (one Son died young a Professed Jesuit in the exercise of Charity on the Mission in India) still 3 sons remained in the World who had claims on her for advice, correspondence &c. On this our dear Sister proposed a Visit to our out quarters which was immediately granted, & she arrived here in the beginning of May 1853.

Our d^r Rev^d Mother had a long communication with her the next morning which at once convinced her of the solidity of her Vocation, & the loving designs of God over her soul. She was consequently admitted into the Novitiate—& took the Postulants Habit on the 2^d of July in transports of Joy & Gratitude, with a young Postulant of 23 whom she used playfully to call her Twin Sister. She was never tired of expressing her thanks to the Com^{ty} for having received her, & set a due value on her precious Vocation. “What can I ever do in return for such a favor!” would she often exclaim. All her letters at this time spoke of the great happiness she experienced. She entreated Superiors to allow her to live exactly like others without consideration or distinction. This was in general complied with, but her delicate Lungs & weakened Constitution, made it not only prudent but necessary to place her in a Room where she could have a fire in cold weather, instead of giving her a little cell without one. She took great pains to learn the ceremonies and customs of the House, & was always grateful for being reminded of them, or found fault with for omitting them—it was difficult for her to remember every little practice but all our observances however small were of consequence in her eyes, & she never wilfully deviated from them: hence she gave great edification to all who saw her. She went from place to place with her eyes cast down bowing respectfully to all she met; & smiling with pleasure if asked to assist anyone. From the time of her entrance into the Noviceship she devoted herself with great Humility to simple obedience & exact compliance with the wishes of her Superiors, desiring to advance daily in the Path of Perfection. In the World she had secretly practised many more austerities than Superiors thought prudent to permit her. She renounced her own inclinations and judgment on this point as on all others with edifying docility, but seemed the more to apply herself to Interior Mortification & eagerly embraced the daily little occasions of self denial, that occur in a religious life. After some months thus past she was admitted to her Clothing on the feast of St Gertrude Nov^{br} 17th 1858. This was a day of Gratitude & Joy for the pious Novice, who endeavored with more fervor if possible than before, to enter into the spirit of our holy Rule, & Institute of the Perpetual Adoration. Her great delight was to perform the Office of Victim Reparatrix, & to pray in the night: She would at these times appear so penetrated with the divine Presence, & so absorpt in God, that those who saw her were filled with veneration for her sanctity. Her fervor & the Grace of her Vocation enabled her to undergo the different trials of the Noviceship; & to observe the fasts & abstinence of the Rule &c. this joined to her progress in the virtues of her holy State, obtained her admission to her holy Profession which she made in the most perfect dispositions 15th Dec^{br} 1854. It was soon evident that she had given herself to God entirely & without reserve. Her dear Children were the objects of her greatest sacrifice, she loved them tenderly, her sons she could see again, but her five Daughters never. Religion does not destroy the feelings, but purifies them & enobles them. She was not required to be insensible to natures reasonable claims, & when circumstances, or an affectionate letter recalled her Children in an especial manner to her mind & heart, her Countenance would light up, & her happy looks & joyful tone, would tell those who observed her, how much it must have cost her to part with them for ever here below.

Our d^r Sister was gifted with a lively Faith; she was ever looking towards the life to come, hence this vain world & its maxims were entirely banished from her heart. She loved Obedience, Humility, Poverty, & Sufferings for the sake of her divine Spouse—Who embraced all these in mercy & goodness for His poor sinful creatures. In imitation of Him she was mild, kind, courteous, sincere, & simple in her dealings with others—her Conversation was cheerful, unaffected, & easy. She had a great facility in introducing spiritual reflections in a pleasant manner, so as to render recreation hours useful, as well as agreeable. This lively Faith made her regard her Superiors as representatives of God, & her uniform conduct towards them was respectful, cordial, affect^{ed}, confiding, & submissive. She was with them truly a little Child such a one as the Gospel tells us Our Lord drew to his heart, & gave as a Model to His Disciples—Obedience was her particular attraction, her comfort, support, & delight; because it secured to her the accomplishment of the Will of God. She used to speak of Obedience in transports of love & admiration. She desired all she did to bear the stamp of this Virtue—the mere wishes of a Superior were for her a Rule, & not content with punctually performing the orders she received, she submitted her Judgment in the most edifying manner. It is not surprising she should have acted thus towards our d^r venerated R^d Mother whom she justly loved & esteemed much, but she was equally docile & submissive to every one who had any authority over her. Some idea may be formed of the perfection of her Obedience from the following accident. Purely from this motive she adopted the Homœopathic System in her Noviceship. In the autumn of 1854 she was threatened with one of her Inflammatory attacks: the only remedy for which had always been bleeding or cupping. She mentioned this to the Nun who had the charge of administering the Homœopathic medicines who appeared to pay no attention to the Novice's representations (although she intended to refer the case to Rev^d Mother) & objected entirely to bleeding as contrary to the System; Our d^r Sister retired humbly & continued to take the prescribed Medicine until she felt convinced her life was in danger; then having a scruple of being any longer silent, she went to her Mistress & expressed her apprehensions. Her Mistress told her to explain exactly what she felt & the consequence she apprehended to Rev^d Mother Prioress & to abide by her decision, who ordered her then to be cupped immediately; & she was speedily relieved & well.

Her Humility struck every one with admiration; & cast a bloom of Modesty over all her actions. She not only never said anything in her own praise, but she had a low opinion of herself, & thought highly of others: "I used often" said one of the Juniors "to admire Sr Teresa Chantal's great dexterity in finding out some perfection in every one." She behaved towards the Religious with as much respect as if they had all been her Superiors, & when engaged on business, or something of importance with Rev^d Mother Prioress she was interrupted by some one coming to ask a permission, or to speak upon some subject quite foreign to her purpose, she would immediately arise, give place to the Sister, & retiring to another part of the room would quietly wait until she had finished. The manner in which she received reproofs was beautiful; she would instantly prostrate, & when told to arise would kneel with her eyes cast down, & listen with the greatest sweetness of Temper to what was said. She would look quite joyous, & often thanked the Superior who pointed out her defects, & beg her not to spare her. She regarded those as her best friends who would do her this charitable office, which in fact was no easy one to fulfil, as she had no real faults. Never was the slightest disapprobation or complaint against Superiors heard from her lips; she interpreted all they said & did in the most favorable light. She was indeed so dead to self, that she rejoiced in circumstances wherein those swayed by feelings of nature, would have experienced extreme annoyance & vexation. On one occasion whilst yet a Novice, her Mistress found fault with her for not having better complied with an injunction she had given her; in reality the dear Sister had done her best to obey, but circumstances rendered it impossible for her to succeed. Sometime after this, she expressed herself much pleased with her Mistresses conduct towards her, & alluding to the above mentioned order, told a Superior to whom she was speaking, the reason why she could not succeed. The Religious was in admiration of her virtue, but concealing her feelings merely asked if her Mistress had been aware of the difficulty of the command? Oh yes, she replied smiling, Our Mistress knew it, but when she reprimanded me next morning in the Noviceship, she said what was so true, viz. "That we came here to suffer, that it could only be for a short time, & we should not spare ourselves so much". What did you feel asked the Nun when your Mistress said this? Feel, d^r Mother she rejoined, I felt delighted & she looked so while she spoke.

With regard to her faults she was her own calumniator; when she acknowledged them in public, we knew not when she would end, although before she began, it would have been difficult to guess what grounds she had for self accusation excepting mere accidents. After her Decease we found in her own handwriting an abridgment of the 12 degrees of Humility (to be seen at length in our H: F: Rule). She must have studied them continually to have practised them as perfectly as she did, and as the Saint promises those who act thus had attained to that "love of God which casts out Fear". Her love was at once ardent, tender, generous, sincere, devoted, & confiding. She placed all that concerned her, and those dearest to her (whom she had quitted solely for His sake) under the care of divine Providence, in whose arms she reposed as a Child in those of a tender & watchful Mother. Her Charity for her Neighbour sprung from her love of God, & a sentiment of natural benevolence, (imparted by Him) which made her wish well to all her fellow creatures. When Mistress of her own house, her Charity had had a large sphere of action among the poor and the afflicted who had recourse to her on all sides. After her Holy Profession, (at which she gave up at once all to God) her Charity was chiefly confined within the walls of her Enclosure, and perhaps from being more concentrated became more tender, & intense. As soon as she was employed as second Infirmarian, she had constant opportunities of exercising it: the sick indiscriminately felt its benign effects in the numberless attentions she paid them, & the inventions to which she had recourse for their comfort. She spared herself no trouble, & was continually working for others, & preferring their interest to her own, their convenience also. She joined mortification to Charity by taking upon herself the most abject occupations. She said to one of the ancient Religious who had a bad cold in her head "I have some things very convenient for an Infirmarian viz. plenty of pocket handkerchiefs let me lend you some". This kind offer was declined civilly as the Invalid could contrive otherwise, then our d^r Sister immediately begged her to allow her to wash those which she had used that she might have clean sooner. The Nun quite confused at her humility would not of course listen to such a proposal, but it shewed how far she carried her Charity. (On relating this to another Nun she said "it was the more admirable because before our d^r Sister left the world she told a Director in whom she had great confidence "that one of the difficulties that occurred to her on entering Religion was, she feared she might be told to take care of an old Nun, & have to wash her dirty Pocket handkerchiefs" but she assured her that this was not likely to be the case.) She would often run away with things belonging to the Infirm which it was the Lay Sisters' business to clean as Candlesticks, Lamps, knives, & forks, and when caught in the fact or remonstrated with, she would make nothing of it & exclaim "Oh let me work while I can". About 3 weeks last winter she attended one of the Juniors, who had a bad knee dressing it two or three times a day although she had to go the length of the house from her own Cell to that of the Invalid each time. Then rising from her knees she would carry away the Poultices & secretly wash out the dirty Linen herself. It would be impossible to relate all the edifying services she rendered her religious Sisters & it was the opinion of all those who were best acquainted with her that it was not the Will but only the opportunity that was wanting to make her perform many of the heroic actions of the Saints. Her spirit of Poverty was remarkable. She would render every thing useful one way or the other. When in the Garden she would gather sticks to light her fire & do without things that seemed necessary. She had no Tongs for her fireplace & to the last took up the Coals to throw on it with a piece of black Stuff or Paper. Had our d^r Rev^d Mother known this she would soon have been supplied but she rather dreaded than courted the indulgence of Superiors. Any thing was good enough for her—when she had her choice she chose the worst. If she happened to waste or break any thing she was inconsolable & once when she happened to break a pretty flower Vase she shed so many Tears that our dear Rev^d Mother was obliged to console her. She never lost a moment of Time & when duty did not call her to some particular Exercise she was either praying, reading, writing, or working. Not having been long professed her own Clothes were in good repair so she was constantly offering to work for others especially the Lay Sisters. She darned & mended things so well that they lasted much longer than they would otherwise have done. So detached was she from every thing, that provided, she could obtain permission she would give away anything she had for her use. The little Altar of St Joseph was under her care, & devoted as she was to this great Saint it might have been supposed that she would have kept the best flowers in her Garden for him, but no, so generous & disinterested was she in her disposition that if asked for some flowers on the eve of a festival she would press some of the choicest of her stock upon the Petitioner saying: "Your altar is in a conspicuous place & ought to have good flowers" yet the Sister's Altar was only in the Cloister & her's was in the Choir! Forgetfulness of self was a striking feature in her character. The many graces with which Almighty God favored her were stimulants to love & Gratitude. Prayer was her light, support, & strength & life it was in a manner continual as she had a sweet familiar way of conversing with God during her exterior employments which she had practised even in the World. When she went to the Choir, no sooner was she on her knees than she seemed profoundly recollected & would remain in the most humble posture annihilated as it were in the divine presence. To adore in the divine presence or to fulfil the office of Victim & Reparatrix was her delight. She seemed insensible to fatigue and would remain kneeling unless told to sit down. The ardour of her love drew her frequently to holy Communion but a deep sense of her unworthiness made her fear to approach too often. Obedience alone reassured her for she always submitted her Judgment to that of her Superior. Speaking one day upon submission of Judgment she said, "She could imagine young People having sometimes a difficulty on this point" but as for me she added "I have no merit because I know I have none to submit". Those who are aware how much her advice was sought by her friends in the World may be surprised that Humility thus blinded her, but so it was with all the rest. At a time when her relig. Sisters could scarcely help expressing their admiration for her virtue she said in a cheerful tone, "Thank God I can have no temptations to Vanity knowing what I am". She loved her own abjection so much that when she had done or said any thing imperfect which in her eyes was dreadful instead of being concerned for her reputation she would exclaim: "Well one thing at least comforts me the Community will at length know me" then she would regain her Spirits and be quite joyful. This might be considered a digression from the account of her Prayer yet may it not all be traced back to Prayer and its effects? To Prayer she had recourse on all occasions and by the Grace it imparted she triumphed not only over her spiritual enemies but over natural dislikes and repugnances for she was not one of those cold quiet gentle natures that feel no difficulties; on the contrary her sanguine Temperament made her feel acutely, but she always sacrificed natural feelings when Duty required it; and combated her repugnances with courage & perseverance. This had been her habitual conduct in the World so that she was a Saintly Person when she joined us and during the few years she spent in the Cloister she so faithfully corresponded with divine Grace as to have become a perfect Religious and fitted for heaven. Our Lord had only lent her to us as an example of what might be done with his assistance in a short space. The time was come for Him to call her home.

On Friday the 15th of March she attended the recreation after Dinner with her usual cheerfulness. One of the Nuns having told Rev^d Mother that our d^r Sister was not very well she called her to her and enquired what was the matter? Only a little pain in my chest was the reply. Our dear Rev^d Mother then ordered her to say her Mattins as early as she could and to be cupped as she desired, after that to put her feet in Mustard and Water and go to Bed. The next morning finding she was not relieved Mr Taunton our Doctor was sent for, he ordered several remedies but without effect. On Sunday the pain settled in her side & encreased and she thought bleeding in the arm her only cure. M^r Taunton bled her copiously, she urging him cheerfully to take plenty of blood. On Monday night she became worse and an express was sent for the Doctor at four o'clock in the morning and when he came he found her dangerously Ill. On Tuesday it was proposed to give her the last Sacraments which she received with edifying devotion our dear Rev^d Mother having previously helped her to prepare for holy Communion.

As Mother Prioress wished for further Medical advice she sent for a very clever Physician from Stafford, who when he had seen the d^r Invalid gave us very little hopes of her recovery and we began to dread the worst. After receiving the holy Viaticum she turned to me and said "Oh how good God is . . . how good He has been to me especially in bringing me into religion!" A little while after she said sweetly: "Oh I am so happy". On Wednesday feeling too sure she was dying; (* one of the Religious in whom she had confidence says) I asked a blessing for her Children thinking this would be a precious Legacy "Yes I bless them, and tell them to pardon all the disedification I have ever given them, say this particularly to Appo who lived the longest with me." I told her that all the Convents in which her Daughters were, by that time knew of her Illness & that she would have many Prayers. "Yes," she replied & then turning to God said: "O my God, if it should be for Thy Glory I would be willing to remain in Purgatory till the day of Judgment". I sat up with her some hours one night & offered her a piece of orange. She said dont you think it is too great an Indulgence? No, I replied: not when taken by Obedience. She then readily accepted it & took indifferently every thing from that time.

Her Union with God I believe to have been very perfect even when her mind had wandered a little on other subjects; that Night I heard her with emphasis say, "I want nothing but to do the Will of God! No I desire nothing but to do the Will of God." On the last day of her life, while the Community was at Mass, she asked one of the Nuns who remained with her, to give her her Profession Veil and blessed Candle, and taking a copy of her Vows into her hand she renewed them with great fervor. None could value the Grace of a religious Vocation more than she did. I used often to observe with pleasure the animation of her countenance & manner whenever she spoke of this great Grace. In reading a Prayer to her for the agonizing, an expression occurred that indicated the tribulation of a soul at the approach of Death. I stopt and said, dearest Sister this does not suit you! You have no terrors. "Oh no!" she replied "I am very happy and in great peace." Our dear Rev^d Mother Prioress was frequently with her, & felt it a consoling & cherished duty to watch by the Bedside of this saintly and devoted Daughter.

About a quarter of an hour before she expired, the Confessor entered for the last time, he had always had the highest opinion of our beloved Sister, he desired Mother Prioress to remain, & she was much edified by the pious sentiments expressed by the dear Invalid who answered all the Confessor said to her in a clear audible voice with perfect consciousness. He gave her the last absolution & left her, not thinking we should lose her so soon. A change rapidly came on & without a struggle she sweetly gave up her pure Soul into the hands of her Creator about a quarter before 2 P.M. On the Feast of her great Patron St Joseph amidst the Prayers & tears of her affectionate Mothers and Sisters several of whom were in the room. Her precious remains were carried to an Infirmary which has a Tribune opening into the Choir with a large pane of Glass in the Door that same evening. Thus she was placed opposite the Altar where her heart had continually dwelt! her Countenance breathing as in life Sanctity and Sweetness. R.I.P.

CIV. 1859. Anno Domini 1859 Feby 5th Departed this life our dear Religious Sister Mother Teresa Joseph Knight of the B^d Sacrament.

The words of Ecclesiasticus "was beloved of God & men whose memory is in benediction" may be fitly applied to this our venerable & dear Mother Teresa Joseph for her name is associated in our minds with love for God & kindness goodness & charity to her sisters: anyone conspicuous for these virtues & a motherly spirit is, even now, after the lapse of so many years said to be "another Mother Teresa Joseph".

Mary was the eldest surviving daughter (Frances having died at the age of 2) of M^r & M^{rs} James Knight of Cannington. She was born June 24th 1784 & baptized on the 29th, she & her sister Frances the 2nd of that name (Ven^{ble} Mother Mary Clare) were educated by the Augustinian nuns at Amesbury in Wiltshire. These Religious were obliged to leave Louvain owing to the Revolution & settled at Amesbury in 1799 where they remained about 5 years whence they removed to Spettisbury & from Spettisbury to their present abode Newtown Abbot in 1863. M^r & M^{rs} Knight lived very near our Convent at Court House—four of their daughters were blessed with a call to the religious life & it was in this Convent all wished to try their vocation & that all made their Profession. These virtuous & exemplary parents shared in the merit of the sacrifice of their beloved children in consecrating themselves to the service of God in holy religion, which deprived them of their presence & ministrations of love in their happy home. This sacrifice was however made for the love of God, although not without causing many a pang to their natural affections. Frances was the first to enter & Mary followed her at the end of one year.

At this period, the Convent was in a state of great poverty, with very few members, who were mostly, very old & infirm. This circumstance must have been a source of much anxiety to their father & mother, who assisted the nuns to the very utmost of their means, & should ever be numbered amongst our first & most constant benefactors. These four members of the Knight family were chosen by Almighty God to be, as it were, the pillars & support of Court House, & their pensions & fortunes were of material assistance to the Com^{ty} in its impoverished state. We shall see in the memoir of Ven^{ble} Mother Mary Clare that she was the instrument chosen for the restoration of the house, which was a cause of joy & thanksgiving to all its inmates, & showed that our B^d Lady was watching over her children, & that it was not in vain that our house was dedicated to our B^d Lady of Good Hope. Mary Knight was about 22 years of age when she entered the noviciate taking the name of Sr Teresa Joseph. She was clothed on the 7th of March 1809 & set out on her religious career with great fervour, great cheerfulness & great courage, for the Com^{ty} was reduced to so few in number, & these, aged & infirm, that there was a fear of its becoming extinct. Having passed her canonical year of probation to the satisfaction of all, she was admitted to her holy Profession which she made on March 19th 1810 together with Sr Benedict Roe a lay sister. The Ven^{ble} Abbé Prémord preached for the occasion. Sr Teresa Joseph readily accepted the most abject & laborious employments, especially about the sick, & of these, she had a large share, as no novice joined the Com^{ty} for ten years after Sr M. Clare & herself. Nothing came amiss to her, & in these beginning days, while full of youth & spirits, when she w^d naturally have enjoyed the recreation hour she habitually left it to attend the sick of whom she had the care. Her life, in a word, was a continual self-sacrifice. She was possessed of great natural simplicity, as well as of that species which may be termed a virtue & is the fruit of total detachment from self, in order to attend to God & His Interests. Of this, she gave constant proofs in her daily conduct. Her humility concealed whatever c^d draw upon herself the esteem of others, yet it was visible to all, that she was a proficient in that fundamental virtue. Sr T. Joseph was soon named Infirmarian & in 1814 she was made Secretary to the Council & in 1818 appointed to the office of Cellarer in which she continued for nearly 40 years.

Our Holy Father in his beautiful chapter of the Rule speaking of the Cellarer of the Monastery says: "Let him have a diligent care of the sick, of the infants, of the guests, of the poor. . . . Let him be as a father to all the Convent." These words exactly describe our dear M^o Teresa Joseph. Towards herself she was hard & austere, content with any inconvenience. The room she occupied for many years, is now what is called St Gertrude's room, in which she had an old bureau, kept her accounts, saw her lay sisters, wrote her business letters &c. Not having a room on the ground floor necessitated many a journey up & down stairs to the Prioress' room, the Turn, garden, or elsewhere when called.

Her patience was very admirable, as well as her recollection in the most troublesome & distractive Office in the house—it bespoke her habitual union with God. She once owned, that when going about her different active duties, she enjoyed the presence of God more intimately than during her prayers. She had sometimes scarcely a moment to herself. Strangers, the poor, the secular servants, the workmen, the infirm, were all objects of her care & charity, & she was extremely kind in providing remedies to the young nuns for their little infirmities, but, before & above all things, were the sick & the dying her special care—these she served as Christ Himself. To her dear lay Sisters she was particularly devoted, they were her children, & she was truly their Mother in all their little wants & they had recourse to her as such—she gave to them all she could reserving the worst for herself. When she became the most ancient in the Com^{ty}, she acted as if she considered herself the last & inferior to all. She was ever ready to assist anyone in any need & often contrived her kindness in such a manner as to make it appear that others were rather obliging her. To the men servants & even those employed occasionally by the Com^{ty}, she was as a good Mother, devoted to their spiritual & temporal interests, & she did her best to give work to those who had no regular employment. Her exterior comportment was truly that of a Benedictine Nun, grave & recollected. In conversation, she combined religious sedateness with great cheerfulness & a natural humour which showed itself & made her very agreeable, but, a certain appreciation of & attention to what others said, together with an undervaluing of herself were quite apparent. It has been remarked, with admiration, the perfection to which she carried her Obedience. No matter if the Superior were younger than herself & only a subaltern Superior, she was all respect & acquiescence in whatever they might require. The least wish or sign of the Prioress, was a law for her. She considered her Reverence's judgment so superior to her own that she had never any difficulty in yielding to it when their views happened to differ. It is superfluous to add that she always treated Rev Mother Prioress with the greatest deference, her lively Faith seeing in her, the representative of God. She kept strictly the Fasts of the Church, & was always most assiduous at the Divine Office. And so she continued working & praying until she became very infirm with frequent attacks of pain & weakness. Humility & charity were her two prominent virtues. these she practised in such a variety of ways & in every day occurrences, that it is easier to give a general idea of them than to select particular instances. This seems to be the proof of the solidity of her virtue—that it was not only when some great occasion called it forth that it appeared, but it flowed on, in an even, quiet, unobtrusive course.

That her stock of virtue, although she seemed gifted with natural amiability, was the fruit of labour, might be gathered from what M^o Teresa Joseph said in confidence to a Sister about 16 years before her death, “that when she looked back at times to what she was before she entered religion & at what she was at that present day she found herself so completely changed, that she c^d hardly recognize herself as the same person”. This was said with great simplicity, never dreaming how great an eulogium she was passing on herself, but it made an impression on the Sister that has not been effaced, who writes: “May it please our dear Lord to revive in me & in all the members of this House, present & to come, her spirit of simplicity humility & charity”.

“As in life so in death.”—Some years before her death our dear

Mother Teresa Joseph had a stroke of paralysis which deprived her of the use of one hand, though for a time she was able to superintend the office she had held so long & so wisely. St^r Editha, being a very competent sister was able to carry on a good deal of the business. During this time, this dear Mother was able to get down to the Choir for Holy Communion by means of the Lift & was wheeled up to the Grate—She however had other strokes which incapacitated her powers of motion, though her mental powers were unimpaired. She was confined to the Great Infirmary about seven years: the two last, she was bedridden, but even then, her charity in thinking of all, was visible. During her long & tedious illness, she was ever blessing God for it & in the midst of her own sufferings, both exterior & interior, she was ever thinking of & compassionating the sorrows of others so tenderly, that it greatly moved those who heard her. Her calm & even cheerful resignation to the Holy Will of God in her afflicted state, was depicted on her countenance & shown in her manners. She received every one who came to visit her with sweet cordiality and appeared to take a kind interest in all that concerned them. Needless to say, that this our dear Mother was, during her illness, most exact to all her religious duties & prayers & she never omitted daily saying the prayers for the conversion of England, but continued in the practice of prayer & mortification to which she had ever been much addicted.

Ven^{ble} Mother M. Clare visited her Sister every day to consult with her about matters—this she was able to accomplish by going up & down in the Lift, as our dear Mother Prioress was unable to walk up & down the stairs.

Dear M^o T. Joseph gradually sank & her faculties became weaker, but she continued to be the edification of all who approached her. Her sweetness, patience, charity & close union with God were most striking. The circumstances connected with her receiving Holy Viaticum were so very providential, that her inseparable Infirmarian (Mother Mary Magdalen) deemed them almost miraculous. From Sunday night till Tuesday evening she had been lying in a state apparently almost unconscious, when she suddenly revived & seeing the Altar dressed in her room expressed a longing desire for the Holy Viaticum. Her desires were complied with, but so much did she rally that some were inclined to think it might have been delayed longer. The Divine Spouse who knew when He meant to call her, had however timed it well, for, a few hours later, she fell into her agony. D^r M^o M. Clare was in constant attendance at the bedside of her beloved dying sister, exhorting her to make acts of contrition & love, & if possible, to die breathing an act of the pure Love of God, so that her precious soul might be at once united to her Lord & Spouse—the God of her heart & her Portion for ever. Dear Mo. T. Joseph retained consciousness to the end after receiving Holy Viaticum & Extreme Unction & died calmly & peacefully on Saturday Feby 5th 1859 about 10.30 a.m. aged 75, just one month wanting to complete her golden Jubilee. One of the Religious, who had been under M^o Teresa Joseph, affirmed, that she had never seen her commit an imperfection during the 22 years she had known her & added, though I watched her very closely. Although this dear Mother was very indulgent she was a most vigilant Mistress, & sought to ground those under her in the fundamental virtue of Humility. One Sister said to her "If I am not humble, dear Mother, I am sure it is not y^r fault". & another remarked "She is as good as it is possible for anyone to be". Much more might have been said by those who knew M^o T. Joseph more intimately, but sufficient has been said to edify & to give an example of humility, simplicity & charity. R.I.P.

CV. 1859. Anno Domini May 11th 1859. Departed this life our dear Religious Sister, Mother Mary Scholastica Leeming of the Passion.

Our dear Mother M. Scholastica Leeming whose death is this day recorded was the eldest daughter of M^r Leeming of Preston, a good Catholic, who brought up his family religiously & piously as far as he was able in those early days. His daughter Maria was under the spiritual direction of a Jesuit father, & it was through the means of her Confessor the Revnd M^r Gold, to whom she had confided her desire of entering a Convent that she heard of the Benedictine Com^{ty} lately settled at Court House Cannington, & applied to Rev. Mother Clare Knight of Jesus, (then in the 3rd year of her first quadrennial, to be received as a Choir Novice.

Her Confessor gave her an exceptionally good character so the old records say. She was at once admitted on Jan^{ry} 1st 1821, & clothed on June 7th of the same year, & going fervently through the year of canonical probation was received to her Profession on May 24th making her sacred Vows on the 11th of July 1822. She was employed as Tourière & also Infirmarian at Cannington, but had a severe illness from which, though she recovered, she felt the effects all her life & was unable to recite aloud in the Choir. Dear Mo. M. Scholastica had a very sweet temper & always made the best of little troubles, inconveniences &c. She had straightforward good sense & a joyous disposition & thoroughly entered into a joke. She was an universal favourite with the young religious & always ready to assist them in many ways. She was 1st Sacristan from 1841 until a fortnight before her death in 1859. Besides taking great care of the Vestments in the Sacristy she arranged two oak Reliquaries & placed in them the Relics which had been brought over from Paris, the cases & authentications of which had been seized by the French government. These reliquaries are now kept in the Infirmary.

In 1859 towards the end of Lent dear M^o M. Scholastica had a bad Influenza cold, but a fortnight's nursing in the Infirmary partially restored her—She did not however appear equal to the Sacristy work, therefore dear Mother M. Clare appointed another Sacristan & gave M^o M. Scholastica the office of Tourière, which office requiring scarcely any labour, she thought would be a little occupation for her without fatigue. M^o M. Scholastica took it up at once & began collecting her stamps & postal book together that she might commence her new work. She also gave directions to her successor in the Sacristy as to the Vestments & Church articles which were to be packed up for Atherstone, as the nuns chosen for the filiation, were to leave in the following week. During these days there was not much apparent change in her, but one evening in Low week May 11th an old French clock in the Calefactory where she was sitting was accidentally thrown down, & falling with a great crash is supposed to have seriously affected her heart, which, (though unknown at the time), was in a very diseased state. She retired to her cell & was found the next morning kneeling by her bedside, dressed—but quite dead: Though the shock to M^o M. Clare & the Com^{ty} was very great, all were comforted in the thought of her holy & edifying life. She was 61 years of age & had been professed 37 years. R.I.P.

CVI. 1861. Anno Domini 1861. May 18th. Departed this life our dear Religious Sister, Sister M. Austin Welch of the Nativity.

This dear Sister entered the Com^{ty} at Cannington A.D. 1827. Her Christian name was Ann & she had been highly recommended by Rev. Father Scott O.S.B. & other persons to whom she was well known & who spoke most favourably of her. She was midway in life ere she was able to commence her religious course. She was born in London & the daughter of a Physician, who in her early days had been possessed of good property mostly West Indian, but owing to circumstances unknown to us, they lost nearly all & had very little to live upon. S^r M. Austin was educated at Princenhort in Belgium, with the Franciscan Nuns, who later on emigrated to Winchester during the French Revolution & afterwards settled at Taunton, the superior of that com^{ty} at this time being M^o Mechtilde Plowden.

That S^r M. Austin made good progress in her studies in her school days was well evinced by her varied gifts & acquirements in later life. After her father's death she went to reside with her Mother & an Aunt (M^{rs} Egan) at Winchester, where she renewed her acquaintance with the Franciscan Com^{ty}, by whom she had been educated, particularly with M^o Frances Teresa Bird & she found her counsels of great use & value, for, after her aunt's death the dear nuns used to direct her reading & advise her in all her difficulties spiritual & temporal.

M^{rs} Egan was a very sensible person & so was M^{rs} Welch but the latter was an invalid. S^r M. Austin was very young when her Mother died & Miss Louisa Bird gave what assistance & help she could to her at this time. As her Aunt (M^{rs} Egan), was already dead S^r M. Austin now went to her brother in London, who was engaged in some business there.

The next we hear of her early days was, that she lived with M^{rs} Walmsley as a companion where she was much esteemed & saw a great deal of good society. She lived with M^{rs} Selby afterwards & had the care of her twin daughters, who loved her greatly. One of these young ladies married Sir Charles Wolsley, father of the present baronet & the other married M^r Weld of Leagram. In 1827, as we have already said, Miss Welch entered at Cannington, took the religious habit with the name of S^r M. Austin on the 5th of August & was clothed on the 5th of Feb^y 1828—Septuagesima Sunday, on which day the Gospel speaks of those who were hired at the eleventh hour & she loved to commemorate this little coincidence, as it was to her mind, that her sacrifice was acceptable to the Lord of the Vineyard. A Noviceship Sister of hers says: "She found many things in the Noviceship very hard, but, she was, from her first entrance into religion, a model of humility and Obedience". All her desire seemed, to be a little child in submission & simplicity. Naturally, she was full of vivacity & energy & she passed through the canonical year of probation to the full satisfaction of her Superiors & was professed on the 10th of Feby 1829, taking as her Mystery, the Nativity. She had a great devotion to the Divine Office & as she understood Latin, she could enter into the full beauty of it. One of her Noviceship Sisters says: "It did me good to say it with her". She also knew French & Italian & translated a great many works for the Com^{ty} 2 vols. of Insinuations of St Gertrude—Calmet's Commentaries, & a number of sermons & small treatises. She had in her a real vein of poetry & wrote many verses full of piety, others also, in which merry & witty thoughts came out, also some cantos in blank verse describing the meeting of our Holy Father & Mother & the thunder storm at Plombariola, the deaths of these Saints &c. S^r M. Austin was appointed Tourière very soon after her Profession & later on to fill the office of 2nd Chantress which she did with great devotion. She had a nice voice & could sing well. She was thoroughly well read & her talents, good sense, tact & judgment, much heightened & enlivened by her ready wit & cheerful repartee, were a source of constant entertainment to all who knew her best. She acted as Librarian for a long time & was later on Depositarian which office she retained as long as her strength permitted. She was very fond of worsted work & her taste in this was quite original. We have still specimens of it in the house. She was often appealed to during recreation for a pretty story, a pious anecdote, some historical adventure & her well stored memory always brought forth something edifying & interesting. She knew well how to impart information without showing any self sufficiency, always with amiability & modesty. S^r M. Austin had an immense amount of vivacity which broke out sometimes almost unexpectedly during recreation. One day we were talking over the circumstances of a death, saying how very frequently it happened that the dying Sister could not ask the pardon which is customary before the Last Sacraments. S^r M. Austin said "Yes, so I will ask it now," down she went upon her knees before we could stop her & made her request with all humility & earnestness. S^r M. Austin became very infirm about three years before she died, & gave up the office of Depositarian to S^r M. Catherine, who had been acting as 2nd for some time back, but, though old age & infirmity prevented her from following the Conventual duties, she continued wonderfully cheerful always being as a little child in the hands of her Superiors & so grateful to those who attended or did anything for her. She was able to rise until the last two or three days before her death & she heard with a sweet smile & joyful expression that her case was very dangerous, & at one of the last visits that the Doctor paid her on her death bed, she told him that she had cheated the devil, meaning that she had entered religion so late in life. She went to Mass in the Tribune almost to the last & in these sweet dispositions of holy joy & thanksgiving, received the last Sacraments from Fr Dullard & joined in all the prayers, on the 18th of May, being Pentecost Eve, sweetly & joyfully went to receive her reward from her divine Spouse, retaining her consciousness & power of speech until the end. She was 85 years of age & professed 32 years R.I.P. Two little anecdotes which seem to touch upon the supernatural were treasured up, but are only related as loving recollections of a generous & fervent soul who spared herself in nothing. Once, when she was at Cannington, passing through the Chapter room, she seemed to hear these words intellectually, "Be thou faithful unto death & I will give thee the crown of life". Once, when she was sitting in St Anne's room, thinking rather fearfully about death & judgment, Sr Teresa Gertrude, who had just expired in the Great Infirmary, seemed to pass through the room & said, "Oh, Mother M. Austin, we have to do with a good & merciful God".

In order to check her impetuosity she was accustomed to ask herself this question "quid ad te, tu me sequere?" & one of her resolutions was to endeavour to preserve calm or to regain it as soon as possible. "Study only myself & my Model—nothing but entire submission to the adorable Will of God in all events, O my God, this is all I desire." In fine, St Teresa's maxim "Only God & myself in the Monastery, in one sense, but if to [be] obliged to yield & endure, then only God & my neighbour". These words of M^o M. Austin, show how earnestly she set about the work of perfection, & we may humbly hope that having been faithful unto death she has received the Crown of Life!

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Benedictine Convent at Cambrai* was founded in 1623; but the financial position not keeping pace with its personal progress and popularity, to decrease the growing expenditure it was decided to establish an independent house in the French capital, a start being made in 1651. In October the President of the Anglo-Benedictine congregation, Abbot John Placid Gascoigne, issued instructions to Fr Hugh Paulin Serenus Cressy to escort the first small colony from Cambrai to Paris, which he accordingly did in the following month, continuing as their chaplain for about a year. After various temporary arrangements the Community settled in 1664 in the Rue du Chant or Champ de l'alouette, variously rendered and abbreviated in the text. As an affiliation of the English Benedictines the Paris house did not get that support which was expected, and which was actually promised to it as a monastery under the jurisdiction of the ordinary, the Archbishop of Paris. The separation was strongly urged, influentially supported, carefully considered by all parties, and accordingly took place.

At the Terror the house was seized, nuns were imprisoned, but most of them finally found their way to their native country, which had formerly proscribed them.

After a short stay in London they went in 1795 to Marnhull in Dorset. In 1807 they moved to Cannington in Somerset, and finally settled in 1836 at Colwich. To them we are indebted for the first institution in England of the Perpetual Adoration of the Blessed Sacrament, besides the other usual good works of the Convent life. We see that it was in contemplation during the brief priority of Mother Mary Clare Bond (LXXIII.); but inexorable events dissipated the holy project for many years. For an account of the Community, its migrations, etc., the reader is referred to the sketch of the history of the house to be obtained at the Convent at Colwich.

When the nuns were driven out of France they had little left them of anything. Amongst books kept in the refectory for pious, public reading during meals was one, "The Lives of the Mother Beginners," from which commemorations were read on the anniversaries of deaths, concluding with a "De profundis" for each one's soul. This and the other books had been seized by the municipal officers and never recovered. Fortunately a copy had been made a short time previously, and was brought over to England. It is here printed as "the first book," and concludes with Sister Frances Langworth (xxvi.), but omits, except for a brief notice at the end, one nun, and another altogether, both being given in the later book. It occupies 199 pages, about three-quarters of the book, which is on paper 11½ by 7½ inches. It is thought to have been written by Sister Theresa of the Infant Jesus (xxxvii.), whose signature it agrees with. "The second book" continues the series down to modern times, occupying 329 pages out of about 670, 13½ by 8 inches. The foregoing paper gives particulars of the members, with some genealogical notes.

Owing to a request having been made for brief notes these memoirs had been cut down to the most meagre necrology, omitting most of their interest. When it was pointed out that extracts from records were against the regulations of the Society, Mother Prioress directed a full transcript to be prepared. This necessarily entailed considerable loss of time over the whole volume, and the memoirs being transferred from their original chronological position to the last of this volume. Many circumstances of importance would otherwise have gone unrecorded; but above all we must rejoice that we are not losers of many witnesses of heroic, individual acts of Christian Faith and fortitude of these daughters of St. Benedict, in trying circumstances. They were written for the edification and emulation of the community, and we are now privileged to share them with their descendants.

To meet a difficulty which arose these Editorial Notes are fittingly transposed from an introductory position to the last of all. Finally I have to thank Mother Prioress and her community for patience in my own difficulties, and also for putting me in communication with the one she knew would be the most welcome correspondent.

Constitutions

1. Name. The name of the Society is "THE CATHOLIC RECORD SOCIETY."

2. Objects. The objects are the transcribing, printing, indexing and distributing to its members the Catholic Registers of Baptisms, Marriages, and Deaths, and other old Records of the Faith, chiefly personal and genealogical, since the Reformation in England and Wales.

3. Management. The affairs of the Society are managed by a Council consisting of twelve members and four honorary officers, viz., The Recorder, Bursar, Legal Adviser and Secretary—four forming a quorum. It has power to appoint a President and Vice-Presidents, its Chairman and Officers, and to fill vacancies on its own body, and has power to refuse or take away membership. One-third of the twelve members and all the honorary officers retire each year, but are eligible for re-election. Nominations of New Members of the Council must be sent to the Secretary fourteen days before the Annual Meeting. The representation and management are reserved to Catholic Members.

4. Subscription. The subscription is one guinea per annum, which entitles members to the publications for the year, but the names of any members whose subscription shall be two years in arrears will thereupon be removed from the Society, and not be readmitted until all arrears are paid.

Subscriptions are due on June 1 in each year, and no work is issued to any member whose subscription is unpaid. A member wishing to retire from the Society must intimate his intention to the Bursar or Secretary before the 1st day of June, or be held liable for his subscription for the ensuing year.

5. Privileges. The members are entitled to the Volume or Volumes printed for the year of subscription, no Volume being issued to any member whose subscription is unpaid. They may also, on prepayment, obtain back numbers (if in stock) on such terms as the Council may direct.

6. Meetings. An Annual Meeting is held in the month of June or July, of which at least seven days' notice is sent to all the members. At this meeting a report of the work of the Society, with a statement of the income and expenditure, is presented. This is issued together with the list of members and the Constitutions of the Society.

7. Audit. The Bursar's accounts are audited by a member of the Society appointed by the Council, at the close of the financial year, which expires on May 31.

N.B.—The Bursar deals with Membership and Subscriptions.

SIXTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CATHOLIC RECORD SOCIETY

A YEAR ago the Council had to meet its constituents with a blank report of books produced, and only the assurance that much work had been done. The sixth year contrasts favourably, for three volumes have been distributed to the members of the Society : Volume VI being the second for the fourth year ; Volume VII for the fifth year ; and Volume VIII the first for the sixth year. Another volume, the IXth, is half way through the press, and will be, it is hoped, in the hands of members in the course of the present year. For the current year Volume X has been already taken in hand ; it will contain the third and fourth Douay Diaries, and possibly the fifth.

The generous support accorded to the Society enables it to commence printing earlier than hitherto, and it is proposed to commence two volumes before Christmas, for the eighth year, making in all twelve volumes for the first eight years of the Society's existence. One of these later volumes will probably consist of obituaries, the other of Miscellanea (VIII). As there is a constantly growing accumulation of material, it is not always possible to print at once everything which one class or other of the members might desire, but it is hoped that all claims and all tastes may be satisfied within a reasonable time.

Thanks are due for valuable help from many quarters. Alderman Smith, of Barrow-in-Furness, has undertaken to pay for the printing of the Registers of Culcheth Hall and Southworth Hall, both in South Lancashire ; and the Rev. John Donohoe has supplied the transcript. Another member, Monsieur Hawke, has called attention in the French Catholic paper, La Croix, to the number of distinguished French names in our registers.* It is well that the catholicity of our records should be understood and appreciated. The Rev. Raymund Stanfield has supplied a transcript of the " Rheims Diary for 1579 and 1580, a MS. belonging to the Dean and Chapter," quoted by Dodd, and reported by the late Rev. Dr. Knox in his preface to the First and Second Douay Diaries, page v, as missing in 1878. This will be included in Volume X. Fr. Stanfield has also kindly provided some interesting papers for Volume IX, and a list of obituaries. Important memoirs from the Benedictine houses of East Bergholt (formerly Brussels), Colwich (Paris), Oulton (Ghent), Stanbrook (Cambray), Teignmouth (Dunkirk and Pontoise), have been received, whilst facilities have been granted by the Prioress of the Ursulines at Greenwich to print the professions, memoirs, and obituaries of the English Poor Clares of Gravelines, together with portraits of some of the abbesses, etc., of that community. Mr. Wainewright has also favoured us with two lists of Catholics in the time of Queen Elizabeth, with brief notes and useful references. The Rev. C. Giles, of Newport, Salop, has supplied us with the Registers of that mission. The Rev. Patrick Ryan, S.J., has supplied some correspondence of Cardinal Allen from the Stonyhurst archives. And Mr. Andrew audited the Bursar's accounts for the sixth consecutive year.

In place of the usual "Index of Persons and Places," the Editors of Volume VIII have introduced a different system, an "Index (of Persons) and Elucidation," following herein, in an amplified form, the lines of Mr. Gillow's Haydock Papers. By this method a brief running narrative is given of the persons named and their family connections, the use of footnotes is rendered unnecessary, and matters within and without the text are brought together. In such a community as that of the Blue Nuns of Paris, embracing many members of allied families, the task is comparatively easy, but even in this case, where many of the names have been hitherto unknown even to the Editors, the method can be only partially successful: it would be cumbersome and practically impossible in the varied and extended fields of our usual work. It is early to judge of the merits of the innovation; but we must all recognise the care and industry evinced in the compilation.

A full index has always been an object and feature of the Society's work. Its sole purpose has been to facilitate reference, and in some cases, indeed, the facilities have been a little superfluous. Mrs. Seymour Spencer saved us some duplication and even multiplication of entries under aliases in Volume VII, by giving each in its place, thus enabling the searcher to find more readily the object of his quest. We have under consideration some abbreviation of ordinary baptismal names, with a view to the reduction of expense without sacrificing the value of the Index.

At the invitation of our Patron, the Archbishop, the Council will be represented at the Leeds Catholic Congress in July, although the work of the Society may be described as that of the student's desk than of the rostrum or the stall. Not having need of much space for our exhibits, such as a set of our volumes, some framed illustrations, and particulars of the Society's work, we approached our fellow-labourers in another department, the Catholic Truth Society, as to the possibility of their accommodating us. Our enquiries were met by prompt, friendly, and courteous acquiescence, for which our earnest thanks are due to the Council and Honorary Secretaries of that admirable Society. A paper on "The preservation of our records by printing them," will be read at the Leeds meeting. The Honorary Secretary has obligingly offered to give personal attendance and information to enquirers.

In addition to the deaths of Mr. Cary-Elwes and Mr. Scrope recorded in last year's Report, we have to lament the loss of that eminent Statesman, the first Marquess of Ripon, K.G., of the Rev. Andrew Jordan, Miss Sarah Saunders, Major Tankerville James Chamberlayne, Mr. Anthony John Hanmer, and Mr. John Humble (the sixty-first Founder). The death of Mr. William Mostyn was, inadvertently omitted last year.

These nine deaths, to which have to be added six resignations, make a total loss of fifteen members for the year. On the other hand, twenty-seven new members have been enrolled, several of them in succession to deceased members, making a small but satisfactory increase of twelve, and bringing up the total membership to three hundred and seventy-two.

The Bursar's statement shows the financial position. The same reason which prevented a desired output of volumes in the fifth year contributed to the accumulation of funds. The work paid for during the past year is accountable for the present reduction, and further payment will be presently called for. It is a healthy and natural reduction, for we were founded to print records, not to accumulate funds. Whatever is done to secure a permanent financial basis can only be by small accretions or special donations ad hoc.

The Very Rev. Fr. Procter, Provincial O.P., found it impossible to give the time he desired to the Council work, and his place has been filled by the Rev. Bede Jarrett, of the same Order. The members retiring by rotation are Father J. H. Pollen, S.J.; Mr. Henry Farnham Burke, Somerset Herald; Mr. John Hobson Matthews, and Mr. Carlisle J. S. Spedding. They are eligible for re-election.

TRANSACTIONS
OF THE SIXTH ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

The Sixth Annual General Meeting of the Catholic Record Society was held on Wednesday, June 15, 1910, at the Mansion House, by the kind permission of the Lord Mayor, who presided in the regrettable absence of the President, His Grace the Duke of Norfolk. There were present His Grace the Archbishop of Westminster, the Lady Mayoress, Mrs French Falkiner, Miss Mary L. Gladstone, Miss Harting, Miss Margaret Pollen, Mrs Stanley-Cary-Caddell, Mr Stafford H. Jerningham, Rev. E. Burton, D.D., Rev. J. L. Whitfield, Rev. Anthony H. Pollen, Mr William Sewell, Mr J. B. Wainewright, Mr C. H. Plunkett, Rev. Dr Jackman, Mr John Carnegie, Mr F. U. Walford, Mr Carlisle Spedding, Mr Joseph Gillow (Hon. Recorder), Mr L. C. Lindsay (Hon. Bursar), Mr H. Houston Ball, Mr J. Hobson Matthews, Rev. J. Gilbert Dolan, O.S.B., Mr F. A. R. Langton, Rev. Bede Jarrett, O.P., Very Rev. Canon Sutcliffe, Marquis de Ruvigny, Very Rev. Prior Higgins, C.R.L., Rev. J. H. Pollen, S.J., Mr J. S. Hansom, and Major Skeet (Hon. Secretary). The Press was represented by the London News Agency, Catholic Times, Universe and Catholic Weekly, and Catholic Herald. Messages of regret at their absence were received from His Grace the Duke of Norfolk, Rt Rev. Abbot Gasquet, O.S.B., Mr A. A. Slater, Very Rev. Canon Caswell, Major C. J. Vaughan, Mr C. J. Munich, Mr H. Brierley, Mr Orby Shipley, Admiral Lord Walter Kerr, Mrs John Humble, Rev. Raymund Stanfield, Mr Engelbach, Alderman J. P. Smith, Miss Robinson, and Colonel Lord Edmund Talbot.

In moving the adoption of the Report of the Council and the Bursar's Balance-Sheet, the Lord Mayor stated it was a very great pleasure to him to receive the Society at the Mansion House for the first time. He congratulated them on the number of books they had printed during the last year, and trusted they would receive increased support, so that there might be a still greater output. He noted with pleasure the Society was to be represented at the Leeds Congress, where the Lady Mayoress and he were also going to attend.

His Grace the Archbishop, in seconding, stated that the Annual Meeting of this Society differed in one respect to so many others that he had to attend, in that it was not begging for funds; that it lived upon its income, and did good work. He congratulated it upon the way its money has been expended, its works comparing well with those of other learned societies, and forming a collection for the history of the Catholic Church in this country by printing the records of our dear past which, despite its trials and troubles, had ended in victory. Although its works were not prominently before the minds of many of our English Catholics, still it was doing a great historical work. His Grace stated how pleased he was that it was co-operating in the Leeds Congress, which will be a great meeting, where Catholics will be united, different societies become better known, and he hoped thereby the number of their members would be increased. The motion was then put and carried unanimously.

Mr Stafford Jerningham proposed, Mr F. U. Walford seconded, and it was resolved, "That the Rev. J. H. Pollen, S.J., Mr Henry Farnham Burke, Somerset Herald, Mr John Hobson Matthews, and Mr. Carlisle J. S. Spedding, be re-elected Members of the Council for the ensuing three years."

The Lady Mayoress, in a graceful speech, proposed a vote of thanks to the officers, which was seconded by the Rev. Anthony Pollen, who recognised the work the Society was doing in the provinces.

Mr Gillow returned thanks; he regretted that he lived so far away, which prevented his attending the Council Meetings more frequently.

The Archbishop proposed a vote of thanks to the Lord Mayor for presiding, and offering the Society hospitality, at the Mansion House; yet another proof of his kindness in assisting Catholic work. Father J. H. Pollen seconded, describing the work the Society was doing, and asked all to co-operate in its dual work of printing historical and genealogical records.

The Lord Mayor, in acknowledging the vote of thanks, paid a well-earned tribute to the work that ladies were doing by helping the Society in every way.

NOTICES

VOLUMES were posted to those entitled to them—VI on 9th July, 1909; VII on 17th Dec., 1909; and VIII on 6th June, 1910.

Members are requested to call the attention of their friends to the Society and its work. A copy of the current subscription form is enclosed to members this year, in case they desire to introduce a friend. It shows also how back numbers are procurable by members desiring to complete a set.

Transcripts of interesting unpublished documents ready for the press, together with the loan of the originals for the purpose of collation, are invited. It is desired always to have material for half a dozen volumes ready for printing, as special donations for printing may enable the output of work to be increased.

Offers of help in transcribing documents, especially in the Public Offices in London, where the greater part of the documents relating to the country are stored, are invited. Parish priests are especially invited to provide exact copies of old registers in their custody, or give facilities for this being done.
